HULL PROCLAIMS FAITH OF U. S. IN PACT SANCTITY

Paper Still Binding, He Declares.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—In a move construed as an effort to placate the pacifists and internationalists alienated by the course of the administration in the clash between Italy and Ethiopia Secretary of State Hull tonight issued a formal statement declaring the United States interested in maintaining the sanctity of the Kellogg pact to prevent war.

This step followed hard upon Mr. Hull's interviews in the last few days with the Italian, British and French ambassadors which were designed to demonstrate that the Roosevelt administration is more deeply concerned over the African crisis than was indicated by the reply to the appeal of the Ethiopian emperor for intervention.

Text of Statement.

Mr. Hull said that in response to the questions of newspaper correspondents he made the following statement:

"The pact of Paris is no less binding now than when it was entered into by the 63 nations that are parties to it. By form and designation it constitutes a treaty by and among those nations. It is a declaration by the governments of the world that they condemn recourse to war for the solution of international controversies, and renounce it as an instrument of national policy in their relations with one another. Furthermore, it is an agreement and a solemn obligation that the settlement or solution of all disputes or conflicts among nations of whatever nature or of whatever origin shall never be sought except by pacific means.

"The United States and the other nations are interested in the maintenance of the pact and the sanctity of the international commitments assumed thereby for the promotion and maintenance of peace among the nations of the world."

Emperor Starts It.

For a week the Roosevelt administration has been floundering in the diplomatic fog hovering over the crisis. Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia started the trouble for Mr. Roosevelt. He appealed to America as the author and chief sponsor of the Kellogg anti-war pact to invoke that instrument to avert the threatened Italian assault on his realm.

This was just like offering Washington the hot end of a poker. The President had lively recollections of the invocation of the Kellogg pact by the Hoover administration in an effort to force Japan to release her strangle hold on Manchuria. All it accomplished was the hatred of America by Japan. Mr. Roosevelt desired above all things to avoid entanglement in a similar diplomatic adventure.

Brief Reply Sent.

So, within a few hours after the emperor's message reached Washington the President caused Secretary of State Hull to respond briefly to the effect that the league of nations appeared to be mediating satisfactorily and that he was loath to believe that either Italy or Ethiopia, as signatories to the Kellogg pact, would resort to force to settle the dispute.

The Roosevelt administration was congratulating itself on this coup until it began to receive the early returns. Italy was enthusiastic over Mr. Hull's reply to Ethiopia. It demonstrated, reasoned the Italians, that the Roosevelt administration is on their side. It did not propose to invoke the Kellogg pact and had curtly so informed the king of kings.

Protests Pour In.

Next the administration found itself buried under an avalanche of protests from the pacifists. The peace societies began resoluting in a vein most uncomplimentary to Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Hull. Internationalist newspapers began sporting headlines to the effect that Mr. Roosevelt had buried the Kellogg pact in Africa. America had gone isolationist and turned her back on her own idealistic institution for the preservation of peace. The British and French governments began making inquiries to discover whether we could not be counted upon even for moral support of a scheme they might evolve to avert the war in Africa.

Altogether the pacifists and the internationalists and the European chancelleries made things so hot for the Roosevelt administration that Mr. Roosevelt decided something must be done to square himself with these elements.

So Mr. Hull called in Sig. Rosso, the Italian ambassador, told him to

HOUSE HEARING ON TAXES UPSET BY BILL'S CRITIC

Ohioan Stirs New Deal Partisans.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—The desperate and almost despairing attempts of the house ways and means committee to draft President Roosevelt's new tax program found the members today shouting at each other, berating witnesses and bickering about almost every subject except taxes.

The hearing was noisy, dramatic and hilarious by turn. The cause of all the excitement was George B. Chandler of Columbus, O., who appeared in behalf of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce to protest against the tax program.

The already frayed tempers of the Democratic members of the committee broke under the strain of Chandler's incisive attack upon the proposed taxes. When they started to browbeat Chandler Republican members came to his rescue and there resulted a confused and acrimonious debate which aroused laughter in the audience.

Water in a Sieve.

Chandler started his statement with the assertion that "under present conditions, pouring more money into Washington is like throwing water into a sieve."

"Redistribution of wealth through the tyrannical agency of taxation affronts every principle of sound Americanism and every established tenet of economics," he continued. "I am not saying that the administration aims to destroy property or that the depression is being wantonly prolonged.

"But I haven't the slightest doubt that in the inner group that surrounds the President and seems to have his ear there are numerous conspirators who do not want prosperity to return and who do want to see private property in this country so discredited that the doctrins of Karl Marx shall be substituted for those of our own leaders in the past."

Majority Members Fidget.

A number of the majority members fidgeted in their seats and flushed, but permitted Chandler to continue for the moment. Pointing to the enormous burden which was about to be placed on business in the social security bill, Chandler declared:

"Ohio's share of the social security program will reach the astounding figure of 245 millions a year. This exceeds the present cost of operating all departments of government in the state. The picture is appalling. If we ever are forced off the capitalistic basis and into the socialistic maelstrom it will not be by the wily propagandists that are yelping out of Washington, but because the people are eaten up by taxation. It will be because private property has been absorbed by government.

"It is on these grounds that the business interests in Ohio oppose the untimely imposition of new taxes levied for obviously political effect."

Fuller Interrupts.

This last phrase irked Representative Claude A. Fuller, Arkansas Democrat. He asked why Chandler thought the program was "political."

"I am merely reflecting the general opinion of the press," Chandler replied, dryly. "that this program was brought out as a compliment to a certain gentleman from Louisiana."

There was a roar of laughter in which many committee members joined.

Chandler protested the proposed progressive corporate taxes. He asserted that solvency, not size, was the measure of ability to pay taxes.

"The destruction of mere magnitude is the child of demagogy," he declared, "not the child of economics."

The program was not designed to redistribute wealth but to redistribute poverty, he continued.

Six Major Menaces.

He named "six major menaces" which endanger the country. These were:

1. The proposal to "redistribute wealth" through a progressive corporate tax and confiscatory inheritance and personal income taxes.

2. The destruction of representative government by converting congress into a "rubber stamp."

3. The entry of government into private business on a huge scale.

4. The destruction of the rights of states and centralization of power in Washington.

5. Fomenting hostility to our constitution and hatred of the Supreme court.

6. Creating a race of mendicants, loafers, and weaklings through abuse of

Patrons Flee Blast in Loop Grill; 8 Hurt

Eight workmen were seriously injured and more than fifty patrons of the Mayfair Grill, 31 East Monroe street, were sent fleeing in panic to the street early today when an air conditioning system exploded in the basement of the tavern.

The floor of the tavern, which is in the Palmer House building, was rocked and walls were cracked. A plate glass show window in the Walgreen drug store, next door, was shattered, and the steel door of a freight elevator leading to the Monroe street sidewalk was blown open.

All Taken to Hospitals.

Seven of the injured, all workmen taken to St. Luke's hospital, are John Dickinson, 51 years old, 7929 Indiana avenue; Richard Kitch, 25 years old, 213 North Harvey avenue, Oak Park; Charles Foster, 45 years old, 4520 Magnolia avenue; Art Cunningham, 7649 Stewart avenue; Neil Brown, 8038 South Racine avenue; Elmer Smith, 1231 West 78th place, and Caswell Waller, whose address was not learned.

The eighth victim was Burt O'Brien, 210 East Pearson street, a salesman for the Air-Temp company. His wife, who was in the barroom of the tavern when the explosion came, rushed to the basement, led him out, and took him to the Passavant hospital in a taxicab.

All the men were lacerated by flying debris and burned by refrigerating gases, which were liberated by the blast.

Hotel Guests Roused.

The explosion came shortly after midnight when guests filled the place, drinking and eating, and listening to the music of a six piece orchestra.

Guests of the hotel were roused and a crowd of loop pedestrians gathered. Fire companies, headed by Marshal Michael J. Corrigan, dashed to the scene and extricated the injured from the ruins of the basement.

A. C. Fairbanks, head of the company which had installed the air-conditioning system, declared that his workmen had completed the installation and were making some final tests when the explosion occurred.

The grill is owned by Edward Weiss and Louis Weiss, his nephew, both well known loop café proprietors for years. Marshal Corrigan estimated the damage at $10,000.

Attacked, Farmer Subdues Bull with His Bare Hands

George Knapp, 21 years old, qualified as a toreador yesterday when a bull attacked him on his farm four miles east of Manhattan in Will county. After the animal had knocked him down twice, Knapp seized the bull by the ears and pinned it to the ground, holding it there until help arrived. Knapp suffered lacerations about the head and side. The bull was uninjured.

DEMOCRATS TO PASS ONE DAY IN PEACE AT ISLAND OUTING

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—New Dealers will gather to bury their grudges tomorrow at a peace party arranged by President Roosevelt. The outing at the Jefferson Island club in Chesapeake Bay will bring together all factions of the administration.

At the White House it was emphasized that the gathering is not for the purpose of recharting the New Deal or to take stock of the blows suffered by the administration in the last few weeks. The club also made a similar announcement to quiet rumors that the guests were sitting down to an all important conclave.

Among those invited are Secretary of the Interior Ickes and Senator Millard E. Tydings, who have been hurling verbal hatchets at each other over the senate inquiry into the administration of the Virgin Islands.

Other guests between whom there have been strained relations are Postmaster General Farley and No. 1 Braintruster Tugwell, and George N. Peek, director of the Import-Export banks, and Secretary of State Hull. Senator Dieterich of Illinois, who has been fighting against the administration holding company bill, will be present.

Purvis Quits G Men; 'Glad to Get Out!'

Melvin H. Purvis, who has headed the Chicago bureau of investigation of the department of justice since Dec. 17, 1932, announced his resignation yesterday. He is to be succeeded by Daniel M. Ladd, who has worked as an agent during the Purvis régime.

Purvis said that his reasons for quitting were "purely personal."

Purvis, who is credited with bringing about the capture or death of some of the country's most notorious criminals, denied rumors that he had "had differences" with his chief, J. Edgar Hoover, head of the federal bureau of investigation in Washington.

Hoover's Name Ignored Here.

It was pointed out, however, that the publicity phrase, "J. Edgar Hoover announces," has been in use in every city except Chicago. Here the name of Purvis has been used in announcing the arrest of criminals.

"Frankly, I'm glad to get out of here," was Purvis' only comment.

Purvis was in command during the most stormy period of the history of the bureau of investigation here. He received credit for setting the trap in which John Dillinger, notorious criminal, was ambushed and shot to death as he left the Biograph theater at 2433 Lincoln avenue on July 22, 1934.

He was also credited with directing the hunt that resulted in the slaying of "Pretty Boy" Floyd, hoodlum of the southwest, in Ohio.

Aided in Touhy Roundup.

His men aided in the roundup of the Touhy gang, sought for the kidnaping of John Factor, wealthy speculator, and captured Verne Sankey, who killed himself rather than face trial for the kidnaping of Charles Boettcher II. of Denver.

A few bitter experiences occurred in the Purvis régime. Inspector Samuel P. Cowley and Agent Herman E. Hollis of the department of justice were shot to death last Nov. 27 in a gun battle at Barrington in which Lester M. Gillis, alias Baby Face Nelson, was killed.

Agent W. C. Baum was killed on April 22, 1934, when Purvis' men attempted to capture Dillinger and some of his gangsters in the woods of Wisconsin, near Mercer. This raid—whether directed by Purvis or Hoover—drew criticism as poorly planned. The gangsters escaped.

Ladd, son of the late United States Senator Edwin F. Ladd of North Dakota, is 32 years old and married. He took over his new duties yesterday. He served as acting chief of the Chicago bureau while Purvis directed the hunt for "Pretty Boy" Floyd. Ladd was graduated from the law school of George Washington university in 1928 and the joined the department of justice.

Horner Holds Fair Measure for Last Day

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., July 12.—[Special.]—Only eight bills lie between Gov. Horner and surcease from the labors imposed upon him by the regular session of the 59th general assembly.

Of major importance among them are Mayor Kelly's bills to permit establishment upon Chicago's lake front of a permanent fair which would combine a recreation center with a trade exposition. The governor indicated late today that he would not act upon the measures until tomorrow when his time for their consideration will expire.

Today Mr. Horner disposed of about 20 bills by signature, veto or by permitting them to become laws. He would have gotten around to the fair bills save for participation in the dedication of Lake Springfield, an event which will be celebrated locally for three days.

Signs Teachers' Pension Bill.

Before he entered into the fiesta the governor signed the Chicago teachers' pension fund which changes the maximum annuity from $1,000 to $1,200. This bill represents a compromise effected by the governor between the Chicago board of education and the teachers' lobby which fought against enactment of a bill reducing the pensions from $1,500 to $500.

The governor permitted to become laws without his signature several bills enabling the Chicago park district to carry out its refinancing and refunding plans.

In referring to these bills, Mr. Horner said: "They authorize the district to legalize certain indebtedness of superseded park districts and to assume and become liable for such legalized debts; to issue bonds for the district; to refund such debts, and to issue other refunding bonds, and to levy and collect taxes for such bonds. Paying the past indebtedness of superseded park districts and issuing funding or refunding bonds is represented to me as a necessary part of the park board's financing plans.

Funds Diverted Illegally.

"In at least two of the 22 [consolidated] districts, prior to 1933, funds were diverted illegally from the purposes for which they came into the hands of the previous park commissioners," the governor continued. "While it is proper to legalize valid unpaid obligations of the district, yet that legalization should not relieve the commissioners of the Chicago park district from employing every effort possible to collect from those responsible for the illegal diversions.

"The taxpayers have a right to expect that. I mention these facts that the present commissioners of the district, who in no way were connected with the improprieties I mention, may always have in mind the responsibility imposed upon them by the adoption of these bills. Because I am confident the present commissioners will employ every effort to discharge the responsibilities I have mentioned, I am permitting these bills to become law."

Regulates Fireworks Sale.

Another bill permitted to become a law would regulate the sale of fireworks, stating that they shall not be sold save between June 27 and July 4 each year and at no time to children less than 12 years of age.

Another action permitted the Saltiel seven instalment tax bill to become law, although Mr. Horner said he had been advised by Attorney General Kerner that in his opinion it was not constitutional. The measure provides that Chicago delinquent real estate taxes for 1932 and prior years may be paid in seven annual instalments, beginning in August.

County collectors are given the authority to make agreements with taxpayers concerning such instalment payments, waiving all interest, forfeitures, penalties, and costs except the costs arising from forfeitures if the taxpayer pays 6 per cent interest on the principal of the taxes.

MOTHER-IN-LAW TELLS HOW LANG WAS STRANGLED

Owner of Escape Auto Aids Police.

The amazing story of how Mrs. Blanche Dunkel, a passionately revengeful grandmother of midchannel age, and a younger woman, actuated by cold greed, calmly and without masculine aid accomplished the murder of Ervin Lang was told yesterday at the state's attorney's office.

Mrs. Dunkel herself was the teller of the tale. Actuated by intense hatred of Lang, her son-in-law, who was going to leave her to marry a young girl, she lured the 28 year old grocery clerk to the flat of Mrs. Evelyn Smith at 731 Barry avenue early last Saturday morning. And there—so Mrs. Dunkel said—Lang was choked to death by the slim hands of Mrs. Smith after he had been put to sleep with whisky and drugged with ether.

Blonde Evelyn Flees.

Evelyn Smith, 35 or 40 years old, a gold toothed blonde who used to dance in the chorus of a west side burlesque theater, has fled, taking with her the $100 that Mrs. Dunkel paid on account for the murder job. The agreed price for the killing was $500. With Mrs. Smith, it was believed, went Harry Jung, Chinese laundry owner, who is her lover or her husband.

According to Mrs. Dunkel, Jung knew nothing of the crime until Ervin Lang was dead, but assisted the blonde Evelyn in dismembering the body and disposing of it. The torso was found late Tuesday in a swamp at the north edge of Hammond. The legs of the victim, severed at the hips by Mrs. Smith, according to Mrs. Dunkel's story, and stowed away in a small trunk, have not yet been discovered.

Description of Escape Car.

The state's attorney's office received information last night indicating that Jung and Mrs. Smith drove away from Chicago late Wednesday in a borrowed 1928 Durant automobile bearing the 1935 Illinois license number 1-124-422. This car, supposedly, was also used in hauling away the dismembered body.

Mrs. Dunkel, whose oft-repeated claim that she was not in love with her son-in-law is taken skeptically by investigators, related the morbid, sordid story of the killing without any visible show of emotion.

"Evelyn and I talked about getting rid of Ervin as far back as last May," she told Assistant State's Attorneys Francis T. McCurrie and Irwin Clorfene. "Our plans were laid carefully.

Victim Lured Into Trap.

"Wednesday a week ago she told me everything was ready. We then went into the details of the plot. All I had to do was to get Ervin around to Evelyn's flat on Barry avenue. I asked him to meet me Friday evening there. Ervin said that he would have to work late. I knew he was going to visit Josephine McKinley, the girl he wanted to marry, but I told him it didn't matter when he came.

"It was about 1 a. m. Saturday when he got there. Nobody else was there but Evelyn and myself. I knew that Ervin always went to sleep after a few drinks. We had two bottles of whisky and we gave him four highballs. Sure enough, he passed out. Then Evelyn told me to get out. 'I'll take care of everything else,' she said. I went away."

How Mrs. Smith then went about the gruesome business of murder was related to Mrs. Dunkel [so her story ran] when the two women met again Saturday evening in the home of Mrs. Dunkel's niece, Olive Knudsen of 1136 Addison street.

"Evelyn said she took a bottle of ether, poured some on a cloth and held it under Ervin's nose," the mother-in-law said. "Then she took a piece of rope and knotted it around his neck. She pulled on this rope until she knew he was dead. Next she put the body in a closet and left it there. She said she was going to get rid of the body by throwing it in the lake that night."

How Body Was Disposed Of.

On Monday, continued Mrs. Dunkel, she learned from Mrs. Smith how the disposal of the body was carried out. The women had met at Ashland and Belmont avenues, Mrs. Dunkel to pay and Mrs. Smith to collect the $100 on account.

"Evelyn told me that she had called in Jung to get him to help," declared Mrs. Dunkel. "But there was a party in the Barry avenue building and people were passing the door of the apartment so frequently that they gave up the idea of the lake.

"Jung went out and got a sharp knife and a saw.

"With these Evelyn cut off the legs. She said she did it all herself, with Jung just looking on. They packed the legs in a little trunk Evelyn had bought from the Salvation Army. Jung borrowed a car and they put the body, all wrapped in a blanket, and the trunk in this car and drove away with them. That was about 3:30 Sunday morning." The legs, Mrs. Dunkel said she was told, were left at a spot perhaps ten miles from where the torso was found. She did not know the place, she added.

Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan was frankly scornful of the story. He did not believe, he asserted, that the Smith woman, slim and not too strong, had carried out the work of amputation alone.

Ether Arouses Suspicion.

The use of ether, he reasoned, sounded like the act of a person familiar with hospital procedure—and Mrs. Dunkel was employed in the linen room at Passavant hospital.

A few hours after receiving the $100 of blood money, Mrs. Smith left the Barry avenue flat. Where she went is a mystery, but she did not leave Chicago immediately. On Wednesday morning appeared in print the story of the finding of the torso in the swamp. That same morning Mrs. Dunkel underwent an operation for tonsil removal in the Passavant hospital. And to her sick room, soon after noon, went Mrs. Smith.

"Have you seen the papers?" said Mrs. Smith to Mrs. Dunkel.

Mrs. Dunkel shook her head. Her throat was too sore to permit talking. A nurse entered the room and suggested that it was too soon after the tonsilectomy to have her worried or made nervous.

The other woman said good-by. "Harry and I are going to New York till this thing blows over," she whispered. "Better come along, too."

Escape Blocked by Police.

Mrs. Dunkel couldn't go then, and before the day was over a policeman was watching to see that she did not escape. In a subsequent search the police found some of Evelyn Smith's garments in a laundry at 3251 Armitage avenue, owned partly by Harry Jung.

Willie Quan, a Chinese laundryman with a plant at 5149 South Halsted street, brought in the report about the automobile. Jung, he said, borrowed his car on Saturday and returned it at 9 a. m. Sunday. On Wednesday, about 9 p. m., Jung went back to Quan, accompanied by Mrs. Smith, and again borrowed the car. Quan has not seen it since.

He was accompanied by an attorney, Carlyle S. Guibor, and an interpreter when he reported to Prosecutor McCurrie. It was not until noon yesterday, Quan said, that he heard the name of Jung had been involved in the murder mystery. He professed to be anxious to assist in finding the missing Chinese.

The police in New York and other cities with large Chinese colonies have been asked to search for Jung and Mrs. Smith, and the leaders of the race in Chicago have been requested to aid.

Other Chinese in Custody.

In custody the police have Francis Jung and Jeong Fung Wong [George Jung], brothers of the missing man, and two of their helpers in the Jung laundries at 3251 and 3566 Armitage avenue. An application for a writ of habeas corpus in behalf of Jeong Fung Wong was filed yesterday and a hearing on it will be held before Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Criminal court today. The four men have denied knowing anything about the crime.

All the statements made by Jeong Fung Wong tended to substantiate the recital of Mrs. Dunkel. He said that his brother Harry was sleeping in the laundry at 3566 Armitage avenue early Saturday morning and was awakened by a Checker cab driver, who told him: "Your wife is sick and wants you to come see her."

Harry Jung dressed and went away with the cabman, Jeong said. This same informant said that Mrs. Smith had posed as the wife of Jung for several years and that Jung had admitted they were married. However, Jeong added, he had always doubted the story because he had not been invited to a wedding or to a party in celebration of it.

A police squad last night visited a rooming house at 134 West Ontario street and learned that Jung and the woman had been there Monday and Tuesday nights. In their room was discovered a trunk in which was a marriage certificate showing that Evelyn Smith and Jung Moy Gee, apparently the same man as Harry Jung, were wed in Crown Point, Ind., on Nov. 19, 1932.

Reënacts Part of Tragedy.

Early last evening Chief of Detectives Sullivan and Capt. Thomas Duffy of the Sheffield avenue police district, accompanied by Prosecutor Clorfene, took Mrs. Dunkel to the Barry avenue flat, where she pointed out the position in which she left Lang to Mrs. Smith. Coroner's Chemist Clarence W. Muehlberger took possession of several rugs in the furnished apartment and also made scrapings on the floor of the closet, all to be tested for blood stains.

During the day there were numerous reports that Evelyn Smith is already under arrest. Charles Jensen, who resides in the building at 731 Barry avenue, said that she was in her first floor apartment with Chief of Detectives Sullivan and Mrs. Dunkel yesterday morning. Chief Sullivan denied this, however. Richard Carter and his wife, now lessees of the flat, said that the police were there in the morning with two women.

Police Free Three Witnesses.

Capt. Patrick O'Connell of the Town Hall station late in the afternoon released three men who had been held as witnesses in the case. They are Russell Anderson, 3817 Greenview avenue, a nephew of Mrs. Dunkel; Harold Lundell, 1841 Eddy street, and Al Atkins, 1136 Addison street.

Anderson was taken into custody after Miss McKinley, fiancée of Lang, who resides at 1333 Roscoe street, told of his car trailing her and Lang. The other two were taken into custody at the Knudsen home. The police were satisfied they knew nothing about the killing.

None of this trio, in fact, threw any light on the mystery. Two important factors that led to the forcing of admissions from Mrs. Dunkel were obtained from other sources.

$100 Mystery a Major Clew.

The first of these factors was her failure to explain what she had done with $100 that she drew Monday from a safety box she and Lang had held jointly. She was accompanied to the box by Lang's brother, William, who had Ervin's key. The money, she told her son-in-law shortly before his death, was needed to pay an instalment on furniture. He authorized the withdrawal and instructed his brother to allow it.

William Lang was told the same story. But after his brother was dead he became suspicious, investigated and learned that the money was not paid to the furniture company and, also, that no payment was due.

It was this money that was paid to Evelyn Smith, and Mrs. Dunkel could not explain where it went until she told the truth.

"Had Erv Bumped Off."

The second important disclosure, according to the police, was made by Lincoln Park Policeman George Anderson, a brother of Russell. He is said to have reported that his aunt went to him on Monday to tell him she needed money to get out of town; that she had "had Erv bumped off."

At the time, supposedly, Anderson dismissed the statement as a mental lapse, but after the arrest of Mrs. Dunkel gave the whole conversation to the investigators. Anderson has since denied making such a statement, and it has not been officially disclosed.

One of the most puzzling features of the entire case is the motive of the mother-in-law. She has asserted a belief that Lang killed her daughter Mallie last December so that he might have a free hand in carrying on affairs with other women. Also, she declared, she kept a close watch on him to prevent him "running around too much at night."

Expensive Cards Exchanged.

The charge involving the death of Mallie Lang is apparently of recent development. Last January Mrs. Dunkel sent her son-in-law an expensive birthday card, and on Valentine's day she received an elaborate and expensive card from him. The two had lived together at 1212 Waveland avenue.

First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert Crowley said that there were no indications that Mrs. Dunkel suffers from any mental derangement. She shows almost normal emotions, he asserted, and at times weeps. She has shown no particular vindictiveness against any one. Dr. Harry Hoffman, alienist for the Criminal court, has not yet talked to her, and Mr. Crowley said there was no need for his services.

Mrs. Dunkel told interviewers that she was feeling better since she told her story.

"Don't you feel sorry?" she was asked.

"I'm not quite sure," was her reply.

Father, 81, Enlists Police in Making Son, 61, Behave

Indianapolis, Ind., July 12.—(AP)—Ben Romer, 81, hailed a police squad today and said: "My son's in a tavern over there. It's 9:30 now and time he was home. He's been staying out several nights." The officers, looking for a young man, found John Romer, 61, slightly intoxicated. In court today John was given a fine of $5 and costs and a thirty day jail sentence.

GRIEF AND HATE REIGN IN HOME OF LANG'S PARENTS

Two passions, grief and hatred, reigned alternately yesterday in the unpretentious home at 3729 Greenview avenue of Jacob and Margaret Lang.

The grief was for the loss of their youngest son, Ervin. Hatred was for Mrs. Blanche Dunkel, who came to their home Saturday, smiling and gay, knowing, according to her story to the police, that Ervin was dead.

"She came over like a good friend," said gray-haired Mrs. Lang. "She said Ervin didn't come home on Friday night. She ate supper with us and stayed all night. She said, 'O, I guess Erv is out with some girl. He is no good.'"

Jacob Lang, 70 years old, would say nothing. For two days now he has not left his bedroom, grieving there alone.

Meanwhile, playing gayly through the rooms, informed neither of the death of Lang nor of the arrest of Mrs. Dunkel, was little Bobby Meyers, the 6 year old son by a former marriage of Ervin Lang's late wife, Mallie, the daughter of Mrs. Dunkel. Mallie died last December.

"Bobby doesn't miss them yet," said Ervin's brother, William, "but we don't want him to know it at all."

EVELYN SMITH'S DOINGS A PUZZLE TO FLAT TENANTS

Mystery Callers and Late Hours Revealed.

BY MARCIA WINN.

For three weeks before her precipitate departure last Monday afternoon, Mrs. Evelyn Smith, blonde chorine laundress sought as the slayer of Ervin Lang, was the "mystery woman" of 731 Barry avenue.

This was due, according to gossipy tenants of the three-story flat building, to the fact that although Mrs. Smith herself was rarely visible, her nocturnal callers always were.

"She never had any company until about midnight," said Mrs. Oscar Linder, tenant of the adjoining apartment, as she rocked her six months old baby yesterday. "At midnight there was always a crowd; all men."

Most frequent callers of all, Mrs. Linder said, were a Chinese, whom Mrs. Smith addressed as "Pete," a hunchback, and a woman, who, other neighbors said, resembled Mrs. Blanche Dunkel, mother-in-law of Lang.

Arrived in Big Rush.

"Mrs Smith came in here in a hurry three or four weeks ago," explained Mrs. Ethel Bucke, manager of the apartment building, "and laid her money down flat. She had that Chinese with her, and said they had been married for 11 years, but that he would just be in town during the week-ends."

But aside from three occasions when she borrowed a frying pan, Mrs. Smith addressed no other tenants until Monday when she suddenly called "Junior" Linder, 6 years old, into the dingy, blue-draped flat she rented, poured a handful of change into his hand and sent him out to buy "all the papers."

"I wondered a little about it then," Mrs. Linder said, "for she always worked during the day. I wondered why she was home. I thought maybe she was sick, until after lunch she came running down into the basement where I was washing. She was terribly nervous and her hair was all messed up.

"'I'm moving,' she told me. 'My husband's bought a new laundry in Chinatown. You give my key to Mrs. Bucke'—and she pushed the key into my hand."

A few minutes later, Mrs. Linder said, Mrs. Smith ran out of the building, called to a man on a truck parked on the other side of the street to come get her small trunk and bags. Then, hatless and wearing a red knit dress, she jumped into a cab and was gone.

Mention of "Evelyn Smith" brought a faint sparkle of life yesterday into the eyes of 21 year old Josephine McKinley, 1332 Roscoe street, fiancée of the slain Lang.

Mysterious Chinese Caller.

"Why, that's funny," she exclaimed. "About three weeks ago Ervin told me about some person named Evelyn. He and Mrs. Dunkel were sitting at home [1212 Waveland avenue] when some one rang the bell. He went to the door, and a Chinese was there. The man asked for 'Evelyn.' Ervin told him he must have the wrong address and shut the door in his face."

About a week later, Miss McKinley said, Ervin went home one night to find this same Chinese in Mrs. Dunkel's apartment, engaged in earnest conversation with her.

"The only reason he mentioned it to me," the girl said, "was because he thought it funny. 'Why, look at the kind of friends she has,' was what he said to me. He was laughing about it."

Miss McKinley, who has been on the verge of collapse since the discovery of Lang's death, repeated her statements that Mrs. Dunkel was in love with Lang, and had asked him to marry her.

"And I'm just about convinced now," she added, "that one day last April when Erv became ill after he had eaten a meal Mrs. Dunkel had prepared that she was trying to poison him then. He was never sick otherwise."

KIDNAPING TRIAL OF YOUNG WIFE NEARS A CLOSE

U. S. Attacks Her Lone Defense.

Tacoma, Wash., July 12.—(AP)—United States District Attorney J. Charles Dennis closed his argument to the jury in the Margaret Thulin Waley kidnap case today by urging her conviction as a warning "to the underworld that the people will not stand for kidnaping." Judge Edward E. Cushman then adjourned court until 10 a. m. tomorrow, when he will instruct the jury. The government's argument had been opened by Assistant District Attorney Owen P. Hughes.

John F. Dore, chief defense counsel, made his final argument asking acquittal for Mrs. Waley after Hughes had ended.

Speaking vehemently, Dore, veteran of many legal battles, pleaded with the jury to consider the poverty, the religion in which she was raised and whether she actually aided in the kidnaping or remained passively silent.

Cites Past Life.

Dore said the fact she rode in the automobile in which Weyerhaeuser was transported did not make her guilty of aiding in his transportation, that she was more of "a nuisance than an aid on the trip," and that the jury must go into her past life and consider her age and mentality in returning a verdict.

He described Mrs. Waley as "just another fool woman who married a man to reform him. It can't be done, and they usually wind up like this."

Her age, 19, he said, was a "dangerous age," and he asked members of the jury to consider some of the things they had done at her age.

"There is no penalty too great for Harmon or Dainard," Dore said.

Dore compared her mentality with that of George Weyerhaeuser, and said he believed the boy was more intelligent and knew more than Mrs. Waley. Later he commented he had never met "any one whose stupidity is as great as this girl's."

Called Dupe of Man.

He said Mrs. Waley was "just the dupe of the man she loves," and that "she'd jump off this building if he told her to do it. She was brought up in the Mormon church, where a man's word is law." In this connection he referred to her direct testimony that she took Waley's orders because she had been taught in the Mormon church that husbands should be obeyed.

Most of Hughes' summation was devoted to emphasizing the evidence tending to show Mrs. Waley conspired with her husband and "this bad boy," the fugitive William Dainard.

Hughes said this included Mrs. Waley showing her husband and Dainard, alias Mahan, a newspaper account of the death of George's grandfather, J. P. Weyerhaeuser Sr., here May 14; of Waley dying his hair red, and of the three leaving Spokane for Seattle to "case the job."

Auto Trip Called Test.

He emphasized testimony of Ida Hoxworth who had been with the Waleys and Dainard at the Spokane house the three defendants are later alleged to have used as a "hideout house," and of Mrs. Waley leaving two different forwarding addresses in the name "Von Metz, one being Waley's mother's home here" and the other being "general delivery, Butte, Mont."

It was at Butte that Dainard disappeared after abandoning an automobile and $15,155 of the ransom money.

Hughes also recalled that Mrs. Waley accompanied Dainard on an automobile ride to Yakima immediately prior to taking George to Spokane. Mrs. Waley testified they went to Yakima only to get dinner.

Unidentified Girl Killed by Train at Normal, Ill.

Bloomington, Ill., July 12.—(AP)—An unidentified girl was killed by a southbound Alton road mail train tonight at a footpath crossing in Normal, a short distance from the University of Illinois campus. The body was so badly mangled that identification was expected to depend largely upon the clothing, which included a polka dot dress and white shoes and stockings.

ALFRED DREYFUS IS DEAD; MARTYR OF TREASON CASE

PARIS, July 12.—(AP)—Death tonight wrote the final chapter in the famed, fantastic "Dreyfus Case."

Though nightmares of the four tortured years he spent on Devil's Island for alleged treason to France harried him in his last months, Lieut. Col. Alfred Dreyfus died peacefully, members of his family about him. He was 75 years old. His funeral was set tentatively for Sunday.

The bitter, world-wide controversy that Dreyfus' imprisonment stirred at the turn of the century was in sharp contrast with the almost hermitlike seclusion of his latter years.

Captive on Devil's Island.

Convicted of selling France's military secrets to Germany and held captive on Devil's Island until the storm of protest moved the French president to pardon him, he lived through three tense periods of Franco-German relations—the first, the time of his own case at the turn of the century; the second, the world war in which he served for France; the third, the present dispute over the reich's rearmament.

Dreyfus' family, Mme. Dreyfus, and his son and daughter, Pierre and Jeanne—did all they could to avoid reviving bitter memories of forty years ago, but those memories remained indelible in his mind to the last. Another son was killed in the world war.

A young Jewish captain in the French army who served on the general staf, Dreyfus, in 1894, was convicted in secret court martial of selling military secrets to Germany. Four years later such was the commotion his alleged "framing" created, he was brought back from the penal island and tried again. Again he was convicted, to the world's astonishment, and sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment, but he won a pardon.

Proceedings Annulled.

Eight more years—during which bombs were thrown, duels fought and families split asunder over the question of his guilt or innocence—were needed fully to vindicate him.

The Supreme court annulled all the proceedings and proclaimed his innocence, the French parliament restored Dreyfus to the army which immediately promoted him to major and the cross of Chevalier of the Legion of Honor was given him.

It was not enough, however, to wipe out the memory of his disgrace. He went into seclusion, emerging when the war began, to volunteer for service. He commanded one of the forts guarding Paris, and afterward resumed his cloistered existence, emerging only once more to plead for clemency for Sacco and Vanzetti.

Four years ago Dreyfus, steadily growing blind, suffered gland trouble. His death was ascribed to an ailment of the bladder.

His first marriage was at the age of 13.

POLICE DESCRIPTION OF EVELYN, HUNTED IN SWAMP MURDER

The following description of Evelyn Smith, former burlesque dancer, who is sought for the murder of Ervin Lang, was furnished yesterday by Sergt. Michael Ahern of the Town Hall police.

She is at least 35 years old, possibly 40. She is tall for a woman, 5 feet 8 or 9 inches, and slender, weighing approximately 130 pounds.

She has dark brown hair, a "mouthful of gold teeth," and affects mannish clothing—favoring tweeds and suits—and always wears low heeled shoes. Sometimes she wears glasses.

She is known as a "hard worker," and has been employed in laundries, clubs, hotels, and hospitals as laundress and keeper of the linens, once working at the Medinah club.

Sergt. Ahern said that the woman seldom lived in one place for more than a week. While in Chicago she lived in the area bounded by Grand avenue, La Salle street, Division street, and Lake Shore drive. Her switch to 731 Barry avenue, the last known address, apparently was made "for a purpose," the sergeant said.

ROSEN AND WIFE REPORTED NAMED IN 3 TRUE BILLS

Joseph Rosen, 25 years old, and his wife, Jean, 23 years old, who are alleged to have taken loot valued at $30,000 in apartment burglaries in Chicago, were reported named in three true bills charging burglary voted yesterday by the Cook county grand jury. Bond of $75,000 each was set.

Evidence was presented to the grand jury immediately after the Rosens had been arraigned in the Felony court. Although the courtroom was crowded with complainants, the three best cases were selected for grand jury action.

Polly Adler, so called vice queen of New York City, was arrested there yesterday after she had claimed a $1,200 money order sent by Rosen. She held that the money was in payment of a loan, and was released in court when Chicago police did not press the action against her.

COURT REFUSES TO DELAY TRIAL OF RAPE KILLER

Peoria, Ill., July 12.—(AP)—Circuit Judge Joseph E. Daily today refused to grant any delay in the trial of Gerald Thompson, 25 year old Peoria mechanic, charged with having raped and slain Mildred Hallmark, 19, in a cemetery here.

The judge ruled Thompson must answer to the charge on July 22, the date set when the dark haired young defendant first was arraigned.

Thompson's attorney, Ben Thurman, argued that to bring Thompson to trial this month would not allow the defense adequate time to prepare, and claimed too that public feeling was so high against the prisoner that he could not be given a fair trial.

"I doubt if sentiment would be changed by September," said the judge.

Shot in Neck When He Resists Pair of Bandits

Dwight Darling, 36 years old, 4428 North Lincoln street, was shot in the neck last night by one of two bandits who robbed him of $20 and his automobile, while he was parked in front of the home of a girl friend, Mabel Herrin, at 2707 North Talman avenue. Darling had surrendered his money, but when the gunmen forced him and Miss Herrin out of the automobile he attempted to resist them. A bullet fired by one man inflicted a flesh wound in the neck. The robbers escaped in the car.

DETROIT SLAYER AND THREE GIRLS HELD FOR TRIAL

Detroit, Mich., July 12.—[Special.]—Following their examination this afternoon before Judge Thomas M. Cotter, William Schweitzer, alias William Lee Ferris, Florence and Loretta Jackson, sisters, and Jean Miller were ordered held for trial for the murder of Howard Carter Dickinson, New York attorney and nephew of Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes.

Schweitzer has confessed that he and the three women killed Dickinson after luring him to Rouge park. Robbery was their motive.

In his confession, made ten days ago, Schweitzer said he shot Dickinson twice—first through the body and the second shot through his head—"to make sure he was dead and couldn't tell."

EXPECT COURT'S ORDER TODAY ON CLEANING PRICES

Independents' Attorney Plans Quick Appeal.

Circuit Judge Benjamin P. Epstein is expected to sign an order today fixing prices for the cleaning of garments in Chicago. The order, which the court had prepared on Thursday, is in the form of a permanent injunction restraining 23 independent cleaners and dyers from charging less than 90 cents for cleaning a garment called for and delivered, and less than 75 cents for cleaning a garment for the cash and carry trade.

The injunction was asked in a petition of the Cleaning and Dyeing Plant Owners' association of Chicago, in which it was alleged that cutting of prices by the independents was ruinous to the industry.

Decision Will Be Appealed.

When Judge Epstein indicated on Thursday that he would grant the injunction, Attorney Irving Breakstone, representing most of the 23 defendant concerns, declared an appeal would be taken to the Illinois Appellate court immediately after Judge Epstein signs the order.

Judge Epstein's order follows closely the recommendations made to him in a report last month by his master-in-chancery, William R. Swissler. One variation is in the price differential. Swissler, after hearing evidence for more than three months, had recommended a 10 cent differential for cash and carry work. The judge, however, expressed the opinion that cash and carry customers should be given a 15 cent discount.

Several months ago Circuit Judge Stanley H. Klarkowski issued a similar injunction. The Appellate court dissolved the restraining order, holding that it had been granted without a hearing on the merits of the case. The matter then was remanded to Judge Epstein, who referred it to Master Swissler.

Similar Decision a Year Ago.

If the Appellate court sustains Judge Epstein's proposed ruling, it will be the second time in the history of the state that the high court has allowed price fixing in a service trade. A year ago Judge William H. McSurely of the Appellate court handed down an opinion upholding an injunction granted by Circuit Judge Harry M. Fisher restraining 17 wet wash laundries from cutting prices below those agreed upon in the by-laws of the Chicago Laundry Owners' association. That injunction prohibited the defendants from charging less than 4½ cents a pound for wet wash laundry.

Judge John M. O'Connor concurred in Judge McSurely's decision, which was based on the theory that price fixing in a service trade—such as laundering—is not a violation of anti-trust laws. Cleaning and dyeing also has been classified as a service trade in legal decisions.

Would Make Public a Litigant.

In an opinion dissenting from the position taken by Judge McSurely and Judge O'Connor, Judge David Matchett, the third member of the Appellate court, held that the injunction should be dissolved on the grounds that the public, which is affected by any ruling in the laundry trade, should have been made a party to the litigation. The public was not a party in the cleaners and dyers case before Judge Epstein.

Attorney George Lavin, representing the Cleaning and Dyeing Plant Owners' association, yesterday explained some of the legal precedents he had cited to Judge Epstein in support of his petition.

"Courts of equity always have restrained unfair competition," Lavin said. "The only remedy which could apply to the situation was the fixing of a minimum price. In Corpus Juris it is stated that equity has jurisdiction in a proper case to protect one from unfair competition, usually by injunction against a continuance of the wrong."

Iowa Case Is Cited.

Quoting an Iowa case in which the court was asked to decide what was fair competition, Lavin read part of the ruling:

"Every man has the legal right to advance himself before his fellows . . . but the law will not permit him to masquerade in the guise of honest competition solely for the purpose of injuring his neighbor. The law will not permit him to simulate that which is right for the sole purpose of protecting himself in the doing of that which palpably is wrong."

The recent trend of judicial decisions and legislative enactments, Lavin said, recognizes "the legality and necessity for reasonable price fixing and elimination of trade abuses, below cost selling and destructive competition as essential to public welfare and industrial stabilization."

Mitchell said that his next appointment would be a white youth.

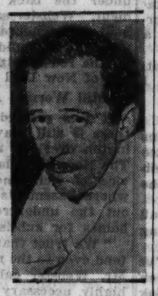
SEEKS TO SALVAGE COAL AT BOTTOM OF LAKE 43 YEARS

Diver Hunts Owner of $35,000 Load.

Frank P. Blair of the Coronado hotel, 1061 Rosemont avenue, a diver, was seeking yesterday the owner of 3,000 tons of coal which has been at the bottom of Lake Michigan for 43 years. Blair plans to salvage the coal, valued at $35,000, if he is able to get clear title to it.



FRANK P. BLAIR.

Blair is the diver who found the typewriter used by Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold in writing notes in the Bobby Franks murder case. The typewriter, which had been thrown into the yacht harbor in Jackson park, was an important bit of evidence in bringing about the convictions in the case. Blair declined yesterday to tell the exact location of the coal to be salvaged.

Steamer Lost in 1892.

The diver said that he has located the steamer W. H. Gilcher, which was carrying the coal and which vanished with a crew of ten men under Capt. L. H. Weeks in October, 1892. Lake sailors believed at the time that it went down in rough weather, but they had no idea where it foundered.

The Gilcher, built in Cleveland in 1891, cost $200,000, and was one of the largest lake ships of its time. It was owned by Morro, Bartow & Gilchrist of Cleveland. A sister ship sank in Lake Superior in August, 1892.

A fisherman friend of Blair happened upon the wreckage some years ago and marked it with his nets. Two years ago he approached Blair with a salvage proposition.

Shipping Firm Now Extinct.

The diver learned the coal was shipped by Cox Brothers of Buffalo, a firm now extinct. He was unable, however, to ascertain the name of the insurance company which insured the coal, and which, for this reason, is the apparent owner.

Under admiralty law Blair may advertise his salvage plan for a specified time. Then, if there are no claimants, he will be free to raise and sell the coal. Blair estimated that the cost of salvage would approximate $2,500.

Workmen have completed the solarium at the hospital and now are building the isolation ward and new fences in front of the building.

Files Claim Against CCC Over Her Son's "Nostalgia"

Washington, D. C., July 12.—(AP)—Civilian Conservation corps officials are chuckling over this one. A young CCC worker was returned to his North Carolina home to recuperate from "acute nostalgia," which means simply severe homesickness. Informed by letter of her son's ailment his indignant mother filed claim against the corps for damages declaring her boy never had trouble with nostalgia until he left home.

Senator Couzens Makes Progress After Operation

Rochester, Minn., July 12.—(AP)—The condition of Senator James Couzens of Michigan continued tonight to "improve satisfactorily," his physician said. The senator underwent a bladder operation at the Mayo clinic yesterday and will be confined in a hospital for a fortnight.

FOUND DEAD IN BED.

Emil Anderson, 70 years old, was found dead in his bed yesterday in his room at 208 North Halsted street. Death apparently was due to a heart attack.

PRAISE MAYOR'S PLANS TO SPEED WEST SIDE TRAFIC

The West Central association yesterday addressed an open letter to Mayor Kelly, thanking him for action which will open Jackson boulevard and Monroe street as one-way thoroughfares to carry the heavy trafic between the loop and the west side. The mayor's proposal is now before the city council's committee on trafic, and it is expected that it will be approved at the next regular meeting of the council.

The letter from the association was signed by Charles A. Snyder, its executive vice president.

When he announced the Jackson and Monroe trafic proposal, Mayor Kelly pointed out that the plan would afford immediate relief, but that it would not take the place of superhighways planned to promote trafic safety and relieve congestion on the west side and throughout the city.

WOMAN AWARDED $60,916 IN SUIT CHARGING FRAUD

A judgment of $60,916 was awarded by default yesterday to Miss Eugenia E. Gallasch of Red Wing, Minn., who sued in federal court charging that Henry Ullrich, former Oak Park realty man, had defrauded her. The award was given by Judge John P. Barnes. In her bill of complaint, filed May 7, Miss Gallasch charged that several years ago Ullrich gained her confidence and induced her to turn valuable property and securities over to him for reinvestment.

Henry C. Lytton, president of The Hub, Henry C. Lytton & Sons store, will be 89 years old today. Mr. Lytton is now on a vacation at Roslyn Heights, Long Island, N. Y., and employés of the store yesterday telegraphed their congratulations on his birthday. He is in good health and will return to take active charge of The Hub in the fall. On his 70th birthday Mr. Lytton retired from the management of the store, but took up the reins again two years ago when his son, George, died.

MRS. BLACKLIDGE HOPES NEW LAW TO SET HER FREE

Nottingham Wolfs Chop and Bewails His Luck.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge, former collector of internal revenue in Chicago, turned a chop on the gas range in her flat at 8125 Cottage Grove avenue yesterday, wiped her face on a clean hand towel, and said happily: "Maybe that new bill Gov. Horner signed Thursday will mean the beginning of the end of my troubles."

She alluded to the bill repealing the Illinois statute which permitted a person who won a judgment in a civil suit containing a malice count to jail the defendant if he or she did not pay the amount of the judgment. Although the repealer is not retroactive, it was thought the death of the old law under which she was convicted might indirectly affect the case of Mrs. Blacklidge, who has served a total of 31 days of a possible six months she could be forced to serve in the county jail.

Wages Long Court Fight.

She was convicted by a jury in January, 1934, of the theft of the affections of Policeman Norman E. Nottingham, driver of a patrol wagon for the Grand Crossing station, and ordered to pay $7,500 to Mrs. Suzanne Nottingham, the policeman's wife. Mrs. Blacklidge now is out on bond pending efforts to avoid the consequences of the judgment through a bankruptcy petition she filed in federal court.

Attorney Herbert A. Wetzel lost the fight he waged in the state courts in behalf of Mrs. Blacklidge. On Thursday the United States Circuit court of Appeals took under advisement Mrs. Blacklidge's appeal from a ruling by Federal Judge William H. Holly in dismissing a habeas corpus proceeding.

"Yes, this looks as though it would be the end of Myrtle's troubles," said Policeman Nottingham, one of two men roomers in Mrs. Blacklidge's neat flat the third flight up over a delicatessen.

Rough on the Asparagus.

He attacked the chop Mrs. Blacklidge had prepared and took a large, savage bite of asparagus. "But it isn't the end of mine. Not with that wife of mine. She's not through making trouble for me yet."

"Do you think you and Mrs. Blacklidge can arrange matters in time so that you can be married?"

"That's just something that never occurred to us," said Mrs. Blacklidge after he departed for wagon duty. "Norman and I are just friends. He's only 39. Maybe if his wife ever does divorce him he might find a younger woman he'd be happier with.

"I know what I wish I could do if I ever get free of this mess. I'd like to get me a little farm out west and run it. I was brought up on a farm and say, can I milk cows?"

"I'll probably stay here, though," she added, and explained that Nottingham would not want to leave the Chicago police department, where he has a record of twelve years' service.

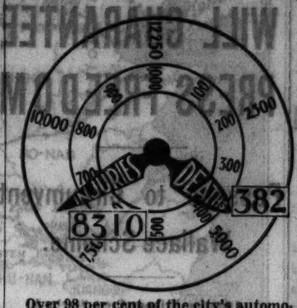
"I don't feel bitter against Mrs. Nottingham, the way Norman does," she said. "I think she just picked on me because she thought I had money.

"I'm not the first girl to go with Norman since his marriage. There wasn't any love there for her to lose."

"I get a little dressmaking to do," Mrs. Blacklidge went on. "I made some collar and cuff sets recently. Sat up all night more than one night to get them out on time. And here I used to make $7,500 a year as collector of internal revenue."

THE MASSACRE

Chicago's 1935 Trafic Toll



Over 98 per cent of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

MOTOR CARS KILL 2 CHILDREN AND INJURE ANOTHER

Boy and Girl, Both 8, Are Victims.

Two children were killed and another was seriously injured by automobiles in Chicago yesterday.

Ruth Johns, 8 years old, 3515 South Paulina street, was fatally injured when she walked from behind a street car at 3551 Ashland avenue into the path of an automobile driven by James Morton, 42 years old, 10852 Prospect avenue. Morton surrendered to police after taking the girl to the Little Company of Mary hospital.

Second Child in Family Killed.

Thomas Dacey, 8 years old, 140 West 73d street, died last night in the St. Bernard hospital of injuries incurred when he ran into the side of an automobile driven by Wilbur Franklyn, 23 years old, 6847 South Park avenue, at 73d street and Vincennes avenue. The child's mother, Mary, told Englewood police that another of her children, Marie, 10 years old, was killed by a truck at 59th street and Halsted street ten years ago this summer.

Albert Vanden Burgh, 5 years old, 6829 South Carpenter street, was seriously hurt at 69th and Morgan streets when struck by a machine driven by Mrs. Gladys Russell, 30 years old, 6858 South Throop street. She took the child to the St. Bernard hospital.

County Toll Reaches 482.

The death of the two children and one other yesterday increased the Cook county automobile toll for the year to 482. Until 4 p. m. yesterday 382 had been killed within the Chicago city limits and 8,310 had been injured. The other victim yesterday:

Patrick Fitzgibbons, 60 years old, 16 South Cicero avenue. Died in the County hospital of injuries apparently caused by a hit and run automobile on July 7 in Roosevelt road near Mannheim road in Hillside.

Charles Liberty, 19 years old, who lived on a farm seven miles east of Joliet, was killed yesterday when the automobile in which he was riding was struck by a Wabash railway passenger train near New Lenox, six miles east of Joliet. The driver, George Leavitt, 22 years old, of Steger, was critically injured.

Hunt Four Escaped Inmates of Chicago State Hospital

Police were searching last night for four patients who escaped from the Chicago State hospital at Dunning, 6500 Irving Park boulevard, after they had been taken out on the lawn Thursday night. Dr. Barnet Lenchen, assistant managing officer of the institution, said the patients were not violent. The fugitives, all of Chicago, are Jacob Friedman, 36 years old; Arthur Moody, 33; Chester Lelo, 51, and George Erb, 54.

3 RAIDS FOLLOW VETO OF BILL TO LICENSE BOOKIES

In the wake of Gov. Horner's veto of the bill to license handbooks in Chicago, police staged three raids yesterday on as many alleged gambling houses, and took 32 prisoners.

Police Commissioner Allman declared the veto of the bill would have no effect on the campaign against gambling. He said every possible man is being used in the effort to suppress handbooks.

Capt. James Prendergast, supervisor of the third division, made one of yesterday's raids single-handed. He invaded an alleged handbook in the rear of a cigar store at 7456 Vincennes avenue, and arrested six men. Ira Shedler, 210 West 69th street, was named as keeper.

Harry Gold, years old, 1345 Cornelia avenue, was arrested as keeper of a gambling house at 4 West Randolph street, which was raided by Central police. Another police squad arrested six Chinese and 19 Filipinos in a raid at 427 South Clark street.

At the same time, Prof. Ernest W. Burgess of the University of Chicago, one of the supporters of the handbook bill, suggested that the licensing of gambling be submitted to the people in a constitutional amendment.

FREED ON GAMBLING CHARGE.

Samuel Sorenson, Lake Forest café owner and justice of the peace, was freed yesterday by Judge of the Press William O'Neil from a charge of operating a gambling machine in his café.

UTILITIES LOBBY SPENDS $301,000 IN FEW MONTHS

Senatorial Quiz Marked by Record Raid.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—With all the zeal and fanfare, theatrical raiding of headquarters, and bullying of witnesses that make a senate investigation what it is, Senator Hugo L. Black [Dem., Ala.] opened his lobby inquiry today while the headlines from the house side were waning but the subject still was warm.

Appointed late yesterday, the committee began hearing witnesses this morning after spending only five minutes in executive session to map a course of procedure. Witnesses from the committee of public utility executives were summoned on five minutes' notice, and it transpired that their headquarters was raided last night and all records seized.

Utilities Spend $301,000.

From today's witnesses the senate committee ascertained that the utility companies had spent a lot of money—$301,000 since February—had broadcast attacks on the Wheeler-Rayburn public utility bill, talked with members of congress, flooded the press with material and, in general, "did everything we could in the exercise of our constitutional right of petition."

There was no evidence, not even a suggestion, however, that members of congress were blackmailed or bribed, which might be the "power trust" equivalent of charges made in the house hearing that Thomas Corcoran, White House lobbyist, threatened to stop work on the Passamaquoddy project unless Representative Ralph Brewster of Maine voted for the "death sentence."

In this respect the opening session was a failure, for administration leaders had hoped to counteract the unsavory disclosures of White House lobbying made in the house.

Black Well Pleased.

Senator Black, however, appeared to be well satisfied with the fact that $300,000 was spent, and no opportunities were missed to twist bits of testimony into sinister, if not diabolical, plots.

The senator, a former prosecuting attorney, has had experience in the inquisition business, for he was chairman of the ocean and air mail contract inquiry, which resulted in Postmaster General Farley's summary cancellation of all air mail contracts. Some senators believe he is somewhat envious of reputations made by such terrifying figures as the late Senator Tom Walsh, Ferdinand Pecora, who got a judgeship out of it, and Samuel Seabury of New York.

Mr. Black rode into the senate in 1926 as a Ku Kluxer on the coat tails of former Senator Tom Heflin, and then, when they wrote Heflin out of the party for bolting in the Hoover-Smith campaign, Black turned against him.

Gadsden Chief Witness.

The chief witness today was Philip H. Gadsden of Philadelphia, chairman of the committee of public utility executives, an organization representing 18 or 19 holding companies, with headquarters in the Mayflower hotel. Mr. Gadsden said his organization had spent $151,000 from its Washington headquarters, which amount was contributed by the holding companies at the rate of one-half cent per meter in the system controled by each.

In addition to this sum, another $50,000 has been assessed and now is available, but has not been spent, he testified. Moreover, the Edison Electrical institute, the Electrical Trade association, has put up $150,000 which has been divided between the New York law firms of Sullivan & Chomwell and Simpson, Thatcher & Bartlett. A Richmond, Va., attorney, T. Justin Moore, has been retained, but has submitted no bill.

Denies Social Entertainment.

Mr. Gadsden stated frankly that he and members of his committee talked with members of congress, urging them to vote against the Wheeler-Rayburn bill, but denied that any member of congress was ever "entertained socially."

"We have spent a lot of money, but we spent it openly and aboveboard," he declared. "There has been no subterfuge and we make no apology for anything we have done. Everything we sent out has our name on the letterhead."

Gadsden was asked whether he knew anything about the American Federation of Utility Investors and whether his organization contributed to its support. He explained that it was an independent organization of stockholders, who contributed from $1 up, was headed by Dr. Hugh S. Magill of Chicago and received no support whatsoever from any utility company.

"Are you a member of the Women Investors of America, Inc.?" Senator Black asked.

"No, I wish I were," said the witness.

Tells About Publicity.

Burnham Carter, a representative of the New York publicity firm of Ivy Lee and T. J. Ross company, said he handled all the newspaper and magazine publicity for the committee, as well as preparing memoranda for members of congress and others interested. The only members he could remember having supplied with data were Mrs. Florence P. Kahn [Rep., Cal.] and Representative Jennings Randolph [Dem., W. Va.].

When Mrs. Kahn's name was mentioned Senator Lynn J. Frazier [Rad., N. D.] leaned over and whispered to Senator Black:

"She made a speech against it on the floor of the house."

"Did you write that speech?" Carter was asked:

"No, I just supplied data," he replied.

"Was it before or after she made her speech?"

"It was before."

They went through the same procedure then with respect to Representative Randolph's speech.

The third witness was A. C. Oliphant, who said he ran an "information service" for the Edison Electrical Institute, receiving around $18,000 a year, including expenses, and for several other concerns, including the Middle West Utilities company. These paid him $100 or $125 each a month, he said. Oliphant said he supplied only factual information about what was going on in Washington, and saw no congressmen.

Harold F. McCormick and Miss Mary Garden were responsible yesterday for some hundred inmates of the Oak Forest infirmary having a pleasant afternoon. As awed as a busful of little children, the shut-ins drove up to the Chicago theater, where they were to see, under the patronage of Mr. McCormick and Miss Garden, Grace Moore in "Love Me Forever."

As they waited in front of the theater their host drove up and disappeared modestly down the alley. Miss Garden was surrounded by twenty of her scholarship students to whom this movie was to serve as a singing lesson. Not one detail of her costume was missed by the aged spectators, who noted carefully the black veil tucked in around her titian hair, the trim dress, and the low heeled sandals revealing white stockings.

The movie-goers were selected according to their strength, as there are many people at the Oak Forest home who are too old to make the long trip into town. The party was originally conceived by Grace Moore, who hopes to promote similar movie expeditions for shut-ins all over the country. At her suggestion Miss Garden made the arrangements with Clayton F. Smith of the county board, who chose the inmates most able to come. Mr. McCormick gave his coöperation.

N. Y. SWELTERS IN HOTTEST DAY OF YEAR; 5 DIE

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—A merciless sun drove the mercury to a new high for 1935, in New York today and caused two deaths by prostration and three more by drowning. In the city and in nearby suburban communities, scores of heat victims were affected seriously enough as to require hospital treatment.

The year's high mark was registered during the evening rush hour. Thursday's high mark of 90, a record for the year, when it was recorded, was equaled at 2 p. m., and an hour later the official mercury scaled up to 91. At 5 p. m., the peak of 91.4 degrees was reached, a mark only 1.6 degrees below the hottest July 12 New York ever experienced. The record of 93 degrees was established in 1908 and the coolest July 12 occurred in 1895, when the mercury fell to 58.

Boston reported two drownings and three heat deaths that brought the total fatalities for three days of warm weather in New England to 11 before thundershowers gave relief.

The heat was general throughout the east. Philadelphia reported six deaths.

Fries Eggs on Capitol Steps.

Washington, D. C., July 12.—(AP)—"Whew." Representative Gassaway [Dem., Okla.] exclaimed as he emerged from his office today into what promised to be one of Washington's hottest days of the summer.

And being somewhat of an experimenter, he decided to see just how hot it might be.

Consequently, an hour or so later found him, shirt sleeved and perspiring, kneeling on the front steps of the capitol, breaking eggs into a nice new skillet while Newsreel cameras recorded the proceedings.

The eggs cooked to a nice turn, too, with nothing more than the open sun to heat them.

Los Angeles Surprised.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 12.—[Special.]—Traces of rain, almost without precedent in Los Angeles during the middle of the dry season, today refreshed gardens. The downfall, however, was insufficient to bring much reaction from the midsummer thermometer, which hovered around 84 for the day's maximum.

MAINE MUST RUN POWER PROJECT OR IT WILL HALT

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—Work on the $36,000,000 Passamaquoddy tidal power project will be halted if the Maine legislature at its next session does not set up an authority for administering the Quoddy after it has been completed, officials here have decided.

The lobby investigation now being conducted by Capitol hill grew out of a charge by Representative Ralph M. Brewster [Rep., Me.] that Thomas G. Corcoran, RFC counsel, had threatened work on 'Quoddy would stop if Maine representatives did not vote for the "death sentence" in the utility holding bill.

The government's insistence that Maine establish an administrative authority ante-dates the Corcoran-Brewster controversy, but witnesses before the house investigating committee have stated that the wrangle threatened to jeopardize the federal investment in the project for harnessing the tides of the Bay of Fundy.

In the case of Muscle Shoals, a ruling that the government did not have the right to sell power directly and the absence of state authority long tied up operations. Army and PWA officials, fearful that the same situation might develop at Passamaquoddy as a result of the Corcoran-Brewster dispute, have determined to hold a club over the Maine legislature and halt work if it does not act.

AAA AMENDMENT WILL GUARANTEE PRESS FREEDOM

Passage to Circumvent Wallace Scheme.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—Amendments urged to safeguard the freedom of the press from the dictatorial powers sought by Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace, in the pending omnibus AAA bill were introduced by Senator Augustine Lonergan [Dem., Conn.] today. The senator said he had been assured by the leadership that the amendments would be adopted next week.

Senator Lonergan's amendments are desired by American newspaper and magazine publishers on the advise of counsel that the pending measure would enable Wallace not only to levy processing taxes on commodities that go into newsprint, but also to control and restrict the advertising of commodities subject to his "orders" under the bill.

Courts Closed to Suits.

AAA officials scoff at these charges and call the publishers' amendments surplusage because the constitution guarantees freedom of the press. Proponents of the amendments, however, point out that the pending bill specifically closes the courts to suits, in the case of processing taxes, with such sweeping provisions that a constitutional test would not be possible.

The first amendment introduced by Senator Lonergan provides:

"No order shall be issued under this act prohibiting, regulating or restricting the advertising of any commodity or product covered hereby, nor shall any marketing agreement contain any provision prohibiting, regulating or restricting the advertising of any commodity or product covered by such marketing agreement."

Newsprint Tax Free.

The second amendment, which affects the processing tax section, is as follows: "Provided, however, that no such tax shall be levied upon the processing of any commodity that goes into newsprint."

This was deemed necessary because the bill authorizes Wallace to levy so-called "compository" taxes on any commodity that competes with the enumerated basic commodities, and specifically mentions paper. Already there is a tax on the processing of paper bags, on the theory that they compete with cotton bags.

Senator Lonergan intended to call up his amendments for action today, but the consideration of hops and fruits that are intended for canning occupied the whole day's session. Senator F. Ryan Duffy [Dem., Wis.], objected to the inclusion of hops in the list of commodities subject to Wallace's "orders," and this commodity was eliminated by a vote of 48 to 34, over the protests of Minority Leader Charles L. McNary of Oregon.

Fruits Are Eliminated.

Senator Walter F. George [Dem., Ga.] attacked the inclusion of fruits that are intended for canning and succeeded in having them stricken out. He said prices could be fixed against the will of the canners and that the provision "simply represents a desire of those who have a monopoly to continue it."

Senator George accused the pure food bureau of the department of agriculture of discriminating against Georgia peaches through branding requirements that made them unmarketable.

"The department by its unfairness, has destroyed the canning industry of my state" he said. Senator Henry F. Ashurst [Dem. Ariz.] agreed with Senator George that the agriculture department was unfair.

"No fair American will impose a tax of doubtful validity and then deny citizens the right of going into court to test the validity of the tax" he said.

COURT DISMISSES 5 YEAR STATE ST. SUBWAY BATTLE

Superior Judge James J. Kelly yesterday dismissed the State street subway assessment case, which has been in litigation since 1930, on motion of Attorney William T. Hapeman, representing objectors to the project. The city council on Wednesday had instructed the corporation counsel to agree to the dismissal action.

Judge Kelly acted on the ground that no traction ordinance is now pending to provide for the subway project, and no subway tenant is available. The original traction ordinance, passed in 1930, lapsed on April 3, 1934.

Proceedings for the widening of State street between the Chicago river and Chicago avenue, also before Judge Kelly, were continued to Oct. 8. The widening program was planned as a part of the subway project, and the city is now considering dismissal of this action also.

KORSHAK'S SUIT CHARGES SON HIT HIM IN THE EYE

Charging that on one occasion his son struck him in the eye during a business quarrel, Mendel M. Korshak, 78 years old, 1259 West 14th street, filed suit yesterday in the Circuit court against his son, Joseph E. Korshak, 3520 Lake Shore drive, asking that their partnership in the Illinois State Pawners Association, Ltd., 140 North Dearborn street, be dissolved. The bill, filed by Attorney Charles Hudson, also seeks an accounting of the concern's funds and the appointment of a receiver. Named as defendants besides the son are 52 other partners in the company. The elder Korshak alleges that the period of partnership expired last April, but that his son refuses to pay him his interest in the company.

NEW ADMINISTRATION FOR VIRGIN ISLANDS IS HINTED AT CAPITAL

Washington, D. C., July 12.—(AP)—A new administration for the Virgin Islands all the way down the line was hinted broadly tonight as the dispute over the islands went to President Roosevelt for settlement.

The talk, which for the time being took no firmer bottom than rumors that lacked official confirmation, suggested that:

Administration of the islands might be transferred from the interior to the navy or another department.

C. William Freeman of California might be named to succeed Gov. Paul M. Pearson.

Most persistent of all reports climbing out of the dispute tonight was that both Pearson and Judge T. Webber Wilson probably would leave the islands.

Mr. Roosevelt maintained strict silence on the issue which already had brought a sharp conflict between the senate territories committee and Secretary Harold F. Ickes, whose interior department now supervises the islands.

On Capitol hill some Democratic leaders predicted the furore ultimately would cause the resignation of Ickes.

PREVAILING PAY SCALE DEMANDED ON RELIEF JOBS

New York Unions Will Fight FERA Wages.

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—Organized labor in New York City decided today not to permit union men to work on relief projects for less than the prevailing wage. It reached its decision at a conference called by George Meany, president of the New York State Federation of Labor, and Joseph P. Ryan, president of the Central Trades and Labor Council of Greater New York.

In announcing the action, which, he said, was unanimous, Meany disclosed that 125 representatives of all branches of the construction and building trades industries were present at the conference.

Must Get Prevailing Wage.

"We decided that under no circumstances are any of our organizations to permit their members to work on relief work at less than the prevailing wage," said Mr. Meany. "We are so going to notify Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, works progress administrator for New York City; Mayor La Guardia, and Harry L. Hopkins, national works progress administrator.

"We are endorsing Gen. Johnson's stand on the matter and pledging him our coöperation. We are not attempting to dictate how the federal government shall handle relief; we are merely endeavoring to uphold the prevailing wage law, for which we had to fight for 50 years. Our fight is to uphold the principle of that law.

Force Pay Increases.

"There is no bottom to which the contractors will push wages down if they are permitted to do so. We have absolute proof that contractors generally have cut wages to bring them in line with work relief. Where the contractors were engaged on contracts for the state Temporary Emergency Relief administration, we reported them to relief authorities and caused them to quickly return to the prevailing wage."

Meany explained that the 125 trades unionists at the conference spoke for 145,000 union men in the metropolitan area. He said the conference decision undoubtedly would be ratified by a membership meeting of the Central Trades and Labor council Monday.

TACOMA TROOPS ROUT STRIKERS; TRUCK BURNED

Tacoma, Wash., July 12.—(AP)—A National Guard truck was burned, fists flew, and tear and nausea gas rolled late today as militiamen sought to turn back a turbulent parade of 1,000 lumber strike demonstrators marching into the mill district.

The shore patrol of navy ships in the harbor aided the guardsmen. About twenty men were arrested.

Several men were reported badly beaten in clashes which broke out when the demonstrators tried to rush guardsmen and march across a bridge into the lumber mill district.

The federal building and nearby office structures were enveloped in the gas clouds, which soon stopped the fighting along a four block area.

The guard truck caught fire during the rioting and burned before firemen arrived. Conflicting reports said the truck became ignited by a premature shot from a tear gas gun and that it had been ignited by the demonstrators.

Guardsmen, who have been here to protect workers in the lumber strike, cleared the streets.

RELIEF PAY ROLL COSTS ORDERED REDUCED 10 PCT.

$100,000 Monthly Saving Voted by Commission.

The Illinois emergency relief commission at a meeting yesterday voted to lop off 10 per cent of its city and state personnel to effect a saving of more than $100,000 on a monthly basis. The action was taken in the hope that the new works progress administration, financed by the President's five billion dollar treasure chest, will take thousands of families from the Illinois relief rolls.

The WPA overshadowed emergency relief at the meeting. Robert J. Dunham, state director of the new agency and also a member of the relief commission, discussed whether hired hands in rural areas might not be tempted to work for the government and leave farmers in the harvest fields short of labor.

"The rate paid by the WPA may be above that which the farmers will or can afford to pay," Dunham pointed out. "It looks like a bountiful crop and we should certainly encourage private employment and not compete with it. I think we should go slow on projects in the rural areas."

Rural Needs Less Acute.

Commissioner Omar H. Wright of Belvidere contended that the two kinds of work would not be comparable inasmuch as a hired hand starts in the field at sunup and oftentimes has a small house, a cow, and a garden besides his board.

Relief isn't such an acute problem in rural areas, Wright said, because "Uncle Sam has set up 16 different agencies from which a farmer can borrow on everything including his grindstone and jacknife."

This met with the approval of Commissioner George Barr of Joliet, who said relief could be suspended entirely in rural areas and no one would be hurt much.

10 Per Cent Reduction Approved.

The commission then approved the 10 per cent reduction and asked Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary, to prepare figures showing the result if all direct relief labor projects are closed by Aug. 1. Among these projects would be road construction, work on school buildings, sewers and ditches.

Another proposal to merge several administrative units in smaller counties was agreed upon.

Mr. Dunham expressed a wish to see estimates on the cost of constructing elevated highways in Chicago before making any announcement about the possibility that they be constructed with PWA funds. He indicated a doubt, however, that they would fall within the scope of the government works program.

Two long awaited reports, covering IERC purchasing methods and the purchase of $106,322 worth of lumber from the Berwyn Lumber company without competitive bidding, were received by the commission. The reports were prepared by two committees of the Purchasing Agents' Association of Chicago after several months' study.

Present Methods Approved.

Present purchasing methods were approved in the main, but the committee on this subject did not examine practices existing prior to last December, when a looser system was in operation. The committee recommended that all purchasing functions, including those of county relief administrators, be centralized under one head. It also recommended that an adequate staf and laboratory facilities be maintained to inspect all items purchased. The commission's specific approval should not be required before advertisements are placed for bids, this report stated.

As to the Berwyn Lumber company purchases, the other committee found that there had been many blameworthy practices, but that these have been discontinued. F. A. Deniston, purchasing director when the material was bought, no longer is with the commission.

"We find in most cases the Berwyn Lumber company charged the commission NRA code prices," the report stated in conclusion. "The exceptions show that the prices charged below the code more than offset the prices charged above the code. . . . For these reasons we believe that the commission has no claim against the Berwyn Lumber company."

Judge John C. Branaman sentenced Glen Kinder, 26, to six months on the farm and fined him $180 on a plea of guilty to a charge of contributing to delinquency.

George Hale, 25, pleaded guilty to the charge of carrying a gun without a permit and was fined $365.

Both men will serve out their fines at the rate of $1 per day.

HOUSE HEARING ON TAXES UPSET BY BILL'S CRITIC

Ohioan Stirs New Deal Partisans.

"relief" and sentimental social legislation.

Then the Storm Breaks.

Then the storm broke. Chairman Robert L. Doughton [Dem., N. C.] resented the reference to a rubber stamp congress.

"That's an insult to the committee," he declared angrily.

Representative Fuller agreed with him.

"Yours has been a statement belittling the administration and vilifying all New Deal legislation," he told Chandler. "What right have you to call us rubber stamps?"

"I don't think I care to withdraw the phrase," replied Chandler calmly.

"Stick to it," counseled Representative Allen T. Treadway, ranking minority member. "Many of us think it's a good phrase."

"I want nothing more with this witness," said Fuller. "I know what I think of his credibility."

Excerpts from Uproar.

Representative Thomas A. Jenkins [Rep., O.] protested that a committee member had no right to insult witnesses. In the succeeding uproar the following remarks were heard:

DOUGHTON—He's no right to call us rubber stamps! We're considering a bill here.

TREADWAY—What bill? We've been sitting a week and we don't even know what the bill is going to look like.

DOUGHTON [plaintively]—Why does he call us rubber stamps?

FULLER—We're here to get information.

TREADWAY—You've got all your information, from the White House.

DOUGHTON—He can't call us rubber stamps.

TREADWAY—I'm tired of seeing Democrats browbeat witnesses who oppose the program. I can be just as much of a roughneck as any one on this committee and henceforth I'm going to be one.

FULLER—Well, it's bad judgment of him to come in here and call us rubber stamps and demean the administration. What we want is food for thought.

DOUGHTON—Yes. He's got no right to call us rubber stamps.

TREADWAY—Whenever a witness opposes the taxes, he's insulted by the committee.

Has Previous Experience.

Treadway asked Chandler if he had ever been browbeaten by other congressional committees.

"Only by Senator Wheeler on the holding company bill," replied the Ohioan. "He rode me all through my statement."

The committee was still excited. Representatives John D. Dingell, Democrat, and Roy O. Woodruff, both of Michigan, engaged in a sharp discussion of the comparative merits of President Roosevelt and ex-President Hoover.

Representative Dingell's repeated refrain, heard above the clamor, was: "It's either bread or bullets! It's either bread or bullets!"

Chairman Doughton was still perturbed about the "rubber stamp" allegation.

"What's more, I protest against this 'must' label on legislation," he said. "Within the last week at a conference the President assured me and others that he had never labeled any bill 'must.' That is a gross misrepresentation by the press."

Chandler grinned as he replied:

"Well, I have found that the press has an uncanny way of correctly diagnosing the Washington situation."

The chairman terminated the session, remarking:

BRAIN TRUSTERS BACK DOWN; LAND PROJECT REVIVED

30 Lake County Homes to Be Rushed.

The New Dealers in Washington, apparently stung by the protests of Lake county Republicans, revived yesterday the federal subsistence homestead project in Lake county. The project regained its original planned form of 10 acre plots and homes for each of 50 families in the new orders from the capital.

More than a year ago the brain trust purchased 500 acres of good farm land at $37,500 for the back to the land movement. Then last Saturday, according to charges of William E. Webster, member of the Lake county committee guiding the project, the movement was choked to death in yards of New Deal red tape.

Closing of Office Ordered.

A curt order came from Rexford Guy Tugwell, Brain Truster No. 1, to shut up the project office and discharge the stenographer. The 30 families already enrolled and at work on plots of land apparently were to be left to shift for themselves.

Webster, O. A. Newsom, chairman of the Lake county committee, James F. Stiles and H. C. Gilkerson, all committee members and Republicans who had worked with the brain trust in the plan, immediately registered protests. Word came from Washington yesterday that the office is to be reopened, and work "begun almost immediately" on new homes for the 30 families enrolled.

20 More Families To Be Added.

Indeed, according to advices from Sub Brain Truster Dr. Carl Taylor, recently added to the intellectual batting order to mull over rural resettlement projects, the 20 other families, planned for in the original draft, also are to be enrolled. The building of homes for these families also is to "begin almost immediately."

Mr. Webster expressed satisfaction over the new order yesterday and said that he and other committee members would continue to work for the success of the subsistence project.

"We have THE TRIBUNE to thank for revocation of the order to plow under the back to the land movement," Webster said. "If our protests had not been presented to the public, the project would never have thrown off the red tape and pulled out of the bog of New Deal inefficiency."

Still Worried About Basements.

It was pointed out, however, that there is still grave concern in Washington over the matter of basements. The New Deal planners, taking the advice of gentlemen from the south, where basements are few, had ruled out the underground portion of the homes for subsistence tenants.

"We trust that our victory will extend even to the matter of basements," Mr. Webster said. "A basement is highly necessary as a place where a man can escape from his wife for a few minutes at a time—as any man knows."

Mr. Webster pointed out that the project's office, which was closed by order of Tugwell, had been used rent free in the Libertyville town hall. These quarters are no longer available, he said, and the new office will be an added expense to the project. Under the terms of the subsistence contract the tenants are to purchase the land and improvements at 3 per cent interest.

Self-Styled Austrian Baron Is Guilty of Grand Theft

Los Angeles, Cal., July 12.—[Special.]—Henry Guttmann, who formerly styled himself an Austrian "baron" and who spent his first days in Hollywood as a $22 a week secretary to motion picture actors, today was found guilty on two counts of grand theft involving expenditure of money entrusted to him by Mrs. Blanche Sewell, wealthy widow, recently mentioned in the wife swapping case. Guttmann, who was described by attorneys as a "gigilo," put Mrs. Sewell's love letters into the record and asserted the $44,000 over which she brought charges had been given to him as a love gift. Mrs. Sewell said he had promised to invest it for her.

WALMSLEY AIDS DESERT TO JOIN RANKS OF LONG

Huey Wants "People" to Oust Mayor.

New Orleans, La., July 12.—(AP)—Leaving their chief, Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, standing virtually alone, the "old regular" political ring of New Orleans ran up the white flag of truce today and Senator Huey P. Long prepared to take over the city government.

Annexation of the heretofore hostile city administration by Senator Long's powerful dictatorship appeared only a matter of days.

Walmsley "To Stick."

Facing his deserting followers in a secret caucus, Walmsley bluntly told the gathering, the majority of whom already had swung to Long, that he was "going to stick from hell to breakfast." He asserted he would continue his fight against the Louisiana "dictator" to the "very end, even if compelled to stand alone."

Details of the city's "surrender" remained to be worked out. A conference for that purpose was called between Senator Long and a committee of nine representing the majority faction of the "old regular" organization that abandoned the mayor.

During the conference Long told the committee that "it must be the people who put him [the mayor] out." The senator said he would call a session of the state legislature to address Walmsley out of office within 24 hours after the "old regulars" obtained approval of a majority of the city's voters for a petition requesting the mayor's removal.

"We are not going to put him out," Long told the committeemen. "It must be the people who put him out, not us."

Senator Long said that if the city would get an administration that "is dependable" and "an efficient bookkeeping system I think we can work things out."

Mayor Scolds Followers.

Outwardly unmoved by the sudden loss of his own organization, Mayor Walmsley told the caucus that every man who voted for the resolution demanding his resignation had "repudiated" a pledge signed by the regular Democratic organization in 1934 committing themselves to fight to a finish against Long's efforts to dominate the city.

Thirteen of Walmsley's 17 ward leaders voted for the resignation at the caucus. Several old regulars who supported the resolution said they were still in sympathy with the mayor, but acted "for the good of the party."

ITALY ENRAGED BY NEW "HOSTILE ACTS" IN AFRICA

Rome Will Protest to King of Ethiopia.

ROME, July 12.—(AP) The Italian government made ready tonight to investigate fully the circumstances of the arrest at Gondar, Ethiopia, of the wife of the Italian consul, Raffaele di Lauro, and her reported detention for two days.

Official circles indicated another vigorous protest similar to the many Italy has presented in recent months would be handed to the Ethiopian government.

The official communique, which reported also the arrest of some servants of the Italian military attaché of Addis Ababa, indicated these detentions would furnish further motives for energetic protests.

Halted by Soldiers.

However, an official spokesman declared the new incidents, like those reported to have occurred at Harrar, Ethiopia, several days ago would not stampede Italy into her campaign against Ethiopia before she felt entirely ready.

The government's announcement said Signora di Lauro was stopped by Ethiopian soldiers outside of Gondar as she was on route to Eritrea, Italian colony, and held for two days until the consulate entered protests. Likewise the Italian minister at Addis Ababa had to protest before the servants of the military attaché and an employé of the legation were freed, it was stated.

Still another incident was said to have taken place at Adowa, where 25 persons were reported arrested because they sold foodstuffs to the Italian consulate. An Ethiopian government employé also was dismissed, the communique said, because he talked to the consul. Ethiopians also were accused of stealing ten head of cattle from Italian subjects in Somaliland, which borders Ethiopia.

Pleased by Hoare's Speech.

Expressions of pleasure at the tenor of the speech of Sir Samuel Hoare, British foreign secretary, before the house of commons yesterday were mingled with denials of reports that Secretary of State Hull had sent any communication to Rome expressing America's misgivings lest there be war in Ethiopia.

Officials said Hull and Ambassador Rosso, in friendly conversations at Washington yesterday, discussed commercial questions primarily, the Italo-Ethiopian issue coming up only incidentally. These quarters said Mr. Hull made no statement whatsoever regarding possible American misgivings.

Britain Hopeful of Peace.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 12.—The reception accorded abroad to Sir Samuel Hoare's statement of British foreign policy in the house of commons yesterday is regarded here as encouraging. It is now hoped that still another attempt will be made to settle the Italo-Ethiopian dispute without recourse to war.

A special meeting of the league of nations council probably will be held to consider the dispute, but the conviction is growing that consultation between Britain, France, and Italy should take place first.

It is rumored in London that Premier Mussolini is planning to announce terms on which Italy is willing to settle the row peacefully. It is generally expected he will include a demand for political control of Ethiopia.

Joseph A. C. Avenol, secretary general of the league, left London today for Paris to see Premier Pierre Laval and the Ethiopian delegate to the league.

U. S. Flyers for Ethiopia.

GRASSE, France, July 12.—(AP)—Twelve American flyers were reported today ready to fight for Ethiopian against Italy. Hal du Berrier, former American commercial flyer, who announced he had recruited the aviators for service in the African empire, explained.

"We are willing to fight for an ideal. The Ethiopian authorities assured me there would be plenty of promotions and decorations."

Disclosing that Maj. Granville Pollock, veteran of famed Lafayette Escadrille, was helping him form the nucleus of an Ethiopian air corps, Du Berrier said he hoped the party would be "greatly strengthened" in Egypt. He declined to say when the flyers would leave for Africa or reveal the names of the other pilots.

"Black Eagle" Becomes Citizen.

ADDIS ABABA, July 12.—(AP)—Hubert Julian, the "Black Eagle of Harlem," got his chance today to do or die for Ethiopia.

The colored flyer reached here exactly two months ago and asked the right to fly and fight for Emperor Haile Selassie should Italy attack. For long his pleas fell on deaf ears. Today, however, he was granted Ethiopian citizenship and allowed to sign up.

What post he holds was not announced but he is under the orders of the director of aviation.

Once before the monocled flyer flew for the emperor. He commanded Ethiopia's air force, in fact—until he cracked up Haile Selassie's own private plane.

HULL PROCLAIMS FAITH OF U. S. IN PACT SANCTITY

Paper Still Binding, He Declares.

tell Mussolini that the United States is most devoted to the Kellogg pact and views with the utmost concern the rumpus between Italy and Ethiopia.

The Roosevelt administration finds itself in another predicament resulting from the Italo-Ethiopian imbroglio. It is being pressed by the pacifists to obtain legislation for an embargo on the export of arms to warring nations. Mr. Hull recently said that the state department always has opposed the sale of arms to belligerents, apparently overlooking the state department's tolerance of our colossal business in supplying arms to the allies in the world war while we were still neutral. Ethiopia is loudly complaining that the European nations have shut off the supply of arms to her.

Urge Bills Passed.

The African crisis also has caused the pacifists to urge passage of pending bills to alter our traditional neutrality policy in such manner as to withdraw protection of Americans and American property in zones of war. Much opposition to the bills has developed in the senate foreign relations committee which questioned Mr. Hull last Wednesday on the attitude of the President toward the proposed legislation.

Mr. Hull promised to find out and report next Wednesday.

In a veiled sort of way the ambassador was given to understand that we don't like Mussolini's designs on Ethiopia.

Mr. Hull also summoned the British and French ambassadors and made significant inquiries concerning the progress of the steps being taken to avert the African war. He gave them to understand that we are interested in lending a hand to the undertaking, though in what manner is not clear. These steps helped to pacify the pacifists and internationalists and the Hull statement tonight was a further move in that direction.

Perils Peace Measures.

The whole structure of measures invented to prevent and end wars appears to be endangered by the crisis in Africa. Both the league and the Kellogg pact came out of the Manchurian affair greatly discredited. The theory behind these idealistic institutions simply did not work out in practice. Japan quit the league and now Italy threatens to pull out if the league does anything to thwart Mussolini. There is a pretty widespread opinion that if the league fails to avert this threatened war it will fold up as an institution to preserve peace.

NINE BABOON BABIES TAKE UP THEIR HOME AT BROOKFIELD ZOO

Nine baby Doguera baboons arrived at the Brookfield zoo yesterday from Arusha, in Tanganyika territory, Africa, Director Edward H. Bean announced.

The consignment, a present from the Chicago Zoological society, is the first group of "colonists" to settle Monkey Island, now under construction at the zoo. The island, however, will not be open to visitors until Labor day, Mr. Bean said.

Comedy relief on Monkey Island will be furnished by several bear cubs that will share the place with the simians. While the bears and monkeys are young, Mr. Bean said, they play together. As they grow older they will be kept separate, he said.

Employés at the zoo still remained in the dark as to the sex of the baby that was born Monday to Bebe, the hippopotamus. The infant hippo remains in the pool near the pachyderm house during the day, emerging only after dark. Both mother and baby are doing well, Director Bean said.

Duke, the 7 month old lion cub which clawed a 3 year old boy several days ago, was presented to the Lincoln park zoo yesterday by its owner, Charles L. Patterson, 4329 Drummond place.

The victim of the clawing is Myron Weiss, 5570 Congress street. Patterson denied, however, that this incident had anything to do with Duke's removal to the zoo.

"Duke has been a pet and never has been vicious," he said, "I am sure the clawing was just an accident. But he was growing too big for a house net, so we had to give him up."

CALLS DILLINGER PIKER COMPARED WITH MUSSOLINI

Urbana, Ill., July 12.—(AP)—The Rev. Dr. John A. O'Brien, director of the Catholic Foundation at the University of Illinois, declared tonight "John Dillinger and Baby Face Nelson were pikers compared with Mussolini" in his present Ethiopian venture.

Father O'Brien, who joined with several other members of the university faculty in requesting President Roosevelt to protest Italy's activities in Africa, referred to Benito Mussolini as "the arch murderer of the race, who would ignore all of the peace making progress since the world war and contend the slaughtering of men as the only way to end disputes."

Prof. A. H. Lybyer, historian, and E. L. Bogart, head of the economics department, signed the message to the President. Prof. Lybyer declared that success for the Italian dictator in the projected African campaign would lead to further attempted expansion—"possibly at the expense of Austria and Jugo-Slavia."

He termed the Italian movements "a most flagrant violation of the most solemn of international agreements"—the Kellogg pact.

SPREADING LAKE PERILS 2,000,000

Arrow points to China's Tung Ting lake. It had spread over more than 200 miles of its ancient basin yesterday, imperiling the lives of more than 2,000,000 persons who had lived around it until the recent flood catastrophe.

ETHIOPIAN KING HIDES JEWELS AND CHURCH RELICS IN MOUNTAINS

ISTANBUL, Turkey, July 12.—(AP)—Reports reaching here tonight from Addis Ababa, capital of Ethiopia, said Emperor Haile Selassie, anticipating an Italian invasion, had ordered the country's valuable crown jewels and ecclesiastical treasures removed to the mountains for safekeeping.

These church treasures are said to include the tablets of law received by Moses on Mount Sinai as well as the Ark of the Covenant. Both reputedly were brought to Ethiopia from Jerusalem by Menelik, according to Ethiopian history the son of King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba.

These precious relics are supposed to repose now in the sacred city of Axum, ancient capital of Ethiopia and the holiest spot in the country. The Ethiopians were described as fearful that Axum would be among the first cities invaded by Benito Mussolini's forces, since it is almost at the border of Italy's colony, Eritrea.

The royal treasures to be transferred include the solid gold crowns worn by the emperor and empress at their coronation in 1931 as well as the necklace of gold said to have been given to the Queen of Sheba by Solomon in biblical times.

2,000,000 FACE DEATH; CHINESE LAKE TURNS SEA

Rolls Over Ancient Basin 200 Miles Long.

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

YOCHOW, Hunan Province, China, July 13 [Saturday]. — More than 2,000,000 Chinese seeking existence around the shores of Tung Ting lake today face death from disease and famine as flood—China's latest disaster—scourges the nation.

These stricken people are clinging to treetops or knolls which the onrushing waters have not yet submerged. They are eyewitnesses to the destruction of their homes, their crops, their very kinsmen as Tung Ting lake rolls over miles and miles of the surrounding hinterland.

Today a tropical sun intensifies their sufferings.

Lake Reclaiming Old Domain.

The shimmering Tung Ting is defiantly reclaiming its ancient domain. Centuries ago the inhabitants of this region imprisoned the lake. Having penetrated the rich alluvial deposits brought down from Hunan, Kweichow and Szechuen provinces, these pioneers, throughout succeeding decades, threw up dikes until the lake became only a fragment of its former self.

They reaped harvests, built cities and towns and villages. Now the whole rich country, under the fury of the flood, has reverted to its former state. From Taoyuan, west of Changteh on the Yuen river to here, where it empties into the Yangtze, Tung Ting stretches 200 miles, a water wasteland.

Hankow Dike Closed.

HANKOW, China, July 13.—[Saturday.]—(AP)—A breach in the dikes protecting Hankow from the flooded Yangtze river was closed after feverish efforts early today, but authorities said the city of 778,000 was still in danger.

The break occurred yesterday, letting water into the Japanese concession. Consular authorities held their nationals ready for an emergency.

Meanwhile dispatches from northwestern Hupeh indicating appalling loss of life and destruction in the Yangtze's rampage, and Chinee advices from Peiping said much of western Shantung province was buried under 10 feet of water when the raging Yellow river, "China's Sorrow," roared over and through its barriers.

200 Dead in One Town.

Reports from Laohokow, in Hupeh, said 200 persons were dead, 3,000 houses destroyed, and 10,000 persons homeless. Chaotien, 50 miles south of Ichang, was reported submerged, with few families surviving, while two unidentified towns above Ichang were reported destroyed, with heavy loss of life. Many human corpses were floating past on the swollen, wreckage-littered Yangtze.

9 ARE DROWNED; FLOOD SWEEPS COLORADO FARM

House Is Carried Away with Two Families.

Granada, Colo., July 12.—[Special.]—Nine persons were drowned early today when they were caught in their sleep by flood waters fed by a cloudburst which swept over Granada and nearby farms. Property damage was estimated at $200,000.

The dead were members of the family of Anton Eder, a rancher, and of A. Karn, another rancher, who were visiting at the Eder place six miles south of here. The ranch house in which they were sleeping was swept away from its foundation before the victims were aware of the danger.

The dead are Mr. and Mrs. Eder and their five children ranging in age from 7 to 24 years, and Mrs. Karn and her son, Leo. Two other Eder children, William, 10, and Minna, 14, were saved. William floated three miles on a log and Minna found herself in a tree without realizing what had happened.

Granada residents, warned by a fire department siren, fled from the town and sought safety in the hills. The water stood a foot or more deep in the town, which is a small ranching community.

An avalanche of water roared down Granada and Wolf creeks after the cloudburst. The water was three miles wide and four feet deep at the Eder ranch.

Winds Hit Capitol City.

Jefferson City, Mo., July 12.—[Special.]—The Missouri capitol was damaged to the extent of about $10,000 today by a severe windstorm that smashed windows, uprooted trees and blocked highways with débris. A large stained glass skylight over the main entrance of the capitol was broken and sections of copper roofing were torn off.

Lehman in Flood Area.

Corning, N. Y., July 12.—[Special.]—Gov. Herbert H. Lehman's personal tour through flood ridden upstate New York was greeted today with optimistic reports of the rehabilitation being made.

Capt. Arthur W. Brandt, state highway commissioner, reported that all trunk trafic lines are open and other roads will be opened for at least one was trafic within five days. He said regular trafic would be resumed by Aug. 1.

Dr. Thomas H. Parran Jr., state health commissioner, told the governor that with few exceptions the public water supply is safe in all afflicted communities. He said he expected a few small outbreaks of typhoid fever, but added that it is too early to determine whether there will be much disease in the wake of the floods.

FINDS SPECIES OF BIRD BELIEVED EXTINCT ON COAST OF BERMUDA

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

HAMILTON, Bermuda, July 12.—Dr. William Beebe announced today the discovery of the second specimen found in 300 years of the cahow bird. This species was found in millions by the first settlers of this colony, but was supposed to have become extinct about 1630. It is peculiar to Bermuda.

The specimen, found dead at the foot of St. David's lighthouse, was given by the keeper to Dr. Beebe, who sent it to the American museum for identification. The authorities informed him the measurements and characteristics tallied with those of a specimen discovered in 1906 by Louis L. Mowbray, Bermuda scientist.

William Strachey, in 1610, described the cahow as "a silly bird," so tame that it would alight on the shoulders of early settlers. The cahow disappeared after thousands had been slaughtered for food during periods of famine.

1,000 AT COLORED GATHERING HEAR ATTACK ON ITALY

Robert Morss Lovett, professor of English at the University of Chicago, was the main speaker last night at a massmeeting of some 1,000 colored men and women who gathered at the Pilgrim Baptist church, 3301 Indiana avenue, to protest the impending Italian war against Ethiopia.

Prof. Lovett denounced the war as "Mussolini's crime against the world," and declared that the Italian premier is "attempting to perpetuate his régime by sending his own sons to slaughter."

He also declared that the colored people of Chicago should hold demonstrations and forward formal demands to the state department to take steps toward saving "the last free state in Africa."

CHICAGO ITALIAN GROUPS STIR UP WAR SENTIMENT

Promote Fascist Attack on Ethiopia.

Agitation for the war against Ethiopia, prompted by the words and actions of Premier Benito Mussolini, has been built up among Chicago's 280,000 persons of Italian birth or descent during recent weeks. Ramifications of the movement are numerous.

An inquiry showed that propaganda issues daily through the foreign language press for the support of the campaign against the Ethiopians. In a more subtle way the fine Italian handiwork of Mussolini can be traced through decorations for American citizens and the activities of that far flung organization, "Figli D'Italia," or Sons of Italy, which boasts 500,000 members throughout the country and is now in the midst of a membership drive.

Italians Tell of Commotion.

Information on Fascist agitation in Chicago was furnished by Italians themselves upon the pledge that their identity would not be divulged. These Italians, opposed to the trend of government in their motherland and against the current war policy, were fearful of retaliation.

Several trips to the Italian "colony" on Chicago's west side brought definite information that in the meetings of many lodges members now raise their arms and shout: "Viva il Duce" [Hurrah for Mussolini] while the "Giovenezza," Fascist anthem, is sung lustily as a part of the ceremonies.

The more enthusiastic Fascists in Chicago, it was found, have donned the black shirts popularized by Il Duce and when some young Italians congregate they repeat together Mussolini's words as follows:

"If I advance follow me; if I retreat slay me; and if I am assassinated avenge me!"

Press Helps with Propaganda.

Aside from these methods of proselyting, the Italian press is filled with glowing accounts of the impending war, of Mussolini's utterances and pictures of the dictator and his troops. The two large Italian newspapers are Il Progresso Italo-Americano and Corriere D'America, published in New York but with large circulations in Chicago.

Recently Il Progresso di Chicago, a weekly published at 1025 Blue Island avenue, carried an article claiming that David Darrah, CHICAGO TRIBUNE correspondent at Rome who was expelled by the Fascists, had falsified his dispatches.

The editor of the paper is Charles Bellavia of 2215 West Harrison street. Two fruitless visits were made to his office in an attempt to find out where he received his information and the reason for the charges. Bellavia did not appear.

None of Our Business.

He was finally reached on the telephone and refused to discuss the matter. Then Bellavia was asked the direct question whether he was an American citizen.

"That's none of your business," he replied heatedly, concluding the conversation.

The records of the Chicago election commissioners do not carry Bellavia as a registered voter.

Several days ago the distribution of several hundred copies of a new paper, La Voce d'Italia [Voice of Italy], was begun in Chicago. The paper, printed in New York, urged Italian societies to unite and justified the war with Ethiopia on the grounds that Italy would civilize that nation.

The paper also carried an article justifying the Fascist form of government and condemning socialism and communism. Fascist books, such as "The Ideal Revolution" and "The Conquest of the State," were given publicity on the page devoted to literature.

Denies Radio Is Used.

One of the charges made by anti-Fascists was that propaganda was being sent out in radio broadcasts. Raymond Conti, announcer for Italian programs over stations WGES and WCBD, said that what he gave out was news flashes and he denied that he indulged in political comment.

The Sons of Italy, powerful organization for the swaying of public opinion, is said to have taken over the functions of the old Fascist league of North America, which was dissolved five years ago at the request of the United States government on the ground that it was working to prevent the assimilation of Italians as American citizens.

Attorney Giovanni di Silvestro of Philadelphia, supreme head of the Sons in this country, makes periodic trips to Italy to talk with Mussolini.

Observers have pointed out that the Sons of Italy, fostering a sort of dual allegiance to this country and to the motherland, would be politically useful to Mussolini in the event of a European war.

These implications were blandly denied by George Spatuzza, Chicago attorney who is grand master of the Sons in Illinois. Spatuzza declared the organization was interested mainly in making Italians in this country into good American citizens. Although American citizenship is not required for membership in the Sons, Spatuzza said members were urged to become naturalized.

The generosity of King Victor Emmanuel III. and Giuseppe Castruccio, Italian consul-general in Chicago, in giving citations and decorations to Chicago politicians and civic leaders is well known.

Opposition to the Fascist activities as carried on in Chicago has thus far been feeble. The communists are opposed to Fascism and have been trying to recruit members from the Negro race by capitalizing on the Ethiopian crisis.

PARK HEADS LOSE ROUND IN FIGHT TO BAR COUGHLIN

Trial of Case Is Set for Next Thursday.

Superior Judge James J. Kelly decided in favor of Father Charles E. Coughlin yesterday in another round of the Detroit radio priest's fight for a writ of mandamus to compel the Chicago park commissioners to allow him the use of Soldiers' field for a massmeeting.

Specifically, the court's action was to deny the motion of Attorney Joseph B. Fleming, counsel for the park board, to strike out the second amended petition brought by Attorney Samuel A. Ettelson, representing the priest, for the mandamus. Mr. Fleming then elected to answer the petition, and was given until next Wednesday to file the answer. Judge Kelly announced that trial of the case would open the following day, probably before himself.

Priest's Followers Fill Court.

Partisans of Father Coughlin and his National Union for Social Justice, who filled the courtroom, heard the ruling in silence, and filed quietly from the chamber. This was a distinct contrast to their conduct at the morning session in which boos and applause brought a threat from Judge Kelly to arrest any one making a demonstration.

Indications of the nature of the court's ruling were seen earlier in a colloquy between Judge Kelly and Attorney Fleming. This began with a discussion of the park board's resolution that use of Soldiers' field would not be permitted for the dissemination of propaganda on political and economical subjects of a controversial nature. This resolution was the basis for the denial by the park board of Father Coughlin's application for a permit.

"You have stacked up a straw man to attack," remarked Judge Kelly. "The pleader doesn't say that he is going to speak on a controversial subject. I think the petition is well pleaded."

Judges from Past Speeches.

"The nature of the topic can best be judged from Father Coughlin's past speeches," replied Mr. Fleming. "If he weren't going to speak on politics that should have been alleged in the petition. Is the court going to set up its judgment over that of the park commissioners?"

"I am going to stick by the record in my decision," the judge retorted. "But there is nothing in the application for a permit that says this meeting is to be for the purpose of disseminating propaganda."

"Does the court believe that the park commissioners should permit Emma Goldman or William Z. Foster, who would speak on only one subject, communism, to use the field first and then deny it to them later?" asked Mr. Fleming.

"Yes," Judge Kelly answered. "All the law is for that."

Issuance of Writ Stayed.

After some further skirmishing in which Mr. Fleming observed that the judge apparently had made up his mind, the court held that the petition stated a clear cause of action and denied the motion to strike out the petition. A request by Mr. Fleming for time in which to consult the park commissioners as to whether they wanted to answer the petition or stand on their demurrer was denied. Issuance of the mandamus writ was stayed by Mr. Fleming's decision to answer the petition.

In the morning session Attorney Fleming had listed 38 reasons why the Coughlin plea should be denied. One of the assertions was that the amended petition had not set out all the rules and regulations governing the leasing of the field. To this argument, Attorney Ettelson interrupted to declare that the rules were kept in the breasts of the commissioners and imposed as they saw fit. A burst of handclapping followed.

"If I catch anyone making a demonstration," the court sternly admonished the spectators, "I'll have him arrested. Keep that in mind. This is not a gathering for amusement. This is a courtroom."

FAST TRAIN PASSES OVER INDIANAN, 75; HE'S NOT SCRATCHED

Indianapolis, Ind., July 12.—[Special.]—A speeding passenger train with eight coaches passed over Thomas E. Reed, 75, today, but he was not so much as scratched.

Reed was walking east along the Pennsylvania railroad tracks. A New York bound train passed him and its roar deafened him temporarily.

He started back, walking between the rails used by the west bound trafic. A passenger train loomed behind, but he did not hear its whistle.

A moment before it reached him, Reed glanced over his shoulder, saw the locomotive and quickly fell flat between the rails. The train's wheels clicked over him, but none of the undercarriage touched his body. His coat was torn.

By the time the train crew returned to the scene, Reed was dusting himself off and inquiring about his hat.

STRATO BALLOON FAILURE PUZZLE TO FLIGHT HEADS

Plans for New Attempt in Abeyance.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Rapid City, S. D., July 12.—[Special.]—A secret investigation was being made tonight into the dramatic collapse of the world's largest free balloon an hour before it was to have soared aloft early today on an expected conquest of the stratosphere.

No announcements had been made after all day efforts to learn the cause of the mishap. Newspapermen were not permitted to enter the balloon inflation area where the huge bag suddenly ripped at the top while being filled with helium gas. Capt. Albert W. Stevens, flight commander, said all official reports would come from Washington, either through the army air corps or the National Geographic society.

A study of photographs of the actual ripping will be made tomorrow by officials of the society and the army air corps in an effort to learn the reason for the dismal failure of the flight.

Further Attempts Undetermined.

Whether the bag would be repaired was still undetermined and no announcement was forthcoming at the takeoff bowl whether any further flight attempt would be made this season. However, word from Washington, hearquarters of the Geographic society, indicated that some hope was held out for this possibility.

Both Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, president of the society, and Dr. Lyman J. Briggs, head of the scientific committee, declined to say definitly that the expedition would be abandoned. It was said that if it is possible to repair the ripped balloon or make a new one before fall, a second attempt will be made.

Several theories were expressed to account for the catastrophe which occurred in the midst of preparations for a start after a wait of five weeks for favorable weather. None of these theories, however, was of an official nature.

One was that mere size was responsible. It was suggested that knowledge applicable to smaller envelopes would not hold true with large increases in size. This largest free balloon ever made was to have carried 3,700,000 cubic feet of gas.

Perhaps It's the Humidity.

Another theory was that recent excessive humidity resulted in the rubberized cotton fabric sticking together and developing a weak spot on the top. After the explosion of the 1934 balloon at a height of about 60,000 feet, an accident in which three army balloonists narrowly escaped death, precautions were taken to strengthen the lower half of the bag, which tore first last year.

Capt. Stevens and Capt. Orvil A. Anderson, the two man crew, came out of this morning's wreckage with expletives of bewilderment, and twelve hours later their statements, while more politely phrased, displayed no future enlightenment.

No one was injured in the collapse of the balloon. While several of the ground crew were caught under the folds of the big bag as it fell upon the gondola, all crawled out without harm.

BIRTH CONTROL PUTS CALIFORNIA AT END OF LIST

Sacramento Cal., July 12.—(AP)—Alleged "wholesale" birth control, an influx of elderly people and the "gin marriage" law were blamed by health authorities today for the fact California has the nation's lowest birth rate.

The disclosure that the state stood at the bottom in this respect was made by the government census bureau.

For 1934 California births totaled 12.7 per 1,000 of population. New Mexico topped the list with a rate of 27.9.

"It is a well known fact," said Dr. J. D. Dunshee, state health director, "that many of the people who come to California to live are elderly.

"That fact and the big decrease in the marriage rate for 1932 and 1933 I consider the greatest factors in the birth rate."

Dr. J. C. Geiger, San Francisco health director, said "wholesale birth control methods" undoubtedly were responsible for the situation in the Bay City, which he said was at the bottom of the list of birth rates by cities, with 10.9 per 1,000.

Even prolific Chinatown has taken to the birth control idea, he said. The 1925 birth rate for the San Francisco Chinese population was given as 34.2 per 1,000 of population, and the 1933 figure 15.8.

Ship Sails on Hunt for Sunken Lusitania's Riches

GLASGOW, July 12.—(AP)—The lure of the treasure in the strongroom of the S.S. Lusitania, torpedoed off the Irish coast by a U-boat in 1915, called the S.S. Orphir to sea today. She was manned by a crew of 29 including three survivors of the ill fated passenger vessel. They will try to recover the specie and valuables which were known to have been aboard the Lusitania.

SATURDAY NEWS OF NEW BOOKS

Dorothy Aldis Pens Charming Story of Bride

Erskine Treats Solomon as He Did Helen.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Solomon, My Son," by John Erskine. [Bobbs-Merrill.] Published on Monday.

"Drug Store," by A. L. Furman and Harold Hadley. [Macaulay.] Published on Monday.

"Their Own Apartment," by Dorothy Aldis. [Putnam.] Published on Thursday.

THREE novels for a summer weekend . . . all comfortably easy to read and at least two of them distinctly worth reading.

Chicago is the scene of one of them . . . Lake Forest, that is, a suburb of Chicago, with an apartment in town the mirage of bliss which is never achieved. "Their Own Apartment" is a story of the first year of married life from a fresh viewpoint. Its heroine is the only daughter of a renowned San Francisco doctor and his prim New England wife. Her young life has always been well ordered and agreeably private. When she marries she finds herself in the heart of a family where order is only a by-product of an expansive, noisy, and joyous family life, and where privacy is as unattainable as it is for the proverbial goldfish.

Because it is so hot in summer and tennis and a swim so refreshing for Clifford the young household is not established in town, but accepts the too open-armed hospitality of the McLevaine circus in Windycliff. The McLevaines are the sort of people whom everybody envies for their "family good times," but whom nobody would live with if there really were such a thing as free will on earth.

Mrs. Aldis has made them all real and amusing and touching, the too vigorous and too breezy mother-in-law, the father-in-law with his nips, the sister-in-law who might have been attractive in a sweater, but who is always being puffed up in pale pink ruffles; the "old girl" of the young husband who almost causes a crisis; the old girl's brother, who refuses to fall in love with the right person, and the puppylike young husband whose social paws are clumsy.

They all live without pretense in a book which is itself the least pretentious imaginable, and for that very quality filled with charm. "Their Own Apartment" is so disarmingly simple that it is immensely refreshing.

ERSKINE ABOUT SOLOMON

There is little simple about John Erskine's "Solomon, My Son" . . . but Mr. Erskine simple would be Samson shorn. "Solomon, My Son" recreates and turns a modern eye on the great temple builder just as "The Private Life of Helen of Troy" made the owner of the face that launched a thousand ships a composite of Peggy Joyce, Miss America, and the lady next door who enters into occasional guerilla warfare with her worsted half.

Solomon himself gets worsted at the hands of Bathsheba, Abishag Magsola, and the Queen of Sheba just as man has always been worsted by woman (according to Mr. Erskine), but his amorous and filial trials are not by any means his hardest troubles. In building the temple (which he didn't want, anyway, and which he built only because his father had promised that it would be built in the next generation). Solomon came upon many of the difficulties of modern times.

Mr. Erskine says: "I invite you to meet in the old story some friends of ours—tax, surtax, and income tax; barter, exchange, and the adjustment of international debts; overproduction, unemployment, and made work; the revolutionary aberrations of the laboring class, and the counter-hope of employers to weed out the foreigner, keep the race pure, and so prevent the generation of ideas."

With Solomon in all his glory Mr. Erskine is less concerned than with Solomon in all his troubles. Humankind, he seems to say, changes only as the sun changes . . . it has its phases which look different but which are all inherent and unalterable, and today is merely a new phase of yesterday. But he says it with characteristic satirical gayety and brilliance. Helen's story had the advantage of being a surprise to the public that Solomon's hasn't (for by this time his readers know Mr. Erskine's method and demand that he deviate little from it). But just as a novel, and disregarding novelty, "Solomon, My Son" is a better book than its famous predecessor.

DRUG STORE THAT GROWS

"Drug Store," by A. L. Furman and Harold Hadley has neither disarming charm like "Their Own Apartment," nor sophistication of style and content, like "Solomon, My Son" . . . but it doesn't pretend to have either. It is a story of what might happen to a simple drug store [and a simple druggist!] when it got into the big money.

From a place where nothing but drugs were sold Burris' developed into an emporium where there wasn't a drug in a carload of jewelry, cosmetics, and food. But actually, it was drugs that put up all of the plate glass and chromium front . . . and therein lies the tale of "Drug Store." There's nothing either distinguished or literary about "Drug Store." It's merely a tale of intrigue and romance with a drug store as its background.

MYSTERY OF THE WEEK

BY MORTIMER QUICK

A WOMAN dies in "The Jury" [Knopf], by Gerald Bullitt, and her husband is tried for her murder. Mysterious circumstances surround her death, but even with murder and mystery playing so vital a part the book cannot be classed as a detective story. Rather it is an account of how people think and why they think as they do, if you can call a blind and instinctive response in their small minds to what, given a certain set of circumstances, they would do themselves.

Mr. Bullitt introduces you to his characters piecemeal, first the husband and wife, their friends, and their sweethearts. Then a long series of people swing into the orbit of the story and before you know it enough are assembled to make a jury and to you has been vouchsafed an insight into the core of their beings.

They are pretty shallow little cores, most of them, with tiny experiences upon which to base their philosophies, and they haven't the least idea what it is all about when two lawyers argue over the probable guilt of a possible murderer. Their minds are made up anyway, some because their lives have been hard, others because they have been easy.

It would be unfair to tell the decision they finally reach, closeted so incongruously together, because then there would be no faintest shadow of mystery in a book which you, as a mystery story reader, are being induced to read. But there are elements of surprise and Mr. Bullitt's clever and interesting device results in one of the most entertaining books that will come your way in a long time.

I have been a Bullitt fan myself ever since reading the "History of Egg Pandervil," so perhaps my mind was in pickle like those of the recorded jury. But I don't think so. I am sure this is an original and stimulating book, bringing into focus the vague people upon whom, unfortunately, responsibility must sometimes fall, giving to them an ephemeral interest far beyond their capabilities or deserts, negligible as units but dangerous when they come in actual conflict with life. The book has made an enormous success in England. It ought to make a corresponding stir in America.

Ex-Inspector Cornish of Scotland Yard has written his memoirs in readable form, calling his book "Cornish of Scotland Yard" [Macmillan]. He tells of coming, a country boy, to walk his beat in the London of forty years ago, of his rapid rise through hard work and a sort of intuitive intelligence, of his association in many famous criminal cases. Not least interesting is his account of changing methods of crime detection brought about by mechanical and scientific advances, but even in the old days Scotland Yard, as now, usually got its man.

It was a surprise to me that the "racket" was a London custom of half a century ago and here is modern Chicago getting all the blame! You'll find a number of other interesting revelations, too, and good practical accounts of murder, arson, counterfeiting, and theft, with no frills and boiled down to essentials.

Norah Hoult's New Novel Is Set in Ireland

Swinnerton Lauds Latest by L. A. G. Strong.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — Special Correspondence.]—Miss Norah Hoult, having finished her new novel, is in London partly on business and partly for pleasure. This is one of her infrequent holidays, because for most of the year she lives in Dublin, and like other visiting authors she has an active time in London seeing her English friends and observing the changes always in progress among modern literary reputations.

Her book will be published in the early autumn, and it will be, I believe, a departure for Miss Hoult, since the setting is reported to be Irish. Hitherto, Miss Hoult's successes have been scored for the most part in the portrayal of London life, but she is Irish through and through, and the new book may well show an increase in power.

By being here Miss Hoult has missed the celebrations in Dublin of W. B. Yeats' seventieth birthday, for which L. A. G. Strong made a special journey across the St. George channel. Mr. Strong's new novel, "The Seven Arms" Gollancz], first announced under another title, is having a considerable success here, as it deserves. Its scene is Scotland, in that wild part of the coast to which Mr. Strong again and again returns, and its strength and beauty are remarkable.

The tale is a very dramatic one, after the manner of "Brothers," and it deals in chief with the relations of two girls, sisters, from their childhood to their death. Nobody among living English novelists could have given this story such character. With his own quiet, sure, beautiful touch, Mr. Strong takes us into human hearts, holds us breathless, and brings us at last to his tragical culmination. A rare gift. "The Seven Arms" is equal to his best work.

With the advent of the season of ballet at Covent Garden comes a new book, and a very original one, by Adrian Stokes ["Russian Ballets," Faber]. Mr. Stokes has for some years been producing original and thoughtful essays on esthetics, and his study of the ballet has been minute.

In this new book he has not solely concerned himself with the art of ballet, but has attempted the interpretation of the Russian company's repertory, ballet by ballet. The result is a really valuable handbook, which will enhance enjoyment of the art and provide a constant vivid aid to memory.

Since London must always have its latest controversy, one has been started over the proposed republication of Lawrence of Arabia's "Seven Pillars of Wisdom" [Cape]. It is held that this work, of which "Revolt in the Desert" was a condensed version, contains things much too sacred for the ordinary eye.

But as the new edition is to be published at six or seven dollars there is not much in this argument, and the protesters have fought a losing battle. The book will never be read by the multitude.

Uses Pictures to Tell Story of American Navy

For the first time, so it is claimed, the whole story of the United States navy in striking and authentic photographs is told in "Men and Ships of Steel," by Wayne Francis Palmer and Hanson W. Baldwin [Morrow]. The 275 pictures composing this stunning pictorial history of the Yankee fighting fleet were culled from more than two hundred thousand photographs. Every American who is interested in and proud of his nation's fighting forces will thrill to these stirring pictures of our naval power.

Bergson Describes 'Sources of Morality and Religion'

"The Two Sources of Morality and Religion," by Henri Bergson [Holt], is one of those books so important to philosophers that whether they agree with Mr. Bergson's conclusion or not, it must be read. In it he shows, as he did in his "Creative Evolution" the interplay of instinct and intelligence and the forward drive of the creative impulse.

Stephen Leacock Dissects the Technique of Humor

"Humor," by Stephen Leacock [Dodd-Mead], is a merry but sound dissection of the theory and technique of humor, of its evolution from practical joking to wit.

STUDY OF JURY

Gerald Bullett, author of "The Jury," a remarkable fictional study of a murder trial and the members of its jury. It was the June choice of the English Book society and is reviewed today by Mortimer Quick.

Morley Is Collecting a New Edition of Bartlett 'Quotations'

Christopher Morley, critic as well as novelist of renown, is editing a new edition of Bartlett's "Familiar Quotations," to be published in 1936.

The work was published in 1855, compiled by John Bartlett, and it has become a book that workers with words can't keep house without.

The tenth edition was published in 1914, but so many quotable items have been written since the great war that this new edition is as vital as a new bathing suit to a lady who keeps a moth.

Mr. Morley frankly asks for help. So, if you have favorite quotations from masterpieces written since 1914 send them to him in care of the publishers, Little, Brown & Co., 34 Beacon street, Boston.

Careful Research Marks This Volume on 'Art of Renoir'

"The Art of Renoir," by Albert C. Barnes and Violette de Mazia [Minton-Balch] is the first thoroughgoing, objective study of one of the great French painters of the generation. It was begun in 1912 and research work on it has been carried on ever since then, with careful studies of all of the famous Renoirs in existence, with the great ones in the Barnes collection as basis.

John Dewey, preëminent philosopher, in his introduction says that the authors have also covered "the method that must be used in any intelligent approach to the understanding and appreciation of art in all its forms."

Reviewer Bows to Greatness of 'Dance of Fire'

Miss Strobel Has Praise for Lola Ridge.

BY MARION STROBEL,
[Author of "Once in a Blue Moon" and former associate editor of Poetry.]

ORIENTALS take off their shoes when entering a church. At this moment, after reading Lola Ridge's "Dance of Fire," I am experiencing the reverence that that gesture symbolizes. I am feeling that it is presumptuous even to praise this book, that silence, or some abnegating gesture, is all that could adequately express my humility in the presence of so much wonder.

For this is major poetry. This has nothing whatever to do with pretty song, or cleverness, or cerebral gymnastics. This is stuff of the heart and mind. Of a big, warm heart and a clear, well informed mind. This is a fearless spirit and sexless energy. Any love sequence that has been written in the last decade is pallid in the light of these passionate impersonal sonnets.

We are, according to Lola Ridge, living in a dynasty of fire; we are in the midst of the fire dance. Whether or not the reader agrees with this concept, he cannot fail to be scorched by Miss Ridge's presentation.

It is the kind of glow that can equally light up a world or a dancing black speck of humanity. With varied rhythms a familiar pattern is transcended. It is made to leap with color and crackle with fire music. When Miss Ridge writes of Tom Mooney, when she writes of three men who died (two of them being Sacco and Vanzetti, the third a thief), she presents them unforgettably but without bitterness. "Let bitterness be as a white salt at the bottom of a glass," she says elsewhere.

"The Newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and lead public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."—Chicago Tribune.

WHY THE RUSH?

Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Morgenthau talk as if their tax program had been carefully considered by them for years; as if it were a cardinal policy of their party upon which the voters of the country have already passed favorable judgment.

The truth is that the program was so hastily conceived that the treasury's actuaries have had to sit up nights of recent weeks trying to improvise some kind of estimates of expected revenues which would pass committee examination. The Democratic platform of '32 contains no intimation of the kind of taxation which the President is now proposing, and nothing was said in favor of it by responsible Democratic spokesmen either in the presidential campaign or in the congressional elections last year.

Rather the contrary is true. Mr. Roosevelt and his party are solemnly pledged to reduce government expenditures. If they had honored the pledge there could be no conceivable excuse for the tax schemes now being put forward.

Mr. Roosevelt's haste can be explained in only one way: He is afraid of Huey Long and the other wealth sharers. Just as he snapped up social security to prevent Dr. Townsend from pressing his attacks on the administration, so he has now determined to "share the wealth" to pacify Huey Long. Mr. Roosevelt is taking his policies from his enemies. He can do so only by repudiating his own promises and those of his party. This is called shrewd politics by his admirers, but the last word has not yet been uttered on that point.

Mr. Morgenthau's defense of the program is based upon the assumption that the country is now emerging from the depression. From this he concludes that the time has come to raise more revenue and thus balance the budget. Common sense replies that if the country is indeed emerging from hard times, as he says, then the emergency expenditures can and should be curtailed sharply. If that course were followed the present revenues of the government would be ample to meet all needs. A redistribution of the burden might be undertaken after careful study, but certainly there would be no need for a wholesale revision of tax schedules within a few days. The fact that a hasty change can easily produce violent economic disturbances is the best reason for proceeding cautiously.

Today, whether the secretary is correct or incorrect in his appraisal of the economic situation, there is no great fiscal emergency calling for instant action. There is no need for an overnight mobilization of the last ounce of the nation's financial resources such as the outbreak of a great war might require. While it is true that the government's credit has been endangered by the excessive spending of recent years, the fact remains that the treasury without difficulty can get all the money it will need during the next six or nine months. A crisis is in the making, but it is not upon us at the moment. A program of confiscatory taxation which might be accepted as necessary in such an emergency as a great war creates is not needed today. To adopt it would, in all probability, so seriously disturb markets and industry that recovery would be greatly retarded.

THIS AND THAT SORT OF GAMBLING.

Gov. Horner has vetoed the act which would have enabled the Chicago city government to license bookmakers and collect a revenue from race track gambling. The state itself collects from the parimutuel gambling at the tracks and it may not be easy to make the moral distinction. The act to license the handbook gamblers, however, seemed to break entirely new ground and to put the law in a strange attitude toward an activity which has been taboo as a vice. Handbooks have had an unsavory reputation connected with shady transactions with politics. That will be the case always with an activity which is illegal, permitted and widely engaged in.

Mayor Kelly thought he could bring the betting to a regulated status under the law and incidentally get some revenue from it. The city government would have taken a hand in a shady business in the belief that it could be made square. It was admittedly an adventure with uncertain prospects. The taboos against gambling seem to be inconsiderate of the almost universal impulse toward gambling games and devices. The average person finds himself attracted by the hazard and by the chance of getting something enjoyable out of his fling.

The social conscience is disturbed by the fact that it is a temptation inviting serious consequences. The consequences probably are serious in the exceptional rather than the general case, but the conscience still insists that it is an evil. Gov. Horner apparently couldn't get away from the instinctive feeling that government should not have any dealings under law with gambling as conducted in the handbooks. Therefore the customer who wants to keep his betting on the horses within the sanctions of the law must go to the race tracks. One consideration in that distinction, however slight it may be morally, is that he must have the time and the funds to make the trip.

QUEER QUODDY.

Out of the fog of denial and evasion there appears pretty definitly the fact that the White House lobby in congress used the Maine Quoddy tide harnessing power project in an effort to influence votes on the utilities bill. Mr. Corcoran, the young brain truster, says he did not tell Representative Brewster that Quoddy would be stopped if Maine congressmen voted against the administration, but Senators Hale and White say that Brewster himself, when he was with the administration on the bill, sought to bring them in line for it by saying that the federal political money in Maine was in jeopardy because the senators were wrong.

It may not be clear who is sticking closest to the truth in the testimony about these conversations between White House lobbyists and members of congress, but it is plain enough that impressions were created, that influences were used and threats were implied in some fashion or other to make the congressmen feel that they must vote right if their constituents were to be cut in on the four billion dollar political relief fund. It would hardly be news to any one that the fund will be used to influence congress and to get votes in the next election.

What is revealed as to Quoddy will be found in every project under these funds. When the time is ripe Mr. Farley will again be reminding the various political districts of the expenditures which have been made in their various localities and of others which they may deserve if they continue to support the New Deal at the polls. He'll probably have maps, charts, and figures to illustrate the point.

TREES WHICH COULD BE SAVED.

At the national conference on the Dutch elm disease protest was made against the course of the department of agriculture. Since the introduction of the disease about five years ago the destruction of elms has progressed at a rate threatening extinction of a noble tree. The department of agriculture built up an organization to combat the spread and then allowed it to go to pieces for lack of funds.

There have been any number of fantastic government schemes for putting trees in belts where trees haven't been. Probably the saving of trees where they are and could remain does not have the high content of error and foolishness required by New Deal enthusiasm. It may not be worth while to try what could be done when there are so many opportunities to try what can't.

A POET GOES TO WAR.

"I belong, woe is me," writes D'Annunzio in unhooding Mussolini's bird for a flight to Africa, "to the generation of Dogali and Adowa. I still feel the atrocious brand on my back. You are going to victory. It is so inexorable—I wish to say fatal—to conquer and win."

Only poets of transcendental patriotism and of mystical passion could feel the sting of defeat forever in their souls until relieved by blood and iron, and of such poets D'Annunzio would have anguish sharper and more enduring than any others. It is fortunate that time performs in kindlier fashion for people of the less inspired word and habit. Revenge usually loses its animating force, and although irredentas have their influence the memory of a brisk retreat does not always rankle unless and until the head of the enemy is hoisted on a pole.

It would be most unhappy if there were many Americans who could walk only with woe and despair until they somehow or other managed to burn Buckingham palace and the parliament building in retaliation for certain incidents of the past in Washington. Many are willing to take an invitation to tea and call it square.

Editorial of the Day

THE DEATH PENALTY.

[Marshfield, Wis., News-Herald.]

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE takes advantage of the Dickinson murder case to remind the people of Michigan that capital punishment is needed to properly punish the murderer.

It is easily possible to refute THE TRIBUNE'S contentions simply by referring to one criminal case originating in Chicago. We refer to the Leopold-Loeb case. Never was there better or more complete evidence of a premeditated murder than when these two youths deliberately killed a third person. No more cold-blooded murder ever was done in America. Yet Leopold and Loeb, after committing murder in the state of Illinois, which fixes the maximum penalty at death, and after confessing in open court their entire guilt, were sentenced to imprisonment. They escaped the "hot seat" and are still alive and well, although still in state prison, as they should be.

The most eloquent arguments can be advanced for capital punishment, but they all fail when exposed to the light of day. Capital punishment does not deter criminals; statistics prove, rather, that in states having capital punishment laws criminals often escape punishment. Statistics in Wisconsin and Michigan prove that criminals invariably confess and are sentenced and in prison within from 24 hours to one week after committing a murder. If these states exacted the extreme penalty criminals would not make confessions and would demand trial in the hope of evading execution.

Capital punishment actually slows up the wheels of justice, and this is especially true in cases involving rich people. It was the money expended by their parents which kept Leopold and Loeb from going to the electric chair. So long as justice can be influenced by money, through the ability to engage capable legal talent, and in other more devious ways, states are not justified in exacting the extreme penalty.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE would do well to compare the criminal records of Illinois with those of Wisconsin and Michigan. An honest study of these records would compel a change of viewpoint regarding the efficacy of the death penalty.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

"FOOLPROOF Airplane Has Been Invented."—Headline. It's probably a mighty good airplane, but, inventors, let me tell you something. There isn't, there never will be in this great wide world, anything that is foolproof. Even a banana skin isn't foolproof. I knew of a man who had three teeth knocked out because he stepped on a banana skin and fell against the sharp corner of a building. And I don't mean that the man who had the three teeth knocked out was the fool, but the individual who threw the banana peel on the sidewalk certainly was. Soap is one of those innocent things that could be called foolproof, but let somebody leave a piece of wet soap out on the stairs during house cleaning time and see the mischief it can do. I knew a man who wouldn't keep a gun in his house to keep away burglars because he thought guns were too dangerous. So he kept a long, heavy club right down at the side of his bed. A club that, of course, can't shoot like a gun or cut like a knife ought to be reasonably foolproof. But one night the man thought he heard burglars and bounced out of bed in a hurry and broke his leg. Foolproof? There is no sich animule!

ANSWER.

(For A. C. S.)

As pulsing heart spurts swift and freshened blood through every artery, through every vein—reaching each distant organ to sustain the miracle of life with each rich flood;
so—flowing through each channel of a land that is a heart for myriad parts farflung, rushes a nation's life blood, spent among members united by a like demand.

An organ sans a heart cannot exist, nor heart alone have principle to beat;
likewise the land-heart cannot long persist unstrengthened by returning blood. This sweet dependence each on each, organs and heart, is fashioned with premeditated art!

DAVIDA.

TOMORROW IS JULY FOURTEENTH, the French Fourth of July. On that day way back in 1789 the French tore down the grim prison called the Bastille. While it was done as a symbol that tyranny was overthrown, the French realized very bitterly when the American tourists began coming over that it was a great mistake. American tourists at say two francs per head would have flocked in great droves to the Bastille and the annual income would have been enormous. Which shows that even liberty can be carried too far. Liberty is a fine thing, but it shouldn't destroy the box office.

AND NOW THE LOVE LIFE of the bee has been dragged out into the open. It was bad enough when the burocrats at Washington issued booklets and circulars about the "Love Life of the Bull Frog," and now they've got to drag modest, retiring queen bees into the newspapers and subject them to pitiless publicity. There is no one that shrinks more in horror at seeing her name in print than a queen bee. She is like an aristocratic Charleston, South Carolina, woman of the old school who believed that a lady's name should appear only three times during her lifetime—when she was born, when she was married, and when she died. A queen bee is like that. But the AAA won't let her remain in the seclusion she so ardently desires. Now the society reporters will be after her, and the photographers and the gossip columns will hint about her going to Reno for a divorce. Gosh! These days none of us have any more privacy than a goldfish!

DREAM SHIP.

O she is proud, with her clean white wings
And her brave blue ensign blowing!
Dipping soft down the eastern sea
With all her canvas showing!

And though the tempest may strip her down
To bending mast and shroud,
We shall steer her course through calm or storm
By a star or a bird or a cloud

With never a care though masts be bare
And canvas strung in tatters;
The soul of the sailors, the god of the ship—
There is the sail that matters!

Proud as a bird on the wing of the wind
We have left the nest behind,
And what may lie beyond this sky
Is God's and ours to find.

Though the sea strain open hatch and seam,
Plunder galley and hold,
We shall steer to the same star then as now,
With a laugh in the teeth of the cold.

From the white cloud-wrack and the driving snow
We shall spin a splendid sail,
And blow us along with a merry song
If other wind should fail.

And when we have dined in dim Cathay
And sailed the seas of the moon,
We shall count our treasure and turn about
To a sunny afternoon.

Proud as an eagle over the sun,
With her battered ensign high,
We shall bring her in, with a fine song sung,
To her port in the sundown sky.

JOHN DILLON HUSBAND.

IT ISN'T that I hate to give a dime to a starving man who says he wants it to buy a hot dog sandwich and a cup of Mocha and Java. It's because I'm hoping if I delay the dime he will tell me where on earth he can get a hot dog sandwich and a cup of Mocha and Java for a dime in these days of soaring food prices. I'd hurry right over there, too. R. H. L.

THE NERVOUS BREAKDOWN.

THE chap who created the fable about the "bogy man" who was sure to "get you" should be assigned here and hereafter to the care of patients whose fears have "got" them. Threats and some forms of punishment beget fears in children, the impress of which may remain throughout life. What cruelties unthinking parents inflict upon their children by this treatment, little realizing that the ground may be plowed and sown for the development of nervous and mental disorders in after life. Childhood must be a period of happiness in which a strong mind is developing in a strong body.

Walt Disney rendered a real public service when he showed that even three little pigs could overcome the "Big Bad Wolf."

Fears possess adults; sometimes we call them worries, and if they continue and prove overwhelming the unfortunate sufferer may succumb to what is termed a nervous breakdown.

The patient cannot shake off the thought that something terrible is going to happen from which there is no escape. He fears that his brain is giving way, or that he is in danger of dropping dead as a result of heart disease. Loss of memory and inability to concentrate are complained of. Some will say, "I am living in a fog, in a dream." Many are unable to sleep the night through, rising in the morning fatigued and ill at ease. Depression is far worse in the morning than at any other time of the day. Now and then the victim assumes a negative attitude and becomes indifferent to himself and to members of his family.

When questioned patiently, childhood worries or the family background may supply a clew as to the origin of this distressing condition. The type of person who is subject to "moody spells" but who at other times is vivacious, active, and alert is an occasional sufferer. Not infrequently the condition may be represented in mild degree by an attack of the "blues."

Naturally we ask, is this a real disease? Has it an organic basis, or is it just the result of selfishness; the overstressing on the part of the individual of his own personality? The answer is that in many cases it is purely fatigue—nervous and physical; in some it is traceable to physical causes, while in others no explanation other than a constitutional tendency can be advanced.

The most important step in the management of the condition is the friendly cooperation of an understanding physician who knows that anxiety, worry, and mental depression are just as positive symptoms of disease as pain in the region of the appendix or an abscess in the lung.

The first principle in treatment is building the body to normal, adding nourishment and hence weight if the person is thin. The second is rest. It may be necessary to use mild hypnotics in order to secure adequate sleep. Work should not be interrupted unless the state of the patient compels it, although easing up on the daily tasks may be required. Complete rest in bed for a week or ten days is often the beginning of a climb upward on the ladder of health.

Frank confession is good for the soul and the patient at all times must find himself on such a basis with his physician that he can tell him anything and everything. Unless confidence is maintained the physician is attempting an impossible task. Furthermore, it is necessary at the outset that the physician assure his patient that he can recover, but that his fate, in a sense, is in his own hands. Encouragement and stimulation will be required constantly. Inasmuch as the condition is usually months or years in coming on, it may be an equally long time before health returns.

Most physicians can cite numerous instances of those who have suffered long depression periods as the results of exhausting illnesses. One of the most prolonged cases of my own observation came apparently from a chronic discharging ear. As soon as a radical mastoid operation was performed and the ear infection eradicated the patient proceeded to complete recovery. This emphasizes that mental health is based to a greater degree than most of us realize upon physical health.

HAVE FURTHER STUDIES.

L. L. T. writes: About seven years ago my husband, who was then 50, suffered from an ulcer of the duodenum. He was put to bed, given the Sippy treatment, responded well, and returned to work after two months. At the end of the fourth month he had more X-rays, which showed the large ulcer well healed while the small ones did not show at all. About once a year he suffers attacks of what the doctor calls pyloric spasms. He vomits, has severe spasms of pain and, for the first 24 hours of these attacks is dead with sleep—seems toxic. These attacks usually last a few days. He goes back to his office in a week, but it is a month before he is himself again. What would cause him to have hiccups in his sleep? Will this irritation have a tendency toward carcinoma as time goes on? Should I insist on more X-rays? What procedure should I take to prevent these attacks?

REPLY.

It would be wise to have further X-ray studies to determine the exact situation in the duodenum and around the outlet of the stomach. Hiccups come from some irritation of the diaphragm and it is just possible that there may be tiny perforations or some low grade inflammation irritating that structure. A diet that contains but little fat and that is high in carbohydrates is indicated. The amount of food taken at each meal should be rather small and four, five, or even six meals instead of the proverbial three should be taken. Carcinoma may develop in old ulcer areas, but if healing has occurred the danger is not great.

ASPARAGUS.

C. W. B. writes: What is the food value of asparagus?

REPLY.

According to Barborka, asparagus is classified as a 3 per cent vegetable. This means that a 100 gram portion [½ cupful] contains 3 grams of carbohydrate. Since 1 ounce is equivalent to 30 grams, a 3 1-3 ounce portion contains 1-10 of an ounce of carbohydrate. The protein content is 1 gram. It is not a vegetable upon which one may rely for hard physical effort, but appetizing and tasty nevertheless.

MUSCLES.

J. W. writes: I am 6 feet 2½ inches tall and 17 years old. When I wrestle with my friends I find I can hold my own, yet I have no visible muscles. Some one said that there are two kinds of muscles, one flat and the other round. Are the people who have flat muscles supposed to be just as strong as those with rounded muscles?

REPLY.

The bones of the body are covered with muscles that are flat or round in accordance with function. After all, muscles are collections of fibers that are attached to bones. These muscle fibers have the power of contracting and relaxing. Some muscles may be broad and flat, while others are like cylinders that taper at the ends. You probably have in mind the biceps muscle on the inner side of the upper arm, or the gastrocnemius muscle, which forms the calf of the leg. These are examples of the rounded types.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

Letters to this department must be signed with names and addresses of writers.

BUILDING EXITS.

Chicago, July 5.—[Friend of the People.]—There is an old three story frame building on the rear of the lot across the street which has only one entrance. The building department was notified about this place a few weeks ago and sent an inspector out. This inspector said the place was a fire trap and not fit to live in, yet the landlord has the flats up for rent and also for sale. Why isn't he compelled to comply with the law before he rents out these flats or sells the place to some unsuspecting buyer? It would be well also for the city to send an inspector to the first flat of this building, as the waste pipes are in bad condition and the flat damp and unhealthy. An old couple on relief occupies this flat.

A. C.

Our records indicate that owner was notified on March 25, 1935, to erect an additional stairway to the second and third floors of building, vacant at that date. Letter in file in this office, from the owner, states that required changes will be made before vacant apartments are rented.

The matter of waste pipes and unhealthy condition of first floor has been referred to the health department.

RICHARD E. SCHMIDT,
Commissioner of Buildings.

COLLECTING JUDGMENT.

Chicago, July 7.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In case a judgment against my husband is won in a civil suit, can they touch anything in the wife's name?

E. W.

Assets genuinely belonging to the wife would not be subject to her husband's ordinary debts, if that is what you mean to ask. On the other hand, if the husband has placed his assets in his wife's name as a fraud on his creditors, such a transfer could be set aside on proper proof.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

INSURANCE BENEFICIARY.

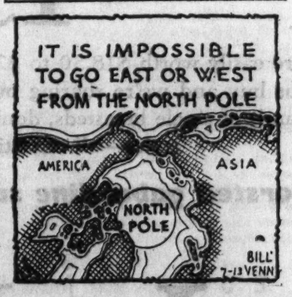
Chicago, July 7.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am named beneficiary in my husband's insurance policy, which was changed from his daughter's name to mine at the time of our marriage. I would like to know whether or not my stepdaughter could now claim half of the insurance, although I am named beneficiary in the policy. M. G.

Your stepdaughter would have no claim if the policy was so worded as to give your husband the right to change the beneficiary and he has taken the proper steps. We suggest that you direct the question to the home office of the insurance company.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph. D.



If a person started from the north pole he could not possibly go either east or west, for there are no such directions there. There is only one direction from the north pole, that is south. From the south pole there is only one direction, north. A person standing on the north or south pole could turn "right-about face" and not change the compass direction he was facing.

ABOUT TRAINS.

Chicago, July 10.—I can't help but notice all the talk nowadays about the rejuvenation of the railroads. I have a few ideas on this subject myself that I here offer for the enlightenment of any high salaried railroad president that wonders where and why the traffic he used to have has gone.

It is common knowledge that the highways have taken a good share of business that the railroads could have kept. Business changes from one carrier to another because of two reasons, either it does the job cheaper or it does it better. Now a railroad that is run right can haul freight or passengers cheaper, faster and safer than any other form of land transportation. When they do not do so it is because they haven't gone after the problem in the right way.

I see one of the New York extra fare trains almost every day go by with anywhere up to fifteen heavy cars, the locomotive barking away trying to get the train rolling. What good is a machine that is capable of 120 miles per hour if the train is so heavy that it takes ten miles or more to bring it up to anywhere near this speed? The same situation applies to freight service in a greater degree.

Now my ideas for correction of this phase of service are as follows:

1. For passenger service use a light Atlantic type locomotive, modernize it by increasing the boiler pressure, equip it with roller bearings, limit the number of cars to six, and put younger engineers in charge.

2. For freight service use Hudson or Pacific types such as are used for passenger service at present. Limit the trains to fifty or sixty cars.

3. Cut all passenger rates to a flat 2 cents per mile and cut freight rates at least 25 per cent.

I see no reason with this setup why New York should be more than 12 hours away, or Denver 14 hours, or west coast points 25 hours. The freight trains could average 60 if they keep the load down and the acceleration high.

With this type of service the highways could not compete either in speed or in price. Under present schedules any driver that wants to, in any cheap car, can beat train time, and most trucks will roll along lively when loaded.

A STOLEN BICYCLE.

Chicago, July 10.—Please warn all those boys and girls who have bikes to be sure to leave a lock on them at all times. I had a bicycle lock, but I did not bother to lock it when I left the bike in my yard. After lunch when I came out my bike was gone. With it went my chance for a summer job and hours of enjoyment for myself and my seven younger brothers and sisters. Needless to say, with a family as large as ours I will not be able to buy another bike and I should hate to see any one in the same fix as I am. TOM FULLAM.

COW PASTURE ECONOMICS.

Madison, Wis., July 9.—You neglected to draw the obvious moral in your editorial, "Cow Pasture Economics," namely, the farmer favors the cow that gives the most milk and not the one that does the most bawling. C. M. JANSKY.

A SOUTHERN VIEW.

Blanksville, La., June 26.—Although I have lived here for twenty years I am a native of Illinois, and my father was a subscriber to your paper for over forty years, and an earnest advocate of its policies.

Remembering the great role that Mr. Medill played during the civil war, I am earnestly appealing to you to save our country from destruction in its present situation, with a President bent on reducing us to the condition of Russia.

During the world war party lines were forgotten or submerged in a frantic endeavor to work together for the nation's safety, and now, if we are to survive as a nation, drastic measures must be adopted, and unless the Republicans put pride in their pockets for the time being and form a coalition party with the anti-Roosevelt Democrats we will all go down together. After twenty years in this stronghold of Democracy I know it to be a fact that no matter how dissatisfied men may be with the administration they would be eternally condemned by their fellows if they joined the Republican ranks on account of the old odium attached to the name since civil war days, but form a new coalition party, "Constitutional league," "National party," or anything you choose, and it would take like wildfire down here, and I know dozens of men who would welcome the thought of being able to oppose Roosevelt without having the [to them] odium of being called Republicans.

Let's save the country even if we Republicans have to be called by another name during one election. It will be very easy to resume it again "after the war is over." MRS. A. A.

SALES TAX.

Chicago, July 3.—If one-half of the two million shoppers in Chicago would buy a penny postcard and write to their senator about this unfair increase in the sales tax the results would be to the shoppers' distinct advantage. Unless you enjoy the role of martyr snap out of it, citizens of Chicago, and complain to the right party, not to your neighbor and business associates. M. C. S.

SODA CHECKS.

Chicago, July 9.—This evening my husband, two children, and myself went into a large chain drug store to have a soda and upon receiving our checks each soda was on a separate check at 15 cents each and 1 cent tax. When we spoke to the cashier about it she explained that they had to be on separate checks, so instead of paying 3 cents on the dollar we had to pay 4 cents on 60 cents. This tax is a swell graft for stores like this.

MRS. JAMES J. POWERS.

ENVY, HATRED, AND MALICE.

Chicago, July 7.—Father Coughlin has never broadcast over the air envy, hatred, and malice. You are a deliberate and premeditated liar and you know it. Every one knows why you malign Father Coughlin—for the same reason that you maligned Al Smith when he ran for the presidency. Coughlin and Roosevelt will be lovingly remembered when you and your damnable paper will be buried in oblivion, unwept, unhonored, and unsung. P. J. BROWNE.

ECLIPSE OF MOON GIVEN PREVIEW AT PLANETARIUM

Dr. Fox Lets Hearers See with Eyes of Science.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

While the political horizon is clouded and the course that the nations of the earth may take is hidden from mankind, even for the next few months and years, the courses of the stars and the planets are mapped and secure for centuries to come. They obey a law and a rhythm. Take down Oppolzer's Canon der Finsternisse and you may trace the eclipses of the sun from 1207 B. C. to 2161 A. D. And the moon has its way mapped from 1206 B. C. to 2163 A. D.

Dr. Philip Fox, director of the Adler Planetarium, a distinguished astronomer, who has just completed a monumental research work on stellar distances, explained these laws and traced the course of eclipses across the vault of the heavens yesterday in a special lecture preparatory to the lunar eclipse next Monday night. He called it a preview of the eclipse, which will begin at 10:11 p. m. and enter totality at 11:09.

All in Sun Cast Shadow.

Everybody in the sunlight casts a shadow, he explained, and the sun itself casts a long, tapering shadow pointed away from it. The moon will enter the earth's shadow, appearing as a deep red disk because of the refraction or bending of light around the earth.

"The earth," he said, "has been going on its cycle about the sun, and the moon in its cycle about the earth, for countless centuries, before even man came to earth, and this will continue long after his tenancy of earth is over. We must give credit to man for being able to understand these things, which form the basis of the idea of law and order in the universe. We must respect the ancients who were able to winnow out these celestial relationships and predict these movements."

His voice solemn, intoning as a priest might call to the rising sun on the high balcony of an eastern mosque, Dr. Fox recited in the twilight of the planetarium dome, with the countless hosts of heaven moving above his audience as they move over the ocean traveler on a night in the tropics, the following:

Yon rising moon that looks for us again,
How oft hereafter will she wax and wane,
How oft hereafter rising look for us
Through this same garden and for one in vain!

While he spoke, music from Handel's pastoral symphony in "The Messiah" stole softly into the hall.

Eclipse of Passing Interest.

There is no great scientific interest in the eclipse, he said, but it is interesting because it can be observed. Science has measured its heat and has found that the moon under eclipse soon returns to the temperature of outer space because it has no blanket atmosphere to protect and retain its heat.

"If you know the stars you will never fear the dark," he told his audience, who were taken through a year of heavenly movements in three minutes and witnessed sunrises and moonsets in rapid succession, while the planets were strung across the vault like pearls on a necklace. Nothing approaches this in beauty and grandeur, he said, with countless millions of starts in sight, each one a great sun dimmed by distance. He told artists that the horns of the crescent moon always point away from the sun. The full moon is on the opposite side of the earth from the sun. At night we are in the shadow of the earth.

The eclipse will take about two hours. Members of the Chicago Astronomical society will gather at the planetarium Monday evening to observe it through small telescopes.

ASSAULT TRIAL OF HORAN DRIVER AGAIN PUT OFF

The trial of Paul Morley, 33 years old, chauffeur for Al Horan, bailif of the Municipal court, again was deferred yesterday. Municipal Judge Joseph H. McGarry, sitting in the South State street police court, returned the case to Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby for reassignment.

Morley is charged with assault by Harold Grimord, 23 years old, 3258 Jackson boulevard, whose home is half a block from that of Morley. Grimord charges that Morley struck Mrs. Alma Grimord, his mother, and fired four shots into the ground during an altercation in which Grimord also was beaten.

Judge Frank M. Padden, after hearing a portion of the case a week ago, continued the trial until today. Judge Padden is now on vacation and Judge McGarry is sitting in his place.

Grimord has charged that repeated efforts have been made by minor politicians to get him to drop the case, which he refuses to do.

Infant in Hospital After Swallowing Safety Pin

Dolores Zbilski, 9 months old daughter of Joseph Zbilski, Northbrook township farmer, was taken to the Children's Memorial hospital early yesterday after she had swallowed an open safety pin in her crib at home. After an examination physicians at the hospital dislodged the pin from the upper part of the child's esophagus and it entered the stomach. It will not be known until today whether an operation will be required, the doctors said.

Husband Held for Wife's Death in Suicide Pact

William L. Ganschaw, 59 years old, 1657 North Artesian avenue, was held to the grand jury on a charge of murder yesterday by a coroner's jury investigating the death of his invalid wife, Elizabeth, 58 years old, on July 2. Ganschow testified that his wife committed suicide by inhaling gas in a suicide pact which he failed to carry out.

CITY'S LABORERS WILL GET $235,000 INCREASE IN PAY

Budget Is Approaching Final Form.

The staf of the city council's finance committee, working with Ald. J. M. Arvey [24th], chairman, acted yesterday on the committee's instruction to aid the city's day laborers by setting up in the supplemental budget $235,000 to give 2,383 per diem workers 19½ extra working days during the next 5½ months.

At the same time the staf pared away $300,000 of over appropriation originally recommended by the committee, and announced that the budget is in nearly final form.

Budget for Streets Raised.

The extra work for the day laborers, who were not at first included in Mayor Kelly's program to restore one-half of the pay cuts now in effect for the regular city employés, will be paid out of the street cleaning appropriation. This was originally recommended at $1,000,000 by Mayor Kelly. On Tuesday the finance committee increased the figure to $1,270,000, and urged an additional $240,000 for per diem workers. These figures brought the budget $300,000 above the $4,563,258 surplus available for the supplemental budget under the 1935 pegged levy. The action of the staf yesterday restores the budget to balance.

Ald. Arvey said last night that estimates of expenditures drafted yesterday will be placed in ordinance form over the week-end. The finance committee will vote on the ordinance on Monday, and it will go to the council on Tuesday.

Fund for Police Reduced.

Deliberations yesterday reduced the appropriation to give the police department 500 additional men from $495,000 to $442,759, a cut of $52,141. Commissioner Allman's request for 68 new police sergeants was halved, and a plea for 25 extra policewomen was rejected.

An appropriation of $1,498,634 to restore half of the pay cuts of police, firemen, and other regular city employés was left unchanged. The staf also included appropriations of $5,000 for the Chicago plan commission, $15,000 for building experts, and $10,000 for concerts and opera planned for the navy pier late in the summer. A request of the city controler for an additional $68,000 for his office was reduced by $6,000, and an appropriation for 200 additional firemen stood intact at $198,000.

FRENCH FASCISTS FIGHT RADICALS; SEVERAL HURT

PARIS, July 12.—(AP)—A preview of what authorities fear Bastille day Sunday may bring was seen today in a clash between members of the Croix de Feu [Cross of Fire] nationalistic organization, and "Anti-Fascists" at Valenciennes.

Several persons were reported injured, one municipal councilor seriously, before mobile guards could disperse the several hundred fighters.

Warned by the occurrence, Paris police tightened their watch over the capital whose left and right wing political forces were divided into two camps for huge Bastille day demonstrations.

A wall of 20,000 police stretched across Paris will cut it into two sections, the left wing "popular front" staging its parade on one side and Col. Francois de la Rocque's rightist Croix de Feu on the other.

The "popular front" reported it had ordered 800,000 liberty bonnets, indicating the expected size of its gathering.

Minister of State Edouard Herriot, determined to subdue red tinged demonstrations, ordered 300 national tricolor flags to be carried at the front of the parade in which his Radical Socialists will march with the more extreme Socialists and communists.

HE'S WIDE AWAKE; GIVES UP HUNK OF EAR TO PROVE IT!

Irving Levine, 30 years old, 139 North Central avenue, insists that he is not one to sleep on his job as carpenter at the Garrick theater. He yielded up a portion of his left ear to maintain that position yesterday.

Levine saw Nickolas Smith, 38 years old, 3311 Ravenswood avenue, janitor at the neighboring Apollo theater, shining up a doorknob. He hurried to Smith's side and asked:

"Why do you go around and tell people that I'm always sleeping on the job?"

GERMAN PRIEST SENT TO PRISON; FINED $16,000

Nazis Convict Fourth of Fifty Defendants.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 12.—The temporary lull in the prosecution of monks and nuns for violation of currency regulations ended today when Father Ernst Vogare of the St. Vincent cloister of Cologne was sentenced to jail for two and one-half years and fined $16,000. The court also ordered the confiscation of $12,000 worth of property of the St. Vincent order. This was the fourth of fifty scheduled prosecutions on charges of smuggling funds out of Germany.

The temporary lull in prosecutions was attributed to a desire to lessen the friction in talks with Roman Catholic authorities. Resumption of the trials indicates that the negotiations failed.

Smuggled $4,000, Nazis Claim.

According to evidence in the Vogare case the priest smuggled $4,000 of German notes into the Netherlands to redeem a Dutch loan take up by his cloister. The priest, it also was charged, diverted donations from Costa Rica to the Netherlands instead of permitting them to come direct to Germany.

The prosecutor urged the most severe sentence for Father Vogare as a deterrent, because, he said, until the first of these prosecutions was initiated "the cloister has cheerfully continued to smuggle currency. The monks drove over the frontier on motorcycles with knapsacks stuffed with German notes."

Strained relations between Catholics and Nazis were further illustrated by an incident at Birkungen, near Erfurt, where a Catholic priest was taken into "protective arrest" for striking a Hitler youth.

Youths Taunt Priest.

A camp of 1,500 Hitler youths was established recently in this strong Catholic district. As the priest was passing the camp the youths taunted him with shouts of "Heil, Hitler."

The clergyman struck one boy. The Hitler youths then demonstrated in front of the priest's residence. The parishioners sided with the priest. Firemen came to disperse the boys with streams of water, but the youths retreated. The police then took the priest into custody "for his own safety."

Y. M. C. A. TO PAY TAX, NEW JERSEY BOARD DECIDES

Trenton, N. J., July 12.—[Special.]—In denying exemptions to the Young Men's Christian associations of Hackensack and Ridgewood, the state board of tax appeals ruled today that institutions entitled to exemption from municipal levies must prove not only that they are charitable, religious or benevolent in nature, but also that their properties are not conducted for profit.

"Providing athletic and recreational facilities for those able to pay is not benevolent or charitable work," said the board in disposing of the Hackensack appeal.

"Conducting tournaments and games for business and professional men is far from being benevolent. Providing dormitories and renting rooms at substantial rates and the operation of a cafeteria, available to the general public, is a commercial enterprise akin to the hotel business.

"Business and professional men who pay for sports and athletic activities, persons who rent rooms and pay fair and substantial rates, and the public who use the cafeteria and pay for meals are not the beneficiaries of charity or benevolence."

MALOY'S GUARD SURRENDERS FOR MAIL LOOT QUIZ

Gus Anders, said to have been a bodyguard of the slain Thomas E. Maloy, once czar of the Moving Picture Operators' union, surrendered yesterday in the United States courthouse on a charge of conspiracy with John J. [Boss] McLaughlin and 38 others to possess part of the loot taken in a $235,000 mail robbery at Clark and Adams streets on Dec. 6, 1932. Anders pleaded not guilty before Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan and was remanded to the county jail until he raises bond of $10,000.

McLaughlin, who is serving a five year sentence in Leavenworth penitentiary for handling part of the ransom money in the Edward G. Bremer kidnaping case, has entered a plea of not guilty in the present case. Bench warants were issued yesterday for Mrs. Edna Lovig of New York City, the only woman involved in the mail robbery case, and Thomas H. Baird and Jimmy De Grassi, both of Springfield.

Edward A. Fisher, assistant United States district attorney in charge of the case, said that the trial date would be set at the opening of the fall term of court in September.

PLANET EXPERTS DASH HOPES FOR LIVING ON MARS

PARIS, July 12.—(AP)—Members of the International Astronomical union today banished hopes that there may be human beings on Mars by reporting that the atmosphere there contains insufficient oxygen.

The commission on planets, comets, and satellites reported to the union's congress, in session here, that its members agreed that the oxygen in Mars' atmosphere "must be less than 1 per cent of the earth's atmosphere."

Commission members said the report meant that Mars' atmosphere precludes the presence of "life as we know it existing in Mars." They said, however, that it was possible there was vegetation and even some sort of animal life.

Spain Bans Photography on Flights Over Country

MADRID, July 12.—(AP)—The official gazette today published a decree forbidding private individuals from using any photographic apparatus during airplane flights over Spain.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

Find Heat Killed Lamb

July 12, 1935.

DR. A. T. TORREY and Dr. E. H. Barger of the department of animal pathology of the University of Illinois have just reported that no signs of any infectious disease or vegetable poisoning have been found in the dead lamb which died on the Wheaton Experimental farm a few days ago. Their verdict is that this lamb, not a very strong one, simply keeled over from the heat. Animal inoculation [utilising blood from the lamb] failed to show any results whatsoever and a post-mortem revealed no signs of disease. Before the scientists made their report it was thought that a vegetable poison might have killed the lamb. Now it looks as if this lamb simply shouldn't have galloped around the big pasture without a sunshade to protect it from the hot sun!

The young English call duck that has been hatched on the Wheaton farm got its first taste of "wild life" the other day. From all indications it enjoyed part of the experience, but not all of it. The call duck was taken from its coop behind Carl Henderson's house to Moon pond and immediately upon being released from a small cardboard box it darted straight toward the water as if very glad to get its freedom.

For a few minutes it waded around at the edge of the pond, but never went in so far that it couldn't touch bottom. This was something new for the duck, so it was taking things easy at first.

The Muscovy ducks on the pond evidently resented the intrusion of the newcomer and presently two or three of them started after the little English caller. The little fellow took one look at the big white strangers coming after him and then started in a bee line for dry land. He hadn't returned to the water when I left, but I'll wager he got back there before very long.

The boys have found a good job for Kate, the 18 year old work horse on the farm. Kate is hardly able to do a full day's work in the fields along with the younger horses, but she can pull the cultivator in the experimental plot and do a good job of it. The cultivator used in this plot isn't a heavy one and it doesn't tire Kate to drag it around for a few hours. At the same time she is very careful not to step on any of the young plants growing there.

BRITAIN SPEEDS PLANS FOR AIR LINE TO AMERICA

Cabinet Body Favors Arctic Route.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 12.—The British government has taken steps to speed up the establishment of regular trans-Atlantic mail and passenger service by British airplanes. Fearing other countries might jump in and grab off the rights to fly over and erect bases in the Scandinavian nations, the cabinet has set up a committee to examine the whole problem of operating a North Atlantic air route.

Three routes are under consideration. One is the direct Ireland to Newfoundland route. The second is the more southerly course via Lisbon or Gibraltar and the Azores to Bermuda. The third, via the arctic, will be reexamined.

Arctic Route Favored.

The latter route, while 1,000 miles longer than the direct route is understood to be more attractive to the government because it solves the problem of range. This route, in none of its stages, is more than 600 to 800 miles long, while the other routes present the problem of nonstop hops of 2,000 miles.

The modern air liner will be able comfortably to carry pay loads, even against continual head winds, to America with the small fuel load needed to negotiate the short stages of the arctic routes, and it is believed the right to erect aerodromes and wireless stations in Iceland and Greenland would readily be granted.

The cabinet committee will complete its labors as soon as possible so that the government subsidized Imperial Airways will be able to place orders for the right kind of aircraft immediately to compete in the race for aerial supremacy across the North Atlantic.

Ocean Seaplane Route Planned.

It was also learned tonight that a scheme to link the principal ports of America and the British empire with a fast seaplane service is under consideration by leading members of the shipping, commercial and banking worlds.

The scheme is being promoted by Mrs. H. B. Tate, Conservative member of parliament, and Squadron Leader Winfield-Smith.

"We propose to operate the service to New York via the Azores and Bermuda," Mrs. Tate declared. "It is also intended to operate short services to Cherbourg, Copenhagen, Lisbon and Gibraltar and via the Suez canal to India, Ceylon and Singapore."

BALTIC NATIONS DECIDE TO LINE UP WITH RUSSIA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, July 12.—The failure to achieve an eastern European security pact because of opposition by Germany and Poland is expected to result in the Baltic states signing a mutual assistance pact with Moscow. The pact will be along the lines of similar agreements already closed by France and Czechoslovakia.

This decision was taken at a conference of Latvian diplomatic representatives which has just closed at Riga.

The Latvians report they still hope a general agreement will be reached which will include Germany and Poland. The decision of the Baltic entente to sign a pact with Moscow is regarded as a defeat for German and Polish diplomats stationed in these countries, who have been angling for support of their stand against the eastern pact. Consequently, the French and soviet diplomats, who have combined their forces to attain Baltic support, are jubilant.

ULSTER ORANGE PARADE STONED; 3 KILLED, 40 HURT

Riot Ends Celebration of Battle of Boyne.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, July 12.—(AP)—A night of rioting, following Ulster's peaceful daylight celebration of the 245th anniversary of the battle of Boyne, left three persons dead and 40 wounded late tonight.

Shooting began again in the streets of Belfast after police had gained control of the situation following an hour's stiff battle with rioters in which gunfire crackled and stones were thrown. A third police officer was wounded in the later fighting.

A record number of orangemen in full regalia, their loyalist districts ablaze with bunting, participated in commemorations of the historic battle in 1690 which made protestantism secure as the official religion of Great Britain.

Peaceful Until Night.

With police everywhere watchful, peace prevailed throughout the day. Tonight, however, final sections of the "orange procession" returning here from Belmont were pelted with stones from the sidewalks. Police immediately opened fire on the attackers.

Mrs. Margaret Rodgers, 29; Edward Witchers, and an unidentified youth were shot and killed. Mrs. Mary Lang, shot in the abdomen, was reported in critical condition. Many other persons were wounded in the exchange of shots between police and rioters, while others were treated for head wounds inflicted by flying rocks.

The police fired into the crowd along York street, an extension of Royal avenue, Belfast's main thoroughfare, time after time. Constable Emerson and Detective Perrett were among those wounded. Both were shot in the leg.

30,000 Parade.

The parade of the Orangemen here, in which an estimated 30,000 marched, climaxed the night long gayety in which bonfires flared in many streets.

A number of resolutions passed by the Orangemen included pleas that Protestants resist propaganda against their faith and criticism of attempts to stir up religious troubles.

The Society of Orangemen was organized in 1795 to defend the reigning sovereign of Great Britain, support the Protestant religion and maintain the laws of the kingdom. It derives its name from William, Prince of Orange, who became William III. of England.

The Orangemen celebrate annually on July 12 the battle of the Boyne river, where the armies of King William III. defeated the Jacobite army of King James II, who fled to France, leaving William to occupy Dublin.

Women Battle Police.

FERMOY, County Cork, Irish Free State, July 12.—(AP)—One hundred women swinging fists and throwing stones battled police 45 minutes today in an unsuccessful attempt to break up on auction sale of cattle seized for taxes.

The police, at the expense of torn clothing, scratches, and bruises finally drove the women back. The cattle sale continued.

The demonstration was one of numerous protests made recently against the seizure of cattle for taxes.

JUDGE TO LAUNCH STUDY OF COUNTY OFFICIALS' BONDS

The first official act of Judge Walter J. La Buy when he takes his seat as chief justice of the Circuit court on Monday will be to inquire into the sufficiency of all county officials' bonds filed in that court, he said yesterday.

Judge La Buy said he would summon before him County Clerk Michael Flynn and Jury Commissioners John E. Traeger Sr. and William H. Cruden to learn whether their bonds are high enough. These three are the only ones filed in the court. Flynn's is $100,000, and Traeger's and Cruden's $5,000 each.

"I shall ask the county clerk," the judge said, "to give me a report on the finances of his office." In Flynn's office are the tax redemption fund and other "vest pocket" funds involved in the recent proceedings which brought the ouster of County Treasurer Robert M. Sweitzer, Flynn's predecessor as clerk.

Judge La Buy cited as his authority an old but apparently forgotten law which enables the chief justice of the Circuit court to make semi-annual examinations as to the adequacy of bonds filed in the court.

WOMAN BATTLES PAIR OF GUNMEN AND ROUTS THEM

With feet and finger nails Mrs. Adele Dervin routed two robbers who invaded the cigar store of her husband, Manny, at 4401 Lake street yesterday.

Just as the gunmen entered a newspaper truck driver arrived with a bundle of papers. He fled when he saw the bandits, and they fired several shots after him. The leader then demanded money.

Mrs. Dervin replied with a round of biting, kicking and scratching. In the meantime, William J. Wiegref, 4411 Maypole aveuue, a former policeman now on a disability pension, had heard the shots. He arrived at the cigar store just as the bandit leader ran out, with Mrs. Dervin behind him tearing his shirt to shreds.

The gunmen sprang into a waiting automobile driven by a confederate and fled. Wiegref took up the pursuit and sighted the trio later at Karlov avenue and Wilcox street. He opened fire, but the bandits escaped after returning the shots.

State Still Awaits U. S. Decision on Tax Tokens

K. L. Ames Jr., state director of finance, yesterday was awaiting word from Washington as to what form of sales tax token would be approved by the federal government. After treasury officials expressed dissatisfaction with the tokens now in circulation, two new designs were submitted to them. One is for a square token with rounded corners. The other is similar to the one now in use except that it has a hole in the center and the word "mills" is omitted.

U. S. ARMY BEGINS PROBE OF 'SUICIDE WAVE' AT FORT

Canal Zone Quiz Follows Editor's Charges.

BY GERALD MARTIN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BALBOA, C. Z., July 12.—The inspector general of the Panama canal department today ordered Gen. Harold B. Fiske to begin an investigation of charges made by Nelson Rounsvell, publisher of the Daily Panama American, against Col. J. V. Heidt, commanding officer at Fort Clayton. Gen. Fiske is commandant of the department.

Rounsevell, an American, charged that the recent "epidemic" of suicides among soldiers at Fort Clayton, which guards the Pacific side of the locks of the Panama canal, was caused by a situation which has driven an unprecedented number of enlisted men insane.

The newspaper launched a front page attack upon Col. Heidt as the "Simon Legree of the Panama canal army department, whose cruel, relentless driving of his men by day and his indifference to their marihuana smoking by night has earned for his command the title of suicide post."

Probe Is Demanded.

"An investigation by the secretary of war is demanded immediately," the Rounsevell article continued. "The causes directly responsible for this present unprecedented epidemic of suicides cannot consistently be ignored by the press or the public.

"The responsibility must soon be placed squarely upon somebody's shoulders for the aggravated situation that has driven an unprecedented number of soldiers insane and is keeping noncommissioned officers as well as their wives in tears and on the border of hysteria."

Rounsevell, who was a soldier during the world war, claims that from dusk until midnight the soldiers, who are mostly recruits from the United States and unaccustomed to the tropics, wander in stealthy groups over to the railroad tracks and huddle in secluded spots smoking marihuana cigarets.

Says Troops Are Discouraged.

He said the soldiers are fatigued, discouraged, disheartened, and crazed by their hardships.

Rounsevell declared the marihuana weed is being grown largely in Panama to meet the demand of the soldiers, and is "purchasable along highways as well as at every back door of Fort Clayton.

"The despondent, homesick boys finally, under their heartbreaking toil in the blistering sun, cannot take it any longer," the publisher said, "and resort to a timely bullet."

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: First Things First

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

If you listen to Hal Kemp on Wednesday evenings you know that after he has played a number or two he steps to the microphone to introduce "Babs and Her Brothers," a trio of close harmonists. Behind that filial label lies a story of muddled marriage.

Several years ago Babs Ryan and her "brothers" came to the attention of Fred Waring. He liked them and made a place for them in his organization.

There were persistent rumors that Charles, the elder of the Ryan brothers, (the other one is Little), and Babs were married. That report became substantiated a year later when Babs and Charlie approached Waring and announced that they had just been divorced, were breaking up their act and hence leaving his organization.

Both Babs and the two brothers thereupon tried to line up new partners and failed. A few months later they decided to team up again—professionally, that is—and soon secured the engagement with Kemp on his NBC program.

There have been many fractured romances in radio. Waring must have lent a sympathetic ear when he heard Babs' story. Not so long ago he was divorced by his first wife, the former Dorothy McAteer of Pittsburgh. Two years ago he married Evalyn Nair, a former entertainer in his troupe, who had divorced Will Morgan, member of the band.

A short time ago Harry Horlick's brother brought action for damages against the Gypsies' maestro. The brother's wife had obtained a divorce and married the radio orchestra leader.

Then there was the case of Darrell and Harlan Ware, two brothers who were Chicago script writers. The former wife of Harlan is now married to Darrell.

Lee Sims and Ilomay Bailey, famed radio team appearing at the Palace this week, were both married before, and their former mates now are married to each other. They are Robert and Ruth Steiner and are friends and often bridge opponents of the Simses. Steiner for several years was business manager of the Simses.

Though the general progressive polygamy of Hollywood is unknown in radioland there have been multiple marriages. Paul Whiteman, now married to Margaret Livingstone, formerly of the movies, had been married three times before.

Julia Sanderson of the radio team Crumit and Sanderson was first married to Tod Sloan, famed jocky. Her second husband was Lieutenant Commander Bradford Burnette. Then she married Frank Crumit, her present partner.

Ted Flo-Rito was divorced by Janet Flo-Rito in 1932. Last year he married Madelyn La Salle, former wife of Stevens H. Hammond, polo player.

Rudy Vallee was divorced at least once before his smashup with Fay Webb Vallee.

Graham McNamee's first wife, Josephine Garrett, divorced him three years ago. Last year he married Ann Lee Sims, a New Orleans youngster.

Widowers in radio are scarce, but by no means rare. Two are connected with Maj. Bowes' amateur hour. Maj. Bowes' wife, the late Shakespearean actress, Margaret Illington, died last year. Prior to her marriage to Bowes she had been the wife of Daniel Frohman, theatrical producer.

James Wallington also is a widower, his bride, Anita Fuhrman, having died several months ago. Conrad Thibault, the Show Boat baritone, lost his wife several years ago.

MRS. E. W. CUSTER IS DEAD, AGED 86; NOTED MUSICIAN

Many friends learned yesterday of the death last Sunday of Mrs. Ella White Custer, who for years had been an influence among young musicians. Mrs. Custer, who was 86 years old, died in the Windermere East hotel after an illness of several years.

Before her marriage to the late Jacob Rambo Custer, an attorney, Mrs. Custer was a well known singer. As a girl she sang at President Lincoln's funeral services in Chicago. After discontinuing her professional appearances, she kept up her interest in young musicians, financing the studies of many of them.

Mrs. Custer was a member of the Musicians' Club of Women and of the Cordon club.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday. Burial was at Grand Rapids, Mich., Mrs. Custer's birthplace. No near relatives survive her.

GRIEVING WIDOW KILLS HERSELF IN WAUKEGAN HOME

Grieving over the death of her husband, Mrs. Florence Anthony Brewster, 50 years old, 24 North Utica street, Waukegan, shot herself to death in bed at her home yesterday.

MRS. FLORENCE BREWSTER.

Mrs. Brewster was the widow of Guerdon L. Brewster, director of the Chicago Hardware Foundry company of North Chicago, who died in September 1933. Yesterday was the 29th anniversary of their marriage.

The widow's daughter, Elizabeth, who is Mrs. Donald Brinkman, went to wake her mother yesterday and found her dead, a pistol nearby. She testified at the inquest, which ended with a verdict of suicide, that her mother had been despondent since the death of Mr. Brewster.

For the last 16 years Mrs. Brewster was a member of the Waukegan Township High school board and was chairman of its teachers' committee. She was an active member of the Glenflore Country club.

Besides her daughter she is survived by a son, Derry, who is a student at the University of Illinois, and by a brother, Charles B. Anthony of Evanston. Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. today in the chapel at 236 North Genesee street, Waukegan. Burial will be in Oakwoods cemetery there.

HEILEMANN GETS 1 TO 10 YEARS IN $16,525 THEFT

Frank S. Heilemann, 50 years old, 2145 McDaniel avenue, Evanston, once president of four insurance companies, was sentenced to one to ten years in prison on a charge of embezzlement yesterday. Judge Michael Feinberg of the Criminal court heard the case without a jury.

A co-defendant, John L. Robinson, an attorney, received a separate trial and testified for the state. The two men were charged with embezzling $16,625 from th Pacific States Life Insurance company of Colorado.

Testimony showed that the Pacific States company owed the American Conservation company $21,525. Heilemann, who was manager of the eastern division of the insurance company, bought the claim from the Conservation company for $5,000 in Robinson's name, then sold it to the insurance company for the full amount.

Heilemann's motion for a new trial was overruled and he was given until Sept. 9 to file a bill of exceptions in the state Supreme court.

BODY OF WOMAN FOUND IN RUINS OF BURNED BARN

The body of Mrs. Nellie Catlow, 29 years old, was found last night in the ruins of the barn behind her home at 208 Lake street, Barrington, after the structure had been destroyed by fire. The body was clad only in a night dress.

Neighbors who summoned the fire department said the fire swept the entire barn, which served as a garage, almost in an instant, as though it had broken out at several places simultaneously.

Wright Catlow, husband of the dead woman and owner of the Catlow theater in Barrington, was unable to tell police how his wife happened to be in the garage at that time. He said he had taken the family car with him to the theater. He was there when news of the tragedy reached him.

Other relatives told police that Mrs. Catlow was in frail health for two years and was treated at sanitariums on several occasions.

DETROIT CALLS MAGAZINE GRAFT CHARGES LIBEL

Detroit, Mich., July 12.—[Special.]—Cracking back at the magazine "Today" which in its current issue says that when Frank Murphy became mayor of Detroit in 1930 the city was "hamstrung with graft" the council today sent a letter to Vincent Astor, publisher, and Raymond Moley, editor, demanding a retraction of "the libelous statements."

The letter referred to statements in the magazine article as "ridiculous, fantastic and absurd."

"If, in 1930, this city was 'saddled with debt' it was considerably more burdened with obligations at the expiration of the regime of Frank Murphy," the letter said.

"The statement is made that Frank Murphy 'spent $10,000,000 on relief and showed economies of $15,000,000 in the abolition of graft' Frank Murphy did not spend $10,000,000 on relief; he spent $35,300,000 and the statement that he abolished $15,000,000 in graft is almost too absurd to merit attention."

Ends Year with Surplus.

Detroit, Mich., July 12.—[Special.]—By virtue of a high percentage of tax collections, the city of Detroit completed the 1934-'35 fiscal year on June 30 with an operating surplus in excess of $3,500,000.

Expenditures for the year totaled $79,722,132 while receipts reached a total of $83,274,937.

Both current and delinquent tax collections exceeded expectations. The 1934-'35 city budget contemplated the collection of 70 per cent of the current levy, or about $38,850,000. Current tax collections actually mounted to $41,375,202.50, or nearly 75 per cent.

RACKETEER'S INTEREST IN PLANT IS DENIED BY JAMES ROOSEVELT

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—James Roosevelt, eldest son of the President, denied a report today that Irving Wexler, alias Waxey Gordon, the racketeer now in a federal penitentiary, was part owner of the National Grain Yeast corporation of Belleville, N. J., of which he recently was elected president. He also denied that the plant made grain alcohol. Mr. Roosevelt said that the company makes nothing but yeast, and sells only to bakers, making no sales to brewers.

According to Roosevelt, Samuel Brass, who preceded him as president, is no longer connected with the company. Brass said he intended to remain as a director.

Federal court records in Newark show that in 1929, when Brass was president, the company applied for an industrial alcohol and denaturing plant and a bonded warehouse permit. The bureau of industrial alcohol denied the application because Brass refused to name the company's financial backers. The case was taken to court, and Federal Judge William N. Runyon upheld the government, saying that it had a right to know the names of those financially interested in an industrial alcohol plant.

ELIA W. PEATTIE, FORMER TRIBUNE WRITER, IS DEAD

Literary Critic and City's Second Girl Reporter.

Mrs. Ella Wilkinson Peattie, for many years literary critic for THE TRIBUNE, died suddenly of heart trouble yesterday in the summer home of her son, Prof. Roderick Peattie, in Wellingford, Vt. She was 73 years old.

Mrs. Peattie was the widow of Robert Burns Peattie, widely known Chicago and New York newspaper man, who died in 1930. Mr. Peattie had been a member of THE TRIBUNE staf for 19 years when he retired in 1920 and he and his wife went to live in Tryon, N. C., where Mrs. Peattie had since resided.

Born in Kalamazoo, Mich., in 1862, Mrs. Peattie came to Chicago as a young girl. She joined THE TRIBUNE staf in 1884, becoming the second girl reporter in the city. She wrote a short story, "Jim Lancy's Waterloo," attacking the railroads' grip on the western farmers, that attracted wide attention in the literary world. Soon after that she became a contributor to magazines, including the Atlantic Monthly and the Saturday Evening Post.

Married in 1883.

Mrs. Peattie was married in 1883. Five years later she and her husband went to Omaha, where both worked on the World-Herald, he as managing editor. They returned to Chicago in 1898, when Mrs. Peattie rejoind THE TRIBUNE staf. She became literary critic in 1901 and held that position until 1917. For a large part of that time she and Mr. Peattie lived in Bond avenue, now South Shore drive, near 74th street.

The circle in which Mrs. Peattie moved included literary and artistic people of this vicinity and such easterners as Richard Watson Gilder and his sister, Jeannette Gilder. In her criticisms Mrs. Peattie was among the first to recognize such eminent authors as Arnold Bennett and Willa Cather. Mrs. Peattie wrote numerous books herself, one of the more notable being "The Precipice," a novel of Chicago life.

Interested in Woman's Advance.

Throughout her life Mrs. Peattie worked in the interest of women. She was past president and a founder of the Cordon club. Her other clubs include the Fortnightly, the Chicago Woman's club, and the Little Room club. She was a member of the Society of Colonial Dames and the Poetry Society of America.

Three sons survive. They are Prof. Peattie, a member of the faculty of Ohio State university, at Columbus; Edward Peattie, automobile dealer of Woodbury, Conn., and Donald Peattie, a writer who lives near Glenview. Funeral services will be held in the east.

Grace Moore Does It Again in New Movie

"Love Me Forever" Better than Her First Film.

Presented at the Chicago theater.

THE CAST.

Margaret Howard.....Grace Moore
Steve Corelli.....Leo Carrillo
Michael Bartlett.....Michael Bartlett
Philip Cameron.....Robert Allen
Fields.....Spring Byington
Maurizzio.....Thurston Hall
Miller.....Douglas Dumbrille
Luigi.....Luis Alberni

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Maybe you think Mr. Leo Carrillo doesn't get a break in this picture . . . But there I go—talking out of turn again!

"Love Me Forever" scores as Screen Triumph No. 2 for Grace Moore! It presents her with a story that is a fitting frame for her lovely self and it is flooded with the music of her lovely voice—WHICH, if I am any judge, is recorded even more admirably than was the case in "One Night of Love." ALSO, to my mind, Miss Moore photographed more alluringly than in her debut picture. [However, I know one person who disagrees with me there.] But I DON'T think there'll be any argument as to the charm of her portrayal. She has a reticence, a light touch, a quiet humor that are delightful.

The principal characters in the story are a young woman of birth and former wealth who, through the auction of her treasures, meets and becomes the protégée of an Italian gambler with a passion for music and a sensitive appreciation of "quality" whether it be represented in a woman or a cigar.

Corelli's adoration of Margaret's voice soon extends to the woman, who, he is to discover, is interested in and practically amanced to a man of her own class. The story of an odd, melodramatic, sometimes pitiful romance is sympathetically worked out to a finale that, I know, will please you a lot.

Music woven into the tapestry of the tale includes the quartet from "Rigoletto," the "Tiny Hands" duet between Mimi and Rudolfo, the off stage trio of voices and other music and scenes from "La Boheme," two old Italian folk songs, "Funiculi Funicula," and "Il Bacio," "Whoa!", a ragtime number, and the theme song, "Love Me Forever," written by Victor Schertzinger.

Singing with Miss Moore is Michael Bartlett, a lyric tenor whom I thought pretty swell. It will take Edward Moore, of course, to give an accurate report on the music—but ah knows what ah likes—and I liked ALL of it!

Leo Carrillo presents a colorful and most sensitive portrayal of Corelli. Did I say "break" in the first paragraph? I should have said TWO breaks. The first: being chosen as leading man for the fascinating songstress. The second: when, as Corelli, despairing and broken hearted, he—but non, non, NON—I will NOT tell you about that . . . !

Louis Alberni as Corelli's man Friday is no slouch and other players are all fine. Mr. Schertzinger's direction was topnotch.

The film is lavishly mounted and Miss Moore's gowns something I expect to hear Miss Seeger enthuse over.

She's certainly going to town these days—Grace Moore! Notice a new perfume's been named for her!

See you tomorrow!

She married into a goldfish family

MARRIAGE tossed her into the heart of a Chicago-Lake Forest family where order was only a by-product of joyous life and privacy a close imitation of the goldfish.

This is the theme of a refreshing new book by Dorothy Aldis, Chicago novelist. Be sure to read Fanny Butcher's review of this and other new books in today's Tribune book section.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—If we were a gentleman, Joan Bennett is one blonde we'd prefer in a big way. We think she's one of the real beauties of Hollywood. She's not a "type." She's just a natural beauty with finely chiseled features and the sort of eyes that drive poets to sonnets in the spring.

When she is away from the camera Joan must wear glasses. When we saw her she was wearing dark ones and when she removed them once we reflected on how tragic it was that such eye beauty should be hidden. You've never seen any orbs quite like hers—enormous gray green stars of a rather unusual shape. Her brows are wide and natural—no pencilled line for her. We'd say, too, that hers is one of the most beautiful mouths in Hollywood.

Her skin is flawless. It's the delicate kind that requires constant nurturing; dryness is her worst problem. She doesn't use soap and water very often but she practically bathes in cream. She says dryness is a hair problem, too, but you'd never know it. It's as lustrous as satin. She believes in brushing until the arms ache and the hair glistens, and when she has a shampoo there always takes place the elaborate ritual of blending oil with the liquid soap, using an egg beater.

She's set a nail fashion out here. She always uses a dark polish and draws it from the very rim of the nail up to the white tip, covering the moon completely. It's most effective on shapely nails and gives the illusion of length and slenderness to the fingers. Try it some time, you dark polish users.

Floral perfumes are her favorites, especially one gardenia that's just about perfect. It suits her beautifully.

She's one star who refuses to go bronze. She's the pink and white type and she's staying that way, thank you. She's crazy about clothes to the point where she must close her eyes and pray for strength when she passes a shop window. No sales resistance at all in this quarter.

She hasn't a line in her face, not even a little laugh wrinkle, but she bemoans the fact that three fine lines circle her throat. The fact that this is a legendary mark of great beauty doesn't comfort her; Barbara and Constance have these, too, and so does Joan's own small daughter Diana. Joan wishes they had been palmed off on some other family.

When we saw her in her blue dressing room on the Paramount lot she was resting between scenes of "Two for Tonight," in which Bing Crosby croons at her. How would you like to be in Joan's little shoes?

New Musical Shows Advance in Sound Films

Grace Moore Recording Better Than First.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Grace Moore's new picture, "Love Me Forever," now at the Chicago theater, is something to be regarded with much interest as another example of how music will coalesce with the films. Consideration of it as a drama is left to the attention of Miss Mae Tinée, but there is enough music in it for this department to give it a bit of attention on that side.

Miss Moore does almost as much operatically here as she did in "One Night of Love." She is up in both soprano roles in Puccini's "La Boheme." At one time she sings Musetta's aria of the second act, at another she sings Mimi in a considerable section of the first act. They are both to be commended as good singing and attractive appearance, and the "Che gelida manina" and "Mi chiamano Mimi" incidents are respectfully referred to all operatic producers as a model of how the scene should be acted.

There are various songs here and there, Arditi's "Il Bacio" at the beginning, "Funicull Funicula" a bit later. There is no scene as amusing as the one in "One Night of Love," where in a Milanese court various students practicing away like mad were suddenly discovered to be part of a complete musical number, but there is one approaching it, the "Rigoletto" quartet with forty singers instead of four. Miss Moore, however, remaining the only Gilda.

The reproduction of music on the screen would seem to have taken a step forward in the last year. The orchestra in particular sounds clearer and mellower and more like an orchestra. Miss Moore's voice retains the same striking quality as was noticed in the former film, unfailing distinct, expressive, artistic singing. Mary Garden showed her admiration for Miss Moore by taking her opera class to the first showing as an extra lesson in what she is teaching this summer.

WOMAN'S SYMPHONY

A morning rehersal in the band shell of Grant park may have had a slightly unexpected effect, at any rate the Woman's Symphony orchestra, conducted by Ebba Sundstrom, appeared for their first assignment in the summer concert series last night liberally sunburned on forearms and faces.

But there was no effect on the members' playing. Another enormous audience applauded liberally their performance of Weber's "Oberon" overture, the Gluck-Mottl Ballet Suite, Liszt's "Les Preludes," and other works of similar nature. Here faithful preparation and the musicianship of the conductor showed plainly.

Raymund Koch, Chicago baritone, was the soloist, singing Verdi's "Eri tu" from "A Masked Ball" with a fine voice, sincerity, and dramatic expression that brought him back for an encore, "Carry Me Back to Ole Virginny."

The Chicago Grand Opera orchestra will play tonight under the direction of Henry Weber. Mr. Koch will again be the soloist. The program:

1. Prelude 3d Act "Lohengrin".....Wagner
2. Midsummer Night's Dream..Mendelssohn
   Overture—Scherzo—Wedding March.
3. Aria "Di Provenza" from "La Traviata".....Verdi
   Raymond Koch.
4. Russian Sailors Dance from the "Red Poppy".....Gliere
5. Finale [4th Movement] Symphony No. 4.....Tschaikowsky
6. Dance of the Hours from "La Gioconda".....Ponchielli
7. "Streets of Pekin".....Hadley
8. "Wotan's Farewell" from "Die Walkure".....Wagner
   Raymond Koch.
9. "Roses from the South Waltz".....Johann Strauss
10. Overture "Tannhäuser".....Wagner

OPERA SEEMS ASSURED

There is gossip to the effect that the Chicago Grand Opera company has practically completed its plans for the coming season, although there has been no official pronouncement so far. The story adds that the directorship, musical and stage staf will remain practically intact, although some changes among the singers may be expected.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The second play of the North Shore Drama festival's program, staged last night in Glencoe for a run of twelve performances, is a comedy which deals with the public's maudlin taste for the lore of murders, particularly when there is a dash of mystery in the crime. It bears the title of "The Crime at Blossoms"; it was written by Mordaunt Shairp, a young English author of Oxford background, and its vein is light satire in a casual literary manner. It is a pleasant bit of British humor, gently ridiculing all plays, romances, and newspaper stories that exploit the gruesome atmosphere of crimes of blood.

This production brings to the festival as guest stars Jessie Royce Landis and Ernest Glendinning, both players with long lists of leading rôles in their careers. They appear as a young married couple living on a small income in an Elizabethan cottage in Sussex, and badly in debt, who return from a summer holiday to find that their home has been the scene of a murder. The woman to whom it had been rented has been killed; an unknown man has also been found dead in the place; and bloodstains are still visible on the floor.

Whereupon Miss Landis, harassed by bill collectors and worried by her husband's laziness, has an inspiration. She rigs their once happy home up as a tourist rendezvous and sells a half-hour of "x marks the spot where the body was found" to all comers at a shilling a head.

The business expands rapidly, so she takes on side lines of picture postcards and souvenirs of the late lamented. She also develops an effective scene of ballyhoo, in which, draped in crimson robes and looking like the muse of murder, she delivers a thrilling monologue about the crime and its motives, largely imaginative.

The second act of "The Crime at Blossoms," devoted to this chamber of horrors business, before a bus-load of tourists, all in an agreeable state of melodramatic jitters, Miss Landis acting as the lady in red, speaking beautifully of death by violence at the hands of an arch-fiend, is the high point in the performance. Through this second act Mr. Glendinning has little to do except to remonstrate about the side-show and putter in his rose garden off-stage.

The third act brings the murderer back to the scene of his crime to offer an explanation which puts an end to the use of Blossom's cottage as a murder museum. This surprising confession is the only trick in the "mystery play sense" that the piece contains.

The guest stars get effective support from the members of the resident company, especially from Edith Atwater, who wins the honors of the first act as an affected lady with a highly developed streak of morbid curiosity; and from J. W. Austin as a suave curate of the neighborhood who doesn't like the tourist business.

The cast contains twenty-one players, and even the insignificant characters acted by new recruits are handled in a satisfactory way. The single stage setting carries illusion as the interior of an old English cottage.

G. A. Holloway Is Engaged to Eastern Girl

Announcement Is Made at Pittsfield, Mass.

BY JUDITH CASS.

FROM Pittsfield, Mass., that lovely place in the Berkshires where several Chicagoans summer, comes word of the engagement of an eastern girl to a former Chicagoan, George Allen Holloway. The announcement is being made by Mrs. Brace Whitman Paddock of Pittsfield, mother of Miss Betsey Paddock, who is Mr. Holloway's fiancée.

He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cyrus Holloway of Glencoe and Tyringham, Mass., and a brother of the former Ruth Holloway, now Mrs. Edward Tarr Herndon of New York, who was married in Stockbridge on the 13th of last October. The wedding took place in St. Paul's Episcopal church with a reception following at Tamarack, the Tyringham residence of the Holloways. George Holloway and his two brothers, John W. and Larz Arthur Holloway of Chicago, were among the young men ushering at the wedding, which was one of the largest and most beautiful of last season in the Berkshires.

Miss Paddock attended Miss Hall's school in Pittsfield and the Masters' school at Dobbs Ferry. She is a member of the Junior league. Mr. Holloway prepared for Yale, from which he was graduated in 1931, at Phillips-Exeter academy and now is in business in New York. No date for the wedding has been announced.

Chancey R. Lamb to Wed Mrs. Ford.

Interesting romantic news that concerns grandparents came to light yesterday with the announcement by Mr. and Mrs. John W. Esmond of Barrington that her mother, Mrs. Silas M. Ford of St. Paul, would be married today to Chancey R. Lamb of Minneapolis. The wedding will take place at noon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Esmond with just the immediate families in attendance.

The bride's other daughter, Mrs. Richard Ordway, and Mr. Ordway, and her son, Silas M. Ford Jr., and his wife have come from St. Paul for the wedding, and Mrs. Eugene J. Carpenter of Minneapolis, the bridegroom's sister, also is here for the event. Mr. Lamb's daughter is Mrs. Mason Phelps of Lake Forest, who will attend the ceremony, of course, with Mr. Phelps and their daughter, Marion, and Mrs. Phelps' two daughters by her first marriage, Miss Jane and Miss Betty Brooks. Mason Phelps Jr. is away at camp, so he will be unable to be at the wedding.

Mr. Lamb and his bride will spend the summer at his cottage in northern Wisconsin and in the fall they will go to California to reside.

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

I WAS in the middle of Ernest Newman's "The Life of Richard Wagner" when a letter arrived from a friend who told me he had been reading Letters— Journey. the original letters of Wagner—the still unpublished letters in the collection of Mrs. Curtis Bok. Mrs. Bok purchased the famous Burrell collection, which contains nearly all the early love letters of Wagner to his first wife, Minna.

About 1883, which was the year of Wagner's death, the Hon. Mrs. Burrell began collecting material for a life of the composer. She managed to obtain from the widow of the Italian printer who had set up a private edition of "Mein Leben" (My Life), limited to fifteen copies, an extra copy which he had struck off for himself. "Mein Leben" gave Mrs. Burrell clews to persons who might possess Wagner letters and documents, and from this, too, she learned that Natalie, long supposed to have been Minna's younger sister, was really her daughter. She traced her to an old ladies' home, and finally persuaded her to sell the letters from Wagner to Minna that were in her possession. Cosima, Wagner's second wife, had requested the composer to get all his letters and bring them to Wahnfried, the Wagner home. He did write for them, but Natalie, who hated Cosima, held out the most important. This accounts for the fact that the earliest letter from Wagner to Minna in the official collection is 1842.

"MRS. BOK has allowed me to study her collection of Wagner manuscripts," writes Carleton Smith in his letter. "I enjoy particularly his early scores (she has his first opera) . . . because you can see how the seeds were planted and how they grew. . . . The letters to Minna show the impetuous Wagner. He signed himself 'Your Bridegroom' two months before Minna finally married him. . . . And, true to form, when he had his first orchestra in the small Baltic port of Riga, he started haranguing the seven as if the whole world were listening."

BY the time this paragraph is in print its writer will be on the ocean, bound for Bavaria, the land Wagner knew during the time Ludwig II. was his patron. The mountain drives over which white plumed horses pulled Ludwig and Wagner in a golden [illegible] will be toured in a flivver; Schwangau, the swan district, from which tradition says that Lohengrin, son of Parsifal, went forth on nightly quests, and the Ludwig castles of Neuschwanstein and Lindhof will be visited. (Ludwig's nightmare palace at Chiemsee was visited on an earlier trip.) I wish Ernest Newman's second book on Wagner, that is to deal with the Munich phase of Wagner's life, the patronage of Ludwig, and the retirement to Switzerland with Cosima, were already in print, but alas, it is not even announced for fall publication.

After a Bavarian sojourn will come the Austrian Tyrol, with steps at little wayside inns, and the music festival at Salzburg. And it all will be duly chronicled in this space—a public record, so to speak, of a private journey.

She will confer with professors at the University of Chicago during her four day stay in the city.

Use Oiled Silk for Fashionable New Raincoats

Made to Match Clever Umbrellas.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Practically everybody went out in the spring showers under those clever oiled silk umbrellas in vivid colors. They were obliging tops, for you could use them for rain or shine. And the price marks were so amazingly low for what you got that they were the best buys of the season. Now some enterprising designer with a yen for ensembling has produced a matching raincoat and they are as knockout looking as the umbrellas they match.

You'll find raglan sleeves that make the shoulder sectic fit snugly and smartly, a good wide turnover collar and a good lap in front all the way to the hemline. This lap can be tucked smoothly way across the chest at the top and anchored with a small covered button. There is a tie belt but no pockets.

But what they have done that merits all kinds of enthusiasm is the separate envelope case of the same matching oiled silk fabric about eight inches square. In this the entire coat can be folded and tucked away for the rainy day.

These coats are transparent and as supple as the stuff in the umbrella, and they should be a good find for the trek to and from the beaches this summer over a wet or dry swim suit. And especially practical for the lucky swimmers who get a ride back and forth.

The colors are grand . . . ivory, white, a sort of a yellowish white, scarlet, pale green, the sapphire blue in a pale tint, and a [illegible]od transparent purple tone, and the light brown. All have the envelope cases, all can be matched to the umbrellas that you might have bought earlier in the season, and the pleasant low prices are repeated in the coats.

Declares Teachers Overlook Serious Signs of Trouble

Teachers who are keeping a watchful eye out for violations of rules and disorderliness might be spending their time to better advantage, according to Prof. Raleigh Schorling of the University of Michigan. He addressed the Institute for Administrative Officers of Higher Institutions at its closing session yesterday at the University of Chicago.

"To the teacher profanity, smoking, lack of interest in work on the part of pupils, disobedience, defiance and obscene notes are all very grave offenses," he said. "A recent study showed the teachers principally interested in transgressions against authority, dishonesty, and lack of orderliness.

"To the psychiatrist such items as excessive suspiciousness, dreaminess, being overcritical of others, sensitiveness and shyness, all of which are apt to be ignored by the teacher, are regarded as the gravest of danger signals for serious trouble ahead. Cruelty, temper tantrums, and truancy are the most serious symptoms of trouble ahead."

He recommended that teachers have a wider training in psychiatry in order to recognize factors contributing to the pupil's inattention.

The Ortega Feud

By Marie De Nervaud

SYNOPSIS.

Chris Jackson is sent by Bill Benton, new sheriff of Monterey county, in early Spanish California, to put an end to the Ortega-Alvado feud, which has resulted in many murders. Pietro Sanchez runs the general store of the Big Sur valley. While calling on him Chris encounters Guido Ortega, Ramon, his dare-devil son, and Ysabel, his beautiful, sad eyed niece. He falls in love with Ysabel at first sight, and has a quarrel with Ramon and publicly spanks him. Chris outfits himself for a supposed lion hunting trip. He receives a note from Ysabel, hinting of a mysterious danger, begging his aid, and asking him to meet her in a fortnight. Chris camps in a canyon on the northern boundary of the Alvado ranch. He is advised by Rocky, an old Indian hunter, to leave the country. Next day Chris meets Francesca Alvado, flirtatious Spanish beauty. Chris tells her of his encounter with Ramon Ortega. It gains him entrée to the Alvado ranch. Chris is invited to a rodeo to be held there in a week. During the rodeo the warring families hold a traditional three day truce. Ysabel Ortega is facing a forced marriage with her cousin, Ramon. Her uncle refuses to tell her the secret of her birth, as he had promised to do on her 18th birthday. She appeals to Rocky, who promises to delay the priest until after the rodeo. Chris, masquerading as Rocky, comes to the Ortega ranch. He is captured. Ysabel rescues him. He escapes to the Alvado ranch. They become suspicious of him and he is forced to remain with them, an unwilling guest, under threat of his life. José Alvado, in love with Ysabel, ventures to the Ortega ranch and is held a hostage. The Ortegas arrive at the Alvado ranch for the rodeo. Francesca has fallen in love with Chris. She is madly jealous of Ysabel. Pietro Sanchez hints to Chris that there is a missing heir, a descendant of both the Ortegas and Alvados by a union years ago; also that Ysabel is not really the daughter of Guido Ortega's brother. Chris goes for a ride and is shot at. He suspects Roberto, Francesca's cousin, who is jealous of him.

INSTALMENT XXX.

JEALOUS PANGS.

"You seem to have been doing pretty well at piling up enemies," Rocky observed dryly. "But just because it wasn't Ramon you saw doesn't prove he wasn't behind it."

"I thought it was a point of honor not to indulge in any killings during the rodeo?" Chris raised a questioning eyebrow. "It strikes me they're falling down on that rather early in the game."

"That only applies to the Ortega and Alvado families, and their outfits," Rocky explained. "If you're counting on that protection you're out of luck. My advice to you is the same as before—only more so. Give my message to Ysabel and then make tracks for the Big Sur."

Chris obstinately shook his head as he pulled Bingo to him, and swung up on his back.

"I'm seeing it through," he announced, "but thanks for the warning just the same. I'll keep on my guard, from now on, believe me!" He headed Bingo toward the western slope of the ridge. "I'll give Ysabel your message," he called back, "but I reckon I can give her any help she needs."

"Don't be too sure!"

With this parting warning in his ears, Chris made his way toward the hacienda.

In the warm glow of the late afternoon sun with the ocean shimmering beyond it, it gave an impression of peace and tranquility, but a dark sense of forboding filled Chris' mind as he raced toward it.

Francesca was giving the last touches to the two long tables in the dining sala, while a group of Indian servants hovered near to carry out her orders.

Seemingly engrossed in her task, her mind was in reality occupied with speculations about Chris and Ysabel. Why had Chris never told her that he had met her? And was that time at the Big Sur the only occasion on which he had seen her?

Francesca saw him hasten across the court to where Ysabel stood.

There was something more between them than just a chance meeting, she reflected with jealous intensity. Chris had never looked at her with that glad light that had shone in his eyes at the sight of Ysabel.

"Tell them in the kitchen to have everything ready in half an hour and to keep the food hot until 10 o'clock. No one will be apt to arrive after that."

She crossed the hall to the formal reception room, satisfying herself by a quick glance that all was ready for the dancing. The furniture had been pushed back against the wall, and at one end a raised platform had been set up for the musicians.

This first night of the rodeo was always extremely informal in character. The guests were apt to arrive at any time, and eating and dancing went on continuously in marked contrast to the next night when a formal banquet proceeded the rodeo ball.

Francesca had been looking forward to tonight as the appropriate time to train the heavy batteries of her attentions on Chris, and force him to some sort of declaration.

With all the passionate abandon of her Spanish nature, she had given herself over to the growing fascination Chris exercised over her.

Piqued by his indifference, she had become more and more infatuated with him these last few days; and the fact that she suddenly found herself confronted with a rival, made her desire burn all the more fiercely.

The suspicion that the flirtation that she had started for the fun of making Roberto jealous was to prove a boomerang, and make her the victim of the pangs of jealousy was intolerable.

Hurrying footsteps behind her broke in on her thoughts and she stepped back into the shadow of the doorway as Chris came rapidly down the hall, then stopped not three feet from her and drew in a deep breath.

Francesca could not see what he was looking at, but the smile on his lips and the light in his eyes set her heart beating with a suffocating force.

The next moment he had passed on and stepping noiselessly into the hall behind him, Francesca saw him hasten across the court to where Ysabel Ortega stood framed in the arched doorway to her room.

Rooted to the spot, Francesca saw Chris bend down and say something that brought the pink flooding into Ysabel's cheeks.

"Well, well! Is everything ready?"

Francesca spun around at her father's voice, and hurriedly guided him into the dining sala. She had no intention of having him see the tableau in the court, or know that she had been watching it.

"There are places for sixty," it seemed to her that her voice had a queer strangled sound, as she pointed out the tables. "We are having tamales and enchiladoes, which I've told them to keep hot until 10 o'clock."

"Good! Be sure there are plenty; it must not be said that the Alvado hospitality is less than in former years. Have the Ortegas arrived?" He dropped his voice as he asked this question.

Francesca nodded.

"All of them? Ysabel, too?"

Again Francesca nodded, and a sudden cunning light gleamed in her eyes.

"Listen, padre! Why not take this opportunity to rescue José? Why not ask Chris to go down there with some vaqueros and get him?"

Señor Alvado drew himself up and faced Francesca sternly.

"I have told you not to mention José! He went down there of his own free will. Let him come back the best way he can." He turned to the door with a finality that disposed of the subject once and for all. "Come! It is time you were getting ready!"

Realizing that her scheme for rescuing José, and at the same time getting Chris away from Ysabel would have to be given up, Francesca left the dining sala with her father and making sure that Chris and Ysabel were no longer in sight, ran across the court to her own room.

The dance had been under way for some time before Chris was finally free to look for Ysabel. At dinner he had been at Francesca's table, while Ysabel had been at the farthermost end of the other one, next to Señor Alvado; and ever since the dancing had started, the fates seemed to have contrived to keep them apart.

Francesca's manner toward him had been puzzling, when he had taken the time to think of it. One moment she had lured him on with all the ardor of her dark eyes, only to be bitingly sarcastic with her next remark.

Too engrossed with thoughts of Ysabel to pay much attention to her moods, Chris had waited impatiently for the dinner to be over, and make his escape when the dancing should begin, only to find that he was evidently expected to dance the first dance with Francesca.

He had yielded to the grace and rhythm of her dancing and enjoyed the waltz in spite of himself.

Seizing the opportunity to escape as a laughing group of young men clamored about Francesca for the next dance, Chris slipped away, and looked anxiously about the room for Ysabel.

She was nowhere in sight and with sudden uneasiness, he went into the court and looked eagerly along its shadowed arcades.

Behind him the strains of music mingled with gay voices from the dining sala where late comers helped themselves to the steaming tamales and drank copiously of angelica.

Finding the court deserted, Chris was about to go back and look once more among the gay crowd at the dance, when he caught a glimpse of two men stepping from the lighted hall to the court.

In that second Chris recognized Señor Ortega and Ramon and instinctively stepped back into the shadow of the wall.

"I tell you, it is my wish," Señor Ortega's voice admitted of no argument. "You will dance the contradanza with Ysabel."

"Where is she?" Ramon's shoulders were raised in a resigned shrug.

"She is in her room. The contradanza is the next dance. Wait by the door and she will be there."

Turning as he spoke, Señor Ortega crossed the court and Chris could hear him tap on Ysabel's door as Ramon went back to the post assigned to him.

The booklet, "Thirty-six Stains and How to Remove Them," is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 5 cents. By mail, 7 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

An Iowa reader, Mrs. C. G. W. of Storm Lake, has just written to suggest a grand way of making iced tea. We know it's grand, revolutionary though it sounds in face of ordinary tea making procedure, because it has been one of our favorites for these several summers.

The process asks a bright, sunny day and enough forethought to begin in the morning if the tea is to be served that evening. It's made by filling a quart jar almost full of cold fresh water and adding to it four level tablespoons of black tea. The jar is covered, set in the warmth of the sun, and after a day's gentle brewing is ready for slight dilution and icing. The tea is full flavored and delicate. Mrs. W. says she uses the method all of the time at her summer cottage where, we presume, outdoor minutes are entirely too precious to be wasted in the kitchen.

Volunteer contributions look (and taste) so interesting this week that we're reversing the usual Saturday order in making room for them instead of our reader questions. We're sure you'll not object, once you try out this excellent strawberry dessert loaf, the recipe for which was sent to us by Mrs. G. C. of Indianapolis.

Strawberry Dessert Loaf.

2 cups halved strawberries
1-3 cup sugar
1 package strawberry flavored gelatin
1 pint warm water
6 marshmallows, finely cut
1 cup heavy cream

Combine the strawberries and the sugar and let stand for a half hour. Meanwhile dissolve the gelatin in warm water (note: or follow the manufacturer's directions as to temperatures). Chill until cold and sirupy. Place the gelatin in a second bowl of cold water or cracked ice and whip with a rotary beater until fluffy and thick like whipped cream. Fold in the sweetened berries, cut marshmallows, and stiffly beaten cream, and turn into a loaf pan to chill. Unmold and serve in slices. The recipe, says Mrs. C., serves 10 to 12 people.

Then there's a salad dressing, a sort of French dressing made with canned tomato soup, that we've tried and pronounced fine indeed for summer vegetable salads. For this recipe we're indebted to Miss B. G. of Chicago:

Tomato Soup Salad Dressing.

1½ cups salad oil
2 teaspoons salt
¾ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 10-ounce can tomato soup
2 teaspoons grated onion
2 tablespoons vinegar

Put all of the ingredients in a bowl in the order given. The mustard first is mixed with the lemon juice and Worcestershire for easier blending. (Two tablespoons of either may be used instead of the half and half proportion.) Beat vigorously with a rotary beater and keep in the refrigerator until used.

A second salad dressing recipe is just delightful for fruit salads of all kinds. For this excellent recipe, our thanks to an anonymous reader in Chicago:

¼ cup butter
½ cup sugar
2 eggs, beaten
2 tablespoons vinegar
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ teaspoon paprika
½ cup heavy cream

Cream the butter and sugar together, mix with the beaten eggs, and stir in the top of a double boiler, over boiling water, until the mixture coats the spoon. Add the vinegar and seasonings, stir over heat until thick, then cool. Before serving stir in the heavy cream.

Sheer Loveliness for Summer

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

For hot weather you could hardly find anything that would appear and be cooler than a sheer, dotted, cotton voile in lavender. A yellow and brown awning striped cotton would make a stunning sports dress, and a smart way to cut the material is with the stripes running bias to the center front seams and cut straight for the bodice.

The pattern, No. 2607, comes in sizes 14, 16, and 18 years, and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 35 inch material, with ⅞ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

Grand Rapids Show Has Best Sales in Years

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 12.—[Special.]—"Our best show since 1930 from the point of attendance and business," say the furniture manufacturers of this city. The current exhibitions in factory show rooms and in special exhibit buildings have already been viewed by more than 1,100 buyers from retail stores all over the country. And this huge furniture fair will continue until July 20. It's a more successful one than that of last summer, although then, too, things were looking up.

This is a traditional minded house—furnishings center. By far the greater number of displays feature fine copies of 18th century English, French and early American designs. Some modern [not modern, nor modernistic] but modern is seen, good looking lines designed by Gilbert Rohde and Russel Wright, respectively.

Mr. Rohde has continued his groupings of inexpensively priced pieces for the small, modern home. He uses east Indian laurel, walnut, white holly with beautiful effects. Items are interchangeable. A couch is made up of three separate upholstered seats, joined; bookcases may be used in groups of two, three or more.

Mr. Wright has taken one of the oldest American woods, maple, and has done the newest things with it. He has designed complete groups for living room, dinette and bedroom, keeping to a fairly small scale that is demanded by the apartment dweller, and going completely modern. His chests of drawers have no ornament but the beauty of the wood. His chairs are absolutely simple, comfortable, attractive to the eye. You'll see both these new lines—his and Rohde's—in Chicago in the fall. And we predict they will sell like hot cakes.

Manufacturers here find that modern in the low price brackets is the most popular. For pieces of more costly quality they turn out period styles, claiming time has shown a never ending steady demand for them.

A commendable feature of the show is the special exhibition being held by the designers, themselves. Too often they are forced to hide their light under cloak of anonymity. But for the first time on record they are now having their own names placed on their own furniture.

The independent showing of their work is held under the auspices of the Grand Rapids Furniture designers' association and more than 40 designers are represented. Following are some of them: Fred Hill; John S. Morton; A. Bevelaqua; E. L. Larkins; W. W. Kleaver; Charles T. Witman; Carl Bjorncrantz; Oliver Proctor; William Millington; William Blabach; Russel Thornquist; Henry H. Koster; Hans Berg; W. L. Kinnerly; C. G. Kinnerly; Ralph Widdicombe; Jesse Vennell; W. H. Clingman; Dave Evans; Marie and Russell Kirkpatrick; Arthur Gommesen; William Hoffman, Arthur Kirkpatrick.

The Overgrown Child Often a Victim of Size

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"Dear Mrs. Bevans," begins a letter. "In reading your column I have found just what worries me. I have a boy 12 and I was beginning to despair about his manners. Just as you described, I have found myself looking at boys in restaurants and wishing mine would be a little more attentive. It may be that I am expecting too much of him because he is so big for his age, but in any case I do need help."

I have seen 12 year olds as tall as grown men and women. In spite of ourselves, our expectations of them shoot upward as fast as they do. Nonsense and their own childish kind of silliness and breaches of manners that we would overlook in a 12 year old of average size we frown upon in this child of ours, whose head looms up on a level with ours—or higher.

In this we are wrong. We should, in fact, be more lenient with what we call the overgrown child than with the one of average size. He needs not laxness but great understanding and patience at home, this largely because at school and socially much is expected of him that he cannot live up to.

Rapid growth during the pre-adolescent years and the early teens is something the whole effect of which we do not, scientifically, know a great deal. But some concrete knowledge and our common sense tell us that we must not expect adult poise, seriousness, and responsibility from the child whose body has outgrown him.

That doesn't mean that we must not expect anything at all of him in the way of courtesies, responsibility, and so on.

We have helpful reading on both the 11 and 12 year old as well as the adolescent. The former booklet is called "Living with Our In-Betweens" and the latter, "Understanding the Adolescent." EITHER will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self addressed envelope.

G. A. Holloway Is Engaged to Eastern Girl

Announcement Is Made at Pittsfield, Mass.

of the life of Lake Forest and has been greatly entertained by many of her old friends during her recent visit at the home of Mrs. Horace Martin.

The Tavern club will be the scene of a luncheon today when the New Orient Society of America entertains for Dr. Edward Hume, formerly a vice president of the organization. Dr. Hume's brief address should be especially interesting because he is recently returned from China, where he has been making a survey of far eastern affairs in behalf of Yale-in-China, of which he was once the president.

Among those who are expected at the luncheon are: Robert T. K. Kah, Chinese consul general; Giuseppe Castruccio, Italian consul general; Walter Lichtenstein, Herman Waldeck, Henry Patten, Prof. A. T. Olmstead, Prof. Martin Sprengling, Mrs. Warren Everett, and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Redheffer.

Barrington Hills Club Plans "Neptune" Party.

Probably no one plans more exciting parties these days than country club members, and you can be sure that every member of the Barrington Hills club has marked July 20 as a red letter day. Mrs. Robert Buckley telephoned yesterday to say that on that date the club is giving a "Neptune" dinner-dance.

There are to be night club entertainers, fancy swimmers, diving champions, and two orchestras.

There will be a strange assortment of costumes at the dinner-dance at the Chicago Golf club tonight without a doubt, for members and guests were asked to "come as you please." It isn't even obligatory to wear a costume, but probably every one will add or take away something from conventional summer evening attire, if he isn't in fancy costume, to get into the spirit of the party. Albert J. Pardridge is in charge of the affair and he and his wife will have one of the largest tables.

The Onwentsia, the Exmoor club, the Knollwood club and the North Shore Golf club are among other country clubs having dinner-dances tonight. The last named is celebrating the opening of its new swimming pool and tennis courts.

Gwendolyn Bowen Will Entertain.

Miss Gwendolyn Bowen will have forty guests at dinner tonight at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, in Lake Forest, to compliment two young Lake Forest girls who will be debutantes next season. Miss Clarice Hamill and Miss Peggy Clow. After dinner Miss Bowen will take her party to the Onwentsia club for dancing.

From dawn until dark it will not be hard to locate Lake Foresters today, for most of them are spending the day at Mrs. Harry M. McIntosh's Lake Forest estate, which is to have the composite attractions of a country fair, a bazar, and a flower show, all to benefit the Lake Bluff orphanage.

Whether it's by land or sea the young George Getzes and their friends are continually on the go. Just a few weeks ago George purchased a yacht, Virago, which he and Frank Sims recently took to Florida. Yesterday with Scott Dow they were sailing along the Michigan shore line on Justin Dart's boat, while their wives motored up to the summer residence of Mr. Getz Sr. at Holland, Mich., in time to greet the "crew."

Bishop to Officiate at Son's Wedding Today.

The marriage ceremony this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock of Miss Margaret Ruth Rothacker, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Thompson Rothacker of Evanston and Douglas D. Rothacker of Great Neck, N. Y., to George Craig Stewart Jr., son of Bishop George Craig Stewart of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago and Mrs. Stewart, will be performed by the bridegroom's father.

Only members of the families will witness the wedding, which is to take place in the Lady chapel of St. Luke's pro-cathedral. Afterward there is to be a reception at the home of the bride's mother at 912 Michigan avenue, Evanston. Attending the bride will be her sisters, Miss Dorothy Rothacker, who is to be maid of honor, and Miss Mayme Rothacker, who is to serve as bridesmaid. The bridegroom's brother, John Clyde Stewart of Evanston, will be his best man and Carlton A. Del Mar and Philip Ward are to usher.

After a month's honeymoon touring the east, Mr. Stewart and his bride will make their home in Elmhurst.

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Darby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond J. Darby of Winnetka, and Hall Lippincott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard R. Lippincott of Wilmette, will take place this afternoon at the Elder lane residence of the bride's parents. The Rev. Frank J. Thiele of the Sacred Heart church of Winnetka will officiate. The service will be read at 4 o'clock in the presence of relatives and intimate friends.

Miss Cynthia Waldron of Fort Madison, Ia., who was the bride's roommate at Vassar college—they both were graduated last June—will be Miss Darby's only attendant. Horace Bulen of Flint, Mich., a Beta Theta Pi fraternity brother of the bridegroom's at Ohio State university, will be the best man.

QUESTIONS ON DEFENSIVE PLAY.

1. This is the bidding:

1 Sp.	Pass	1 N. T.	Pass
2 Di.	Pass	2 Ht.	Pass
2 N. T.	Pass	3 Di.	Pass
3 Sp.	Pass	Pass	Pass

You are West. Your partner opens a club, which you win with the ace. This is your hand and the dummy's:

♦x-x-x

SOUTH
♠x-x
♥Q-J-10-x-x

What do you return? Incidentally, North and South were using a system which requires a trick and a half for a one-over-one.

2. You are South, holding this hand:

Sp.—K-x-x Di.—8-6
Hts.—A-J-2 Cl.—A-K-x-x-x

Dummy [West] holds:
Sp.—Q-J-10-x-x Di.—K-10
Ht.—K-Q Cl.—J-x-x-x

You have doubled the declarer's contract of three hearts, after your partner has bid diamonds. You opened the king of clubs. Your partner gave you a low club, and you shifted to the eight of diamonds, which was taken by the king in the dummy, your partner giving you an encouraging card. The declarer led the queen of spades and finessed it into your hand. What do you play back?

East's hearts were never supported by West.

3. The bidding has proceeded as follows:

SOUTH	WEST	NORTH	EAST
1 Di.	Pass	1 Ht.	1 Sp.
3 Cl.	Pass	3 Ht.	Pass
4 Cl.	Pass	6 Di.	Pass

You are West. Your partner opens a spade. The declarer goes up with the ace, and plays back a heart, taking with the ace. He then leads the ace and king of diamonds. Your partner shows out on the second round. The ace of clubs is his next play, followed by the king, on which he discards a spade. Do you trump it? If so, why? If not, why not?

The answers to these questions will be given in Monday's column.

Lily Pons Does Some Dancing for 'Love Song'

Studio Gives Singer Her Own Way in Movie.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., July 12.—[Special.]—Lily Pons not only sings, she dances in Radio's "Love Song," and the dance is declared to be the first "touch of Hi-De-Ho" ever injected into Miss Pons' career. The dance is "compounded of jazz and fire" according to Hermes Pan, studio dance director.

Miss Pons evidently thinks it will be all right, for the studio is allowing her practically everything she asks, even to having her own voice stylist.

Binnie Barnes, English actress, was strolling in the Hollywood hills with her secretary, Patricia Hayworth, and they saw a rattlesnake. Patricia ran, but Binnie walked backward slowly, taking time to adjust a kodak she was carrying so she could send a snap of the snake to her husband, Samuel Josephs, wealthy Londoner. Then she yelled for help to kill the snake.

Off and on for several years Natalie Moorhead has been annoyed on her strolls down the boulevard by seeing an old photograph of herself displayed in a photographer's display window. Yesterday she put on black glasses, entered the shop and asked the price of the picture. It came high because of the frame, but nevertheless she bought it, thinking of the satisfaction she would have in burning it at home. When she handed the clerk her money the clerk said, "Thank you, Miss Moorhead."

Catalina Island has assumed the popularity that the film colony used to bestow on Malibu Beach as a summer stopping place.

Nat Pendleton has changed from a piccolo player [in "Here Comes the Band"] to a government sleuth [in Jack Benny's "In The Bag"] at Metro studio. With Pendleton, Benny, Ted Healy, Una Merkel, and Mary Carlisle in the latter production, there will be good looks as well as a lot of nonsense as the cast floats through the upper reaches in a stratosphere balloon.

The Metro studio built a fine, up-to-date guillotine for "Tale of Two Cities," but after it was constructed the slide would not work. So now the studio carpenters have built another one on specifications laboriously translated for them by the studio research department from a French book of the period of 1800, and the second one does work.

Cary Grant has been borrowed from Paramount by Radio studio to play opposite Katharine Hepburn in "Sylvia Scarlette."

Mary Korman, one time belle of "Our Gang" and a child actress who made good as a grown-up, is recovering from a surgical operation on her right jaw necessitated by an infected wisdom tooth. Nerve pressure threatened to paralyze one side of her face.

Pauline Lord's film career having withered in a disagreement with Paramount executives, the stage star has returned to New York and the footlights.

When a Paramount studio sound truck was struck by a Union Pacific railroad locomotive, $15,000 worth of movie equipment was damaged.

Metro is importing Edmund Gwenn, English actor, for the film version of "The Bishop Misbehaves" story of a genial churchman who gets mixed into a murder mystery and solves it. Gwenn had been playing in "Laburnum Grove" on the New York stage. With him in the film cast will be Maureen O'Sullivan, Norman Foster, Lumsden Hare, Dudley Digges, and Lillian Bond.

When Olivia DeHavilland, leading woman for "Captain Blood," was forced to stay in several days with a blistered heel which became infected, Dick Powell, knowing her love for popcorn, fixed it up with the doctor to ask her to open her mouth and say "Ah" with closed eyes, after which the doctor poked a handful of popcorn into her mouth.

Powell and other friends sent the young actress bags of popcorn of all stages of sugariness and saltiness, flavor, size, and color, instead of flowers. Her sickroom looked like a snowstorm when the popcorn began to drop from being passed about.

Pauline Frederick is back in films for the third or fourth time, but unlike her other movie experiences this time she is not being starred; she will play Señora Moreno in the remake of "Ramona" at Fox. Rita Cansino, 17; Kent Taylor, Gilbert Roland, and O. P. Heggie, the latter as the padre, have the four principal parts.

Sally Selects Her Guests for Baseball Party

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

I'm afraid a lot of you boys and girls became too excited about the baseball game next Thursday. There were so many good letters which had to be discarded because the writers forgot one of our few requirements.

For instance, one little boy wrote such a fine letter that I thought to myself as I read it,—"Here's a winner, sure enough!"—until I found that it was signed simply "Jimmy." No other name, no address. I couldn't possibly mail him an invitation when I didn't know where he lived, so poor Jimmy is a loser. Isn't that too bad?

However, I don't think he'll feel too badly, because although he won't find his name listed in Sunday's TRIBUNE, he will find news of our next party, which is a simply swell one and gives him another opportunity to try to be my guest.

So, you see, all you youngsters had better not devote yourselves exclusively to the jokes and the pictures in tomorrow's TRIBUNE, but look around for the good news you'll find in the Sally Joy Brown column.

P. S.—I nearly forgot to tell you that, judging from all your letters, Gabby Hartnett of the Cubs is undoubtedly the most popular man in baseball, as far as you kids are concerned. I'm sure the genial Gabby will be pleased to hear the good news.

Acquired Tan Demands a New Tint in Powder

Brunette Shades Rescue Bronzed Complexion.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

As you take on your tan you're going to find the need of a change in powder tint. What went with the pale hothouse skin isn't going to be nearly so good as one of the deeper toned powders you'll find around in the shops.

Your eyeshadow, too, is going to cry out for a relief tint against that tanned skin. It's odd, the change that tan makes in your entire ensemble. Even your hair takes on a different tone when it frames a golden brown skin or deeper hued one.

But just as there are countless products available to help you cultivate your tan becomingly, you'll find matching powder shades as easily obtainable.

You don't want to take just any darker powder. There are cool browns, as the beige already mentioned, and warm brunette shades to correspond with similar tones in the tanned skins. But the best plan is to do a little investigating about the new shade of powder you now need. Indeed, if you don't want to expose your face to tanning under the sun's rays these summer powder shades give a grand imitation of a tan.

And that isn't all when you change the tint of your skin. Your lipstick shade may have to be changed, too. There's no question that the perfect tanned makeup makes the average woman look younger, and more interesting, as a rule. But the crimson, violet, and certain other shades of lipstick and rouge that may have been grand with your pre-summer makeup will have to be substituted with something more in harmony with the tan. You'll undoubtedly find the lipsticks with yellow tones best with the tan.

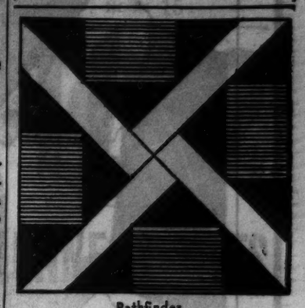
Sharp Contrast of Dark and Light in 'Pathfinder' Quilt



Pathfinder.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Decidedly novel in name and design this moderately aged block "Pathfinder" is most attractive when it is made as an all over pieced quilt. The patches are simple and easy to set together. White bands combined with the darker colors of either print or plain material are a definite contrast to other quilt patterns where the bright colors are the most important figure. "Pathfinder" claims southern Missouri as its birthplace, and it has traveled as widely as its name would indicate.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

New! The Madonna Halo

Little did the early Italian masters realize, when they were painting halos on their saints and their Madonnas, that they were affording inspiration for millinery fashions of 1935. Clever Paris designers, led by Agnes, have created these stunning new halo hats, and Carson's has reproduced some of the most important types. This one is particularly smart—fashioned of felt, with a braided halo band.

ATHLETIC AND MOVIE LEADERS PICK ALL-STARS

Name Players to Face Bears Aug. 29.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 12.—[Special.]—Joe E. Brown, former professional baseball player and one of the leading football fans of Hollywood, today took time out from a visit he was having with friends in Pittsburgh to submit his idea of the college team that should face the Chicago Bears in football's dream game at Soldiers' field, Chicago, Aug. 29.

JOE E. BROWN.

Four players from the Big Ten conference, four from the Pacific coast, two from the south, and one from the east made Brown's eleven. Here are his selections:

Ends—Hutson, Alabama, and Larson, Minnesota.

Tackles—Barber, San Francisco, and Monahan, Ohio State.

Guards—Hartwig, Pittsburgh, and Boyer, U. C. L. A.

Center—Seimering, San Francisco.

Quarter back—Warburton, Southern California.

Half backs—Howell, Alabama, and Lund, Minnesota.

Full back—Kostka, Minnesota.

Brown came to Pittsburgh from Cleveland, where he attended the third annual All-Star interleague baseball game.

CHEVIGNY'S PICK

Jack Chevigny, football coach and athletic director at the University of Texas, last night submitted his All-Star lineup in the poll now being conducted by THE TRIBUNE and 105 associated newspapers to pick a team to play the Bears at Soldiers' field Aug. 29.

Six of Chevigny's eleven played with southern teams. He ventured the opinion that better football was played in the Southwest conference last fall than in any group in the country. Here is his team:

Ends—Hutson, Alabama, and Gray, Texas.

Tackles—Lee, Alabama, and Carter, Southern Methodist.

Guards—Bevan, Minnesota, and Monohan, Ohio State.

Center—Robinson, Notre Dame.

Quarter back—Munjas, Pittsburgh.

Half backs—Hilliard, Texas, and Howell, Alabama.

Full back—Kostka, Minnesota.

REFEREE MAKES SELECTION

James Masker, referee of the 1934 game between the College All-Americans and the Chicago Bears, would like to see seven Big Ten players among the eleven who will take the field at Soldiers' field the night of Aug. 29. Masker, who has officiated in the Western conference for the last 31 years, picks the following team:

Ends—Larson, Minnesota, and Hutson, Alabama.

Tackles—Bengston, Minnesota, and Trost, Marquette.

Guards—Bevan, Minnesota, and Monahan, Ohio State.

Center—Patterson, Chicago.

Quarter back—Warburton, Southern California.

Half backs—Purvis, Purdue, and Howell, Alabama.

Full back—Kostka, Minnesota.

Masker said that the game and the spectacle at Soldiers' field last summer provided one of the biggest thrills of his football career.

GABLE FAVORS COAST

Los Angeles, Cal., July 12.—[Special.]—Clark Gable, famous portrayer of romantic rôles in motion pictures, today selected the eleven men he deems best fitted to face the Chicago Bears Aug. 29, when the professional eleven and the 1934 College All-Americans clash in Chicago.

Although Gable is a self-confessed coast rooter he did step out of his district to pick three men for his

No Pep Talk for All-Stars; All They Needed Was a Ball

[This is the last of a series of articles by Noble Kizer, director of athletics and football coach at Purdue university, who was head coach of the 1934 All-American football squad.]

BY NOBLE KIZER.

How did we coaches arouse the All-Star players? What stirring words were uttered in the dressing room last August before the battle with the Bears?

These questions were asked me repeatedly after the college stars had played the Bears to a scoreless tie. Apparently the old dressing stories still are believed. In that fallacious continuity the coach either makes a stirring speech calling on the boys to give their all for country and alma mater, or utilizes psychological methods to make the team play better than it knows.

The truth is, and I have no hesitation telling this, there wasn't any kind of a pep talk in our dressing room. I'm afraid if we had tried to incite these boys, we only would have excited them to the extent that all plays would have been fumbles.

They didn't need a pep talk any more than they needed three hands. For weeks, ever since they had received an invitation to play, they had thought of this game. For two weeks they had drilled at Northwestern and I must confess, we ran in a few extra nights of blackboard discussion. They were on edge.

Like Singing to Caruso.

With all this fuss and furor, and the demand for tickets which overflowed to our camp so that the boys were trying to find extra tickets for friends of a friend, the All-Stars kept their perspective. They had their feet on the ground.

This game couldn't be won by clapping hands or by cheer leaders. It could be won by hard charging, vicious tackling, and ordinary care in execution of plays. After three years of battling on college gridirons, I knew these boys would recognize any pep talk I might give them as just so much unnecessary conversation.

Perhaps the absence of a dressing room talk was better than any words we coaches might have employed.

Chuck Bernard, the first of our stars to dash out onto Soldiers' field and make a bow under the glaring spotlight, as all other lights were turned out in that vast amphitheater, would have traded that leadership for a seat on the bench.

"Let's get going, coach," Chuck said, while we waited the entrance cue.

That was the attitude. The boys came to Chicago to play the Bears and they wanted to get started.

It Was Overwhelming.

For most of them it was the finale of their football careers. And for nearly all of them, it was the largest crowd before which they ever had played. Spectacularly staged, broadcast to millions over a national radio net work, and reported by a hundred newspapers, the game overwhelmed. It was a tribute to football, a nation's sport.

It will be played again. From last year's group of senior football stars, a new team will be assembled. And other college coaches will direct them against these same Chicago Bears. To both players and coaches, I extend my best wishes for success. I suspect that I'll cast a vote for the players I consider the best in the nation. And I know that I'll be at Soldiers' field to see the game. I wouldn't miss it.

14 NAMED FOR LASSIE STAKE AT ARLINGTON TODAY

$2 Boys Make Vanderbilt Entry Favorite.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The little women of the race tracks become the big money seekers at Arlington Park today when they run in the Lassie stakes, the world's richest race for 2 year old fillies.

That a king's ransom will be at stake was assured yesterday when 14 of the fleetest juvenile fillies in America were named in the overnight entries. If all start the race will have a gross value of $35,120. They are the survivors from an original field of 278.

The race is one of the events decided each year at Arlington, which attracts the producers of thoroughbreds from all parts of the nation. Most of these producers had arrived yesterday, and as they discussed the race, it was easy to see they were in a quandary over which of the stylish fillies is entitled to the post of honor as the favorite.

Little Boys Decide.

They were endeavoring to make blood lines, conformation, ruggedness, shape of the neck, slope of the rump, and straightness of the legs tell them the name of the winner. And they were thoroughly befuddled.

The great army of two dollar players, anxiously awaiting the renewal of the fixture, relied on their trusty speed charts and their past performance records, so it didn't take them long to decide the entry of young Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Parade Girl and Balcony should be the choice.

Parade Girl is the one they fancy and the fine race she ran in the Great American stakes in New York July 4, in which she finished second, is the effort off which they believe she should win the Lassie. Much eastern backing for the Vanderbilt pair was evidenced at Arlington yesterday.

Headley Entry Popular.

The westerners were placing their faith in the Hal Price Headley entry of Pelerine and Tinkling Brook, and in the Milky Way farm entry of Forever Yours and Torolee. The far west fancied Toro Prodrome from the Northway stable of California, and the folks who think it is wise to "play Whitney" in 2 year old stakes had C. V. Whitney's flashy filly, Savings, running for them.

While it seemed certain the Vanderbilt entry would be the post time choice, it could hardly be ranked as a top heavy favorite, for the odds are sure to be 3 to 1 or possibly higher.

The three seekers of the big prize which have demonstrated their speed to the patrons at Arlington Park are Headley's Pelerine, Milky Way Farms' Forever Yours, and Dixiana Stables' Miss Prudence.

Miss Diavolo Is Dark Horse.

Pelerine and Forever Yours turned in sensational victories during the week and Miss Prudence also raced impressively when she held her own against the best colts of her age. The sleeper in the race may be the Texas owned Miss Diavolo, which ran a smashing race in the Prairie State stakes at Washington Park, although beaten by the colt, Grand Slam.

Miss Diavolo was all but knocked down as she left the post in that engagement, but recovered and was running over horses near the finish.

READY FOR TRIBUNE'S SWIMMING MEET

Open Tribune Swimming Trials Today

BY WILFRID SMITH.

[Entry blank on next page]

The first of the qualifying trials for THE TRIBUNE'S sixth annual 100 yard swimming championships will be held this afternoon at Sherman park, 52d street and Racine avenue. Contestants are asked to report between 1 and 2 p. m. to the clerks, who will arrange the order of events. The first race will start at 2 o'clock.

All swimmers have been mailed cards of admission which give them their racing numbers. Bring these cards this afternoon. They are necessary for the work of the clerks.

Clothing may be checked without charge. A field of 300 boys and girls will compete for the qualifying positions in the finals which will be held July 28 at the Lincoln park lagoon.

North Side Tomorrow.

Tomorrow afternoon at the same time the contestants from the north side will swim in the qualifying races at California park, 3901 North California avenue. In all, 80 boys and girls will qualify this week-end for the finals.

There are five age classes for boys and five for girls. The classes follow:

Class A—11 and 12 years of age.
Class B—13 and 14 years of age.
Class C—15 and 16 years of age.
Class D—17 and 18 years of age.
Class E—19 years of age and over.

Entries will be accepted for the trials next week at Cermak pool and Whealan pool until midnight Monday. This is the last opportunity to qualify for the finals unless you are a winner in the trials conducted by the captains at the beaches operated by the Chicago park district. Lists of these teams will be certified a week from Monday.

Most Are Novices.

Although several outstanding swimmers, many of them winners from last year, have entered today's races, the majority of the competitors are novices. Each will receive a souvenir button emblematic of ability to swim 100 yards. In addition to the gold medals for those who qualify, there are badges for the winners of the heats.

The Sherman park pool is 50 yards in length. This is the only pool in the list for the trials that requires a turn. The course at California park tomorrow is 100 yards, although the officials may, at their discretion, decide to have the contestants race across the pool and back, a distance of 100 yards.

Hayes Club Enters 194.

Entries for next week indicate a record meet at Whealan pool. Nearly 100 boys and girls from the Jewish People's institute have entered this meet. The record entry, however, probably goes to the swimmers representing the John D. Hayes Swim club.

Seventy boys, 11 and 12 years of age, will swim in class A. The lists for class B and class C contain 50 each. The total number of contestants from this one club is 194.

Most important, from the point of view of the clerks, all the names and addresses were typewritten which certainly will facilitate the mailing of the admission cards. These will be mailed Wednesday or Thursday of next week.

GERMANS, CZECHS SPLIT SINGLES IN DAVIS CUP PLAY

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, July 12.—Czechoslovakia and Germany were all even today at the end of the first day's matches in the final round of the European zone Davis cup play. Baron Gottfried von Cramm gave Germany an even break in the opening two singles matches by beating Jon Caska of Czechoslovakia, 6-2, 6-4, 6-2, after Roderich Menzel had sent the Czechs into the lead with his victory over Heiner Henkel of Germany, 7-5, 6-1, 4-6, 2-6, 6-4.

Menzel had difficulty in beating Henkel because of his poor physical condition. Menzel, after taking a two set lead, almost fainted on the court and Henkel rallied to even the match at two sets each. Menzel managed to last long enough to take the deciding set.

The winner of the series will meet the United States in the interzone round to determine the challenger for the cup, now held by England.

Freddy Miller Stops Welsh in Fourth at Dublin

DUBLIN, July 12.—(AP)—Freddy Miller of the United States, world featherweight champion, tonight was awarded a technical knockout over Jehu Welsh after the latter had injured his hand in the fourth round.

Cubs, Braves to Play Two Games Today

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The third place Cubs and the last place Boston Braves will play a double-header at Wrigley field this afternoon. Roy Henshaw and Bill Lee will pitch for the Cubs. Henshaw will be after his seventh victory of the year and Lee will be looking for No. 9.

The Cubs warmed up for today's games by beating the Madison Blues, 2 to 1, yesterday in an exhibition at Madison, Wis.

So far this year, with two exceptions, the Braves have been a delightfully soft touch for the Cubs, even softer than they have been for other good teams in the league. Charley Grimm's lads have licked the tail-enders ten games out of a dozen played and right now can see no reason why they shouldn't take the remaining ten games from the demoralized Bostonese.

Here Are Statistics.

The Giants have been able to beat the Braves only nine times in eleven games and the Bostons have held the Cardinals to seven victories in ten games. The Pirates have won eight out of ten from the tail-enders.

There are only two other teams in the National league that have beaten another team as many times as the Cubs have licked the Braves. The Cardinals have whipped the Cubs ten times and the Giants have whipped the Pirates ten times.

The Braves will wind up their second 1935 visit to Chicago in a single game tomorrow and on Monday the Phillies will come to town for four days.

The Phillies haven't been as obliging as the Braves so far this year. In fact the Phillies enjoy a 5 to 4 edge over the Cubs in the season's play to date. The Phillies have won eight from the Braves, but their next best showings are against the Cubs and Dodgers—five games from each.

Pitchers Vie for Lead.

Cub pitchers are getting to the place where they can have a nice intra club race. Here are the records:

	W.	L.		W.	L.
Lee	8	3	Henshaw	6	4
Carleton	7	3	Root	4	5
French	7	5	Kowalik	2	1
Warneke	7	9

Inquiries are being made about the Giant series, which promises to attract many customers. The Giants will be here July 19, 20, and 21. A double-header scheduled for Friday, July 19, has been transferred to the following Sunday.

The score by innings of yesterday's exhibition:

KENNEDY GOES ROUTE TO SCORE FIFTH VICTORY

Bonura, Haas, Piet Lead Attack.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., July 12.—The White Sox went slightly crazy today in the matter of base hits. They showered drives everywhere except over the fence and this rough house attack made it simple for them to capture the final decision for an even break in the four game series against Boston's costly Red Sox. The score was 13 to 2, a much wider margin than was needed by young Vernon Kennedy while turning out his fifth victory of the season.

ZEKE BONURA.

The deadly firing against a parade of red legged pitchers began in the first inning when Zeke Bonura singled a run across and it continued right into the ninth when Zeke, with a fly ball, accounted for the final run. In between these incidents Bonura had sandwiched a vast amount of other profitable labor. He got two singles and two doubles, drove in four runs, scored three himself and in one way or another figured in five of the six innings in which Chicago Athletes crossed the plate.

Tony, Mule Help Out.

Bonura, who also drove in five runs in the second game yesterday, was given a race today by Mule Haas and Tony Piet, but pace was too stiff for them. Haas started off with a single, but worked up to a double and then a triple. With these he drove in three mates and scored twice himself.

Piet's contribution was two doubles and a single, but he didn't have the pleasure of driving home a run. However, his hits played a part in three scoring incidents, mainly for the benefit of Rip Radcliff who scored four times. Three of these were due to passes he coaxed from enemy workmen.

Al Simmons, restored to action yesterday after a week in the dugout for his failure to hit, enjoyed only a small sip of the cream skimmed from Joe Cascarella, Dusty Rhodes, George Hockette and Fritz Ostermueller. In his first three appearnaces, the Milwaukee Duke suffered untold agonies, In each case he slowed down healthy rallies. Thereafter he did a bit better. He singled in the fifth, this being one of five hits which produced four runs. Then he scratched a helpful single through the infield in the eighth and in the ninth was set down on a fly almost to the 420 foot sign in right center.

Off to Good Start.

The gay doings for which Cascarella footed the bill in the first inning began with a pass to Radcliff. Piet fanned, but Haas singled through short and Bonura singled to center, scoring Radcliff. Simmons' misery continued with a pop up to Werber. Appling walked, filling the bases. After getting into trouble on two strikes, Dykes banged a single to left to score Haas and Bonura. Werber picked up Sewell's speedy grounder for the third out.

The Red Sox got three men to base in their half of the first inning, but mainly because of Kennedy's skill in picking off runners only one run scored. Melillo led off with a hit and went to third on Almada's double, which dropped close to the left field line. Johnson's fly to Simmons let Melillo score. Cronin then walked, but apparently he had never heard of Kennedy's excellent move to first base. Anyway, the manager, much to his embarrassment before a home crowd,

GARIEPY WINS BAR GOLF TITLE FOR TENTH TIME

Guest Leads Field of 250 with 70.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The statute of limitations—ten years—having nearly expired in his case, Lawyer Fred A. Gariepy yesterday proceeded to win the golf championship of the Chicago Bar association in the 14th annual tournament at the Medinah Country club, and then to announce his retirement from competition in the event.

Gariepy's 77 over Medinah's No. 3 championship course brought him his tenth association title in 13 years against a field of 250 attorneys and judges.

Guest Has Low Gross.

The field was divided over the No. 1 and No. 3 courses, with a 35—35—70 by the Rev. J. P. Kiely being low for the entire field and low guest card on No. 1. Samuel L. Golan turned in a 36—42—78 to be the low scoring member over No. 1, while M. C. Waud, who is an applicant for membership in the association, but competed as a guest, was the low scorer on No. 3 with a 38—38—76, five over par.

Gariepy's card follows:

PAR.

GARIEPY.

Out .....434 655 534—39
In .....544 634 534—38—77

Gariepy was in the woods stymied by a tree at the fourth, a disaster which occurred at the 13th for another six. His spoon second to the sixth overshot the green and he found the woods at the 16th.

Hollywood, Cal., July 12.—[Special.]—Jeanette MacDonald, one of the leading football fans in the movie colony, today suggested this college team to meet the Bears:

Ends—Morse, Oregon, and Hutson, Alabama.

Tackles—Theodoratos, Washington State, and Bengston, Minnesota.

NAMES TWO TRACK MEN

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—Dan J. Ferris, secretary of the National A. A. U., who usually is more concerned with track and field than with touchdowns, has a definite idea of the 11 university football players who can whip the Chicago Bears at Soldiers' field Aug 29. Mr. Ferris demonstrated his knowledge of football when he didn't show partiality by making his eleven a "track team." He did nominate Willis Ward, Michigan hurdler and broad jumper, and George Theodoratos, Washington State weight man, but a lot of other fans will agree with him.

Mr. Ferris' All-Americans follow:

Ends—Ward, Michigan, and Hutson, Alabama.

Tackles—Theodoratos, Washington State, and Lee, Alabama.

Metz Is Out of Hospital; May Golf in Month

Dick Metz, the young Mill road farm course professional who underwent an appendectomy on July 3, was released from the Alice home hospital in Lake Forest yesterday. Dick reported himself in excellent condition and said he probably will resume play within a month.

The sixth annual dawn to dusk tournament of the Lincolnshire Country club, one of the largest of the Chicago district's established invitational events, will be held today over thirty-six holes. A field of approximately 1,000, including Russell Martin, Carl Deufel, Frank McNamara, Bill Bassett, and Bill Andrews, is expected to compete, according to Dr. R. E. Umbenhauer, who is in charge of arrangements for the event.

Mrs. Amy Tupper of Olympia Fields headed the visiting scorers yesterday in Flossmoor's annual guest day, in which sixty-five took part. Mrs. Tupper took low gross for guests with a 93. Other guest prizes went to Mrs. H. H. Simpson of Olympia Fields, who took low net with 102—24—78; Marjorie Ford, former Flossmoor member, who won low gross for the first nine holes with a 46, and Mrs. George Davis of Oak Park, president of the Chicago Women's District Golf association, who took gross honors for the final nine with a 47. High gross prizes on the nines went to Mrs. S. L. Koch and Mrs. R. C. Anderson. Mrs. G. E. Dewey of Calumet won the guests putting award with 30.

Mrs. M. M. Lord led the members in gross scoring with a 98, while Mrs. H. B. Horton captured low net with 102—25—77. Mrs. Hunter Dickson took putting honors among the home players with a 30.

Two of the season's most important public links events will dominate the Chicago district calendar next week, during which the midwest public links tournament at Lincoln park and the women's Cook county open at Jackson park will be decided. Each will continue through Saturday.

The women's county will open with an eighteen hole qualifying round on Monday, with thirty-two qualifying in each of two flights. Entries will be accepted at the tee until 1 p. m. The fee is $1. Mrs. Clarice Richardson, California golfer, will defend the title. Other stars entered include Mrs. Mae Bachman of the home club, runner up in 1934; Mrs. Rose Long and Mrs. Dan Meany of Cog Hill, Mrs. Georgia Light and Babe Ahern of Evergreen, Josephine Souchek of Big Oaks, Kae Evans of Skokie Play-Field, Eleanor Wendt of Pipe o' Peace, and Mrs. Juliet Hirsch of Idlewild.

President to Receive Lawson Little Monday

Washington, D. C., July 12.—(AP)—W. Lawson Little of California, British amateur and American amateur golf champion, will be received by President Roosevelt at the White House Monday.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: About 1888-'92, Judge James H. Wilkerson, Roy O. West, Judge Worth Caylor, Eugene Hector, former financial editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE; former Senator Albert J. Beveridge, Clarence Hough, David Graham Phillips, who wrote "The Grain of Dust" and "Susan Lennox," were students at De Pauw university at Greencastle, Ind.

We home town boys, including L. A. Downs of the Illinois Central, Lee D. Mathias, the late Ed Sheridan, one time sports editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, and yours truly, used to see these fellows regularly on the college campus.

Eugene Hector was drum major of the De Pauw band. He used a large cane instead of a baton. He did not whirl the cane as college drum majors now train the baton, but played the part in more conservative fashion. Roy O. West was a leader among the student body. Judge Wilkerson was a keen student, winning many oratorical honors.

Clarence Hough was reciting James Whitcomb Riley's poems in Meharry hall. A. J. Beveridge took all the oratorical contests which Judge Wilkerson didn't and made his first political speeches there. Worth Caylor was right fielder on the baseball team. David Graham Phillips is still remembered by his high water pants on his way to the postoffice.

That was a pretty noted delegation in later years to come from one not large college. Harry W. Meltzer.

In the good old days of real prize fights at Tattersall's, 16th street, between State and Wentworth, George Siler, TRIBUNE boxing writer and president of the Blue Pencil club on Madison street, near Dearborn, had the fighters before every show make a parade from the club to Tattersall's in a six horse tallyho with Jack Bramhall sitting in the back playing cornet solos. The parade attracted much attention and naturally augmented the attendance.

A big night was when Kid McCoy boxed a six round no decision contest with Tommy Ryan in 1900. Ryan objected to the bandages on McCoy's hands and wrist, so the fight was held up 30 minutes. Bramhall played popular airs during the wait, to which the response was a shower of coins into the ring from spectators.

Jack Bramhall.

A Problem.

The hardest thing I have to learn
Is to let my boy grow up
To be a great big woolly dog
Instead of a little pup;
To let him think things for himself,
Not to give so much advice,
For if he makes mistakes, you know,
He'll surely pay the price.

All these bumps are good for him,
I'm sure you will agree.
Just let him get out on his own,
Don't keep him at your knee.
But mothers are such funny things,
They take the greatest joy
In treating a 30 year old 6 foot son
Just like a little boy.

Sturm Meets Judelson for County Title

Jack Sturm, 19 year old Midwest golf club star, will meet Hyman Judelson of the Harlem club in the 36 hole final of the Cook County Open golf tournament at Garfield park, Adams street and Hamlin avenue, today.

Sturm will attempt to win his second open title in three years, while Judelson will be gunning for his first Cook County championship in five years of competition.

In the quarter-final round yesterday morning, Judelson eliminated the defending champion and medalist, Robert Ball of Sunset Hills, 1 up. After the lead had changed hands three times, the match was squared on the 15th hole when Judelson drove the green and two putted for a birdie three.

Judelson Makes Long Drive.

On the next hole, Judelson, aided by a strong wind, landed about 15 feet from the pin, scored a birdie, and again led, 1 up. The two short holes were halved in 4's and 3's.

Judelson earned his place in the finals with a 3 and 2 victory over Bill Brooks of Garfield in the afternoon.

Sturm defeated Clarence Libman of Mid City, 3 and 2, in the morning, and in the afternoon was forced to go to the 20th hole before he could down Phillip Graver of Glen Eagles, 1 up, in the semi-finals. Graver had a 1 up advantage at the turn and on the second nine led three times, only to have the match squared on the 17th green when Sturm sank a 15 foot putt for a par 3. The final hole was halved when each drove the green and two putted for 3's.

Graver Misses Chance.

On the first extra hole, Graver had a chance to win the match but a 5 foot putt rimmed the cup. The same thing happened on the next hole when both reached the green in two. Sturm sank his for a par three, and Graver's ball rimmed the cup for a 4. Yesterday's results:

QUARTER-FINAL ROUND.

Hyman Judelson, Harlem, defeated Robert Ball, Sunset Hills, 1 up. Bill Brooks, Garfield, defeated Guy Murphy, Columbus, 1 up. Phillip Graver, Glen Eagles, defeated Joe Petrakovic, Garfield, 1 up. Jack Sturm, Midwest, defeated Clarence Libman, Mid City, 3 and 2.

SEMI-FINAL ROUND.

Hyman Judelson, Harlem, defeated Bill Brooks, Garfield, 3 and 2. Jack Sturm, Midwest, defeated Phillip Graver, Glen Eagles, 1 up, 20 holes.

YANKEE HOMERS FORCE INDIANS TO BOW, 5 TO 2

Gehrig Hits No. 12; Crosetti Gets Seventh.

New York, July 12.—(AP)—The Yankees kept their slender American league lead intact today when they whipped the Cleveland Indians for the second straight time, 5 to 2, and swept the abbreviated series. Home runs by Frank Crosetti and Lou Gehrig got the Yanks off to a good start and they never let up as Charley Ruffing and Monte Pearson battled on almost even terms under the broiling sun which beat down on the mound. Ruffing yielded nine hits and Pearson ten.

Crosetti's homer, his seventh of the season, tied the score in the third inning after the Indians had scored in the second on a pass to Bruce Campbell and singles by Hal Trosky and Odell Hale. Gehrig poled homer No. 12 in the next inning after Ben Chapman had singled and that gave the Yanks a lead they never lost.

MANGRUM TIED BY NELSON FOR GOLF MEET LEAD

Fonthill, Ont., July 12.—(AP)—Ray Mangrum of Pittsburgh and Byron Nelson of Ridgewood, N. J., tonight were headed toward the $1,000 first prize money in the General Brock hotel open golf tournament. They posted 36 hole cards of 143, one stroke ahead of Walter Hagen, who missed tying them by one inch, that being the distance by which he missed sinking a putt on the 18th.

Scores of 158 and better qualified for the 36 hole final tomorrow. A high wind bothered the players today and none equaled par 70. The closest was a 71 by Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa. But Picard was five strokes away from the two leaders.

BRAVES PILE UP 26 TO 9 TRIUMPH IN EXHIBITION

Both teams scored twice in the second inning but in the third the Braves batted around almost twice to pile up 13 runs. Score:

Cochrane Says Sox, Cleveland Not in Race

Washington, D. C., July 12.—(AP)—Chicago, Cleveland, and Boston have been eliminated from Mickey Cochrane's American league calculations and he has written the pennant race down as a two team affair between Detroit and New York, with the Tigers likely to beat out the Yanks.

"We've been playing better ball than the Yanks and have a fine chance of beating them," said Cochrane today. "But, I really can't see any hope for those other clubs now."

Mickey Is Confident.

The Tigers, who caught the Yankees in mid-July last year and pulled away in August, have batted in more runs, made more extra base hits, and scored more runs than New York and, while Cochrane concedes New York has more good pitchers, he figures his own regular starters are as good as those of the Yankees.

"I believe we've got more fight and confidence and that will aid us in a close race," Cochrane said. "Do you know we've scored around 10 runs a game for the last dozen contests. That shows power, and we've got more than the Yankees.

"And as for fight, how about our last two games. We went into the ninth Wednesday trailing by six runs and almost tied. Yesterday we rallied and won in extra innings. It's going to be hard for any one to beat a club that never knows when its licked."

Rowe Must Win.

The last few weeks have seen Cochrane recover his batting eye, Greenberg go ahead in home runs, Gehringer hold to second place in batting, and Fox put together a string of 29 consecutive games in which he hit safely. The Tigers figure they can't be stopped now.

Recent poor performances by Schoolboy Rowe, the pitching star of last year, and Tommy Bridges, have worried Cochrane some.

"Rowe must win if we're to go ahead," he said. "If he flops, we may flop."

Cochrane says the next few weeks may tell the story:

"We've got a long trip ahead, while the Yanks are playing at home. If we can just hold our own on the road, we may breeze ahead when we return home."

20 MIDGET AUTO RACERS MEET AT WOLF LAKE

Manager C. L. Worthington announced last night that he has been assured of at least twenty entries for the midget auto races tonight at Wolf lake, located on U. S. route 41 between Chicago and Hammond, Ind.

With Ronnie Householder, Curly Mills, Ernie Carlson, Al Sherman, and Ed Turner top the list.

Although no cars have been permitted on the track since it was oiled this week, racing experts believe the Wolf Lake oval will be the fastest short track in the middle west. Ten events are on tonight's program with the time trials starting at 7:30 and the first race at 8:30.

SENATORS DROP BURKE, SIGN TWO ROOKIE PITCHERS

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—The Washington Senators today announced the release of Pitcher Bob Burke, veteran left hander, to Chattanooga of the Southern association. Burke has been off form all season and is considering a tonsil operation before reporting to the Chattanooga club.

The Senators have acquired a pair of young right handed pitchers to replace Burke. Eldon McLean was purchased from Albany of the International league and Millard Hayes from Chattanooga of the Southern association. Both reported today.

was nipped. Piet tossed out Miller to end the incident.

Rip Starts Foray.

The second inning splurge that separated Cascarella from his job started on Radcliff's single past Melillo with one out. Piet's two bagger to right sent Radcliff to third. Both scored on Haas' double to left center. Bonura then walked, and Cascarella was called in out of the heat. Rescuer Rhodes ended the inning abruptly when Haas was doubled off second base on Simmons' popup to Dahlgren.

Just to prove they had no regrets over the departure of Cousin Cascarella the Chicagoans fixed up Rhodes with a couple of runs in the fourth. Radcliff, Haas, and Bonura handled this enterprise. Radcliff led off with a pass and Piet tried to bunt him along but fouled to Ferrell. Haas' third hit was a triple into the right field corner. Radcliff scoring. Bonura thumped a single to left center to drive in Haas. Simmons, up for the third time with one or more on, rolled to short for a force play and Appling was thrown out by Melillo.

Kennedy Averts Trouble.

Kennedy was in real difficulties in the home fourth and the bull pen occupants went into action, but he pulled through with only one run in although three were still on base. Miller opened with a double. Ferrell and Werber flied out. Dahlgren doubled and Miller scored. Bishop, batting for Rhodes, was plunked by a pitched ball. A wild pitch was part of four balls on which Melillo walked, filling the bases. Then Almada bounced to Piet.

The Dykes gang got back on the job in the sixth when their best blast of the afternoon was touched off against Hockette's southpawing. Piet doubled with one out and scored when Bonura doubled with two out. Simmons came through with a single and Bonura would have been nipped at the plate if Ferrell hadn't dropped the ball. Simmons went around to third on the error and scored on Appling's single. A double by Dykes sent Appling in with the fourth run of the inning. This flareup enlarged the Sox's advantage to 11 against 2.

Zeke Bumps Another.

Bonura's second double, a scratch single by Simmons and an infield out gave the Sox their 12th run in the eighth inning off Hockette. Then Ostermueller was given a little work in the ninth. He was assessed for the last run on a pass to Radcliff, a single by Piet, a sacrifice and Bonura's long fly.

JONES FACES YANKS

Boston, Mass., July 12.—[Special.]—The White Sox left here immediately after today's game on a train scheduled to reach New York before midnight. They open a four game series there tomorrow with the first place Yankees, continue with a synthetic double header on Sunday and conclude the series with a single game on Monday. Old Sam Jones will be started tomorrow and probably will be opposed by Lefty Gomez.

Al Simmons was back in the lineup today, but it didn't mean that his term of banishment for light hitting was permanently ended. Manager Dykes will yank him again if he doesn't add something to the team's attack.

Manager Dykes is beginning to suspect that John Whitehead, the rookie who won his first eight starts and since has lost 7 while winning one, may be carrying too much weight. Dykes is going to train him down by a series of daily sprints around the outfield.

Women and school kid guests were present in droves, but as usual the paying patrons were limited to about 3,000.

Blondy Ryan Sent to Baltimore by Phillies

St. Louis, Mo., July 12.—(AP)—Blondy Ryan, shortstop and big slogan man of the New York Giants when they won the National league pennant in 1933 has been sent to Baltimore of the International league, Manager Jimmy Wilson of the Phillies announced here today.

BUZZ WETZEL ADDED TO BEARS' FOOTBALL TEAM

Damon [Buzz] Wetzel, back field star at Ohio State last year, has signed a contract to play with the Chicago Bears this season, it was announced yesterday by Coach George Halas. Although Wetzel played full back it is Halas' intention to try him at a half back since Bronko Nagurski and Jack Manders are available for the full back position.

The new Bear is 24 years old, weighs 195 pounds and is 5 feet 10½ inches tall. He attended North High school in Cleveland before entering Ohio State in 1931. One of Wetzel's biggest boosters is Ted Rosequist, a former teammate, who will start his second season with the Bears this fall.

Braddock Says He's Willing to Box Louis

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—If Joe Louis, 1934 Chicago Golden Gloves champion gets past either Max Schmeling or Max Baer, he'll find James J. Braddock, the world heavyweight champion, not only willing, but waiting.

"Why not?" asked the champion, as he worked out in a New York gymnasium today. "I'm going to defend the title next June and when I do, I'll meet the best available opponent."

Of course, the decision may not rest entirely with Braddock, but if it does, Baer's conqueror will not hesitate to accept the colored contender's challenge.

"I'm lucky to have a challenger who is sure to draw money," Jim explained. "Louis and I should restore the million dollar gate provided he defeats either Schmeling or Baer. As champion, I'll get the big end of the purse. I've never pretended not to be interested in money."

Terms Must Be Right.

Joe Gould, Braddock's manager, said the terms would have to be satisfactory and that the challenger would have to have the approval of the Madison Square Garden corporation.

"The Garden names the challenger," Joe explained. "If Jimmy Johnston named Louis, then Braddock will fight Louis. Braddock and I are interested in the money angle. Give Jim his price and he'll fight anybody."

Braddock thinks he can win from Louis.

"His style is similar to that of Tuffy Griffith," the champion remarked. "Primo Carnera didn't offer any opposition to speak of, although Louis showed enough in stopping the big Italian to convince everybody that he is a real threat."

SAYS SCHMELING AGREES

BERLIN, July 12.—(AP)—Joe Jacobs, American manager of Max Schmeling, tonight said the German had agreed to fight Joe Louis, of Detroit in New York in September.

Schmeling, who is on a hunting trip, informed Jacobs by telephone, the latter said, that in as much as Max Baer was troubled with his hands, he would fight Louis in the hope of hurdling him to a fight for the championship with Jim Braddock. Schmeling said he was confident he could defeat Louis and that he believed the fight would result in a large gate.

Jacobs told the Associated press there was only "one unimportant matter" to be settled in regard to the proposed fight and he believed this would be ironed out in a long distance telephone conversation with Mike Jacobs, Twentieth Century club promoter, in New York.

SAVOLDI ARRIVES TODAY FOR TITLE WRESTLING BOUT

Meets Danno O'Mahoney Monday Night.

Joe Savoldi, who amazed wrestling circles when he unexpectedly threw Jim Londos at the Chicago Stadium two years ago, is scheduled to arrive today for his title bout against Champion Danno O'Mahoney at Mills stadium Monday. It will be Savoldi's first Chicago appearance since last Oct. 24 when he was disqualified for using the drop kick against Ed Don George.

Savoldi has not done so well as a professional wrestler since he embarrassed Londos on April 7, 1933. It may be coincidence, but those wise to the rules of wrestling as laid down by the various troupes contend Joe overstepped the bounds against Londos. Consequently, they point out, Savoldi got little rest until he consented to meet the Greek in a return match. He finally agreed Jan. 31, 1934, giving Londos the opportunity to regain his championship and prove to the world a gross injustice had been rectified.

Julian Black, representative of Joe Louis, yesterday motored to Grand Beach, Mich., sixty miles southeast of Chicago, seeking a training camp site for the 1934 Chicago Golden Gloves champion, who clashes with King Levinsky at Comiskey park Aug. 7. Though apparently satisfied with his investigation, Black and his partner, John Roxborough, also are considering the Fox Valley Jocky club racetrack, Aurora, for such a camp.

In the meantime checks and orders for ticket reservations in abundance are being received daily by Sol Katz, ticket manager, who has headquarters at the Morrison hotel. Katz estimated that more than 100 mailed in requests yesterday from cities and towns such as Hamburg, Ia.; Flora, Ind.; Milwaukee, Wis.; Racine, Wis.; Quincy, Ill.; Cleveland, O.; Rockford, Ill.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Hubbard Woods, Ill.; Gary, Ind.; Aurora, Ill.; Lake Geneva, Wis.; McHenry, Ill.; Cedar Rapids, Kalamazoo, Jackson, Mich., and Valparaiso, Ind.

Patsy Severo, Cleveland lightweight, and Johnny Erickson, New York, yesterday were signed to box ten rounds in the main event at Marigold Gardens Monday. . . . Patrick Henry will oppose Bob La Monte at six rounds and Bill Ferns is paired with Joe Pyzik at four rounds. . . . Bus Breese of Manhattan, Kas., left yesterday for Kansas City, Mo., where he will clash with Willie Davies for ten rounds next Wednesday. . . . Davey Day and his co-manager, Art Winch, will head for that city today. . . . Day boxes Joe Ghnouly of St. Louis in the ten round main event there in an elimination lightweight tussle. . . . Gene Stanley, Detroit middleweight, has gone home for a week's rest preparatory to opening drills for an anticipated match on the Tony Canzoneri-Bobby Pacho headliner at Mills stadium July 25.

Ernie Kirchner, Peoria, Ill., middleweight, and Al Tremaine, the Californian sent to Chicago by Ancil Hoffman, manager of Max Baer, will be opponents in one of three matches at six rounds which will serve as preliminaries at White City Thursday. The show will be headed by matches at eight rounds between Clinton Bridges and Bill Treest, and Lorenzo Pack and perhaps Dutch Weimer. George Dixon II. and Ben Irving, both of Chicago, will meet in a featherweight scrap at six rounds.

Petey Mike, Palm Beach welterweight, intends to celebrate his 24th birthday Tuesday by giving Billy Celebron a ten round beating at Western stadium. . . .

SUN TEDDY WINS HIS FIRST START AT ARLINGTON

Beats Sandy Boy by Half Length.

Another speedy 2 year old came to the front from Warren Wright's Calumet stable yesterday when his colt, Sun Teddy, running the gamest kind of a race, got up in the final strides to beat the favorite, Sandy Boy, by half a length in the Blackhawk purse. Sir Gawaine finished third.

Sun Teddy showed fine early speed, but at the turn into the stretch Sir Gawaine moved past him. Jocky Arcaro then began applying the whip to the Chicago colt and had to keep driving him to shake off Sir Gawaine and stave off the late challenge of Sandy Boy.

Sun Teddy, a son of Teddy-Sunmelia, ran the five furlongs over the slow track in 1:01 and paid $9 to win. He was making the first start of his career.

A crowd of Detroit race fans, here for the running of the Lassie stakes, cleaned up on Billie Bee, which won the six furlong fifth race yesterday and paid off at $20 in the two dollar mutuels. Billie Bee is owned by the Bomar stable of Detroit. Col. Bradley's Born Happy was the favorite, but she quit badly when Billie Bee challenged her in the stretch and failed to get any part of the purse. Top Dog finished second, beaten narrowly, and Bulstrode was third.

Among the owners of Lassie stake eligibles to arrive yesterday were Alfred G. Vanderbilt, who came in from Boston in time to see his candidates, Parade Girl and Balcony, go through their final training moves. Charles T. Fisher arrived from Detroit and is confident Miss Prudence or Thatagal will win the rich stake. Hal Price Headley pulled in from Kentucky to see Pelerine and Tinkling Brook sport his silks.

Two jockies were tossed from their mounts during yesterday's program. L. Haas slipped out of the saddle on Tomye soon after the start of the first race and George Burns fell from Bistourian during the running of the Blackhawk purse. Neither was injured.

year olds have been asked to run as far as six furlongs.

Should all 14 start the winner will earn $28,700 for her owner. The second horse earns $2,500, the third $1,500 and the fourth $500. In addition the breeders of the first three receive $1,000, $500 and $250 respectively.

The Blackstone purse, which supports the Lassie stakes today, has developed into a Little Classic for many leading candidates for the Classic to be run one week from today are in the overnight field.

Black Helen and Bloodroot will represent Col. E. R. Bradley in the mile and a furlong event, Count Arthur will carry the silks of Mrs. John Hertz and other Classic eligibles in the race include Blackbirder, Chief Cherokee, Sun Portland, Bandalore, Corinto, Advantage, Official and Sir Ridgeway.

The Lassie will be run as the sixth race this afternoon at about 5 o'clock.

TUNE IN STATION T-H-R-U-S-H AND ENJOY SERENADE

Warbler Makes Summer Evenings Melodious.

BY BOB BECKER.

Although the woods no longer are filled with the melodious courting songs of birds during these warm July days, one beautiful songster still is faithful with its evening serenades. This is the wood thrush, a bird that for richness of tone and a certain bell-like quality, is unsurpassed as a singer. Lately I have been keeping a sort of check on the evening singing of wood thrushes near our home. They have little competition right now. The brown thrashers do not lift their voices these days. I see many catbirds in the thick shrubbery, but rarely do they utter a note.

They Keep Late Hours.

The other night I looked at my watch to see how late the wood thrushes were singing. It was five minutes to nine, Chicago daylight saving time. From the oak timber behind my home one thrush was making music as if he were courting some demure lady thrush.

There is something restful and calm about the song of the wood thrush. If a city dweller, harassed by the noises of rushing automobiles, could get into the country every night and hear a wood thrush sing he would better appreciate the description of the wood thrush's singing as "restful and calm." When you hear this feathered songster with a golden throat doing a song in the twilight of a July day you imagine the song as one of thanks that the singer has the cool and quiet of the forest to live in.

Mr. Wren Is Fickle.

Just about the only competition for the wood thrush in the morning, and offering a striking contrast to the bird's manner and method of singing, is the peppery little house wren in our back yard. As far as I can figure out this gentlemen wren is courting another "lady" these days, although his first family has just been moved out of one of our wren houses by his first wife. This wren starts to sing with all the explosive force of a bunch of small firecrackers about daylight in the morning, and from then on you get wren music whether you want it or not. We will be greatly obliged if this sputtering, nervous wren will kindly go over the bluff on the lake shore and sing until about 7 a. m. But with our wren houses inviting him to park on the place, there seems to be no hope for that.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

SATURDAY, JULY 13, 1935.

STOCKS SHAKE OFF LETHARGY; RISE MODERATE

Favorites Gain 1 to 2 Points.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 12.—Prompted by week-end evening up operations, the stock market shook off its lethargy in the late trading today and moved into generally higher ground. A handful of favorites advanced 1 to 2 points. The day's total sales ran well in excess of a million shares despite the absence of many traders on account of the excessive heat and a pronounced disposition on the part of those on hand to limit their commitments pending more definite developments in the legislative situation at Washington.

The lack of speculative enthusiasm on the constructive side was not accompanied by any bearish sentiment, however, according to brokers, and the tone of the market remained firm even during the earlier hours of the session when business was at a snail's pace.

Better Earnings Are Factor.

Stocks favored by an improved earnings trend or the possibility of higher dividends were prominent in the late afternoon upturn. Aviation, utility, railroad, and rail equipments made the best group showings. New highs were scored by a variety of issues, including General Motors, Fox Film, Schenley, United Aircraft, and Kelsey Hayes A and B.

Week-end trade news was mildly revivifying, but not fresh enough to stimulate unusual demand in any quarter.

General Motors was again a headliner, rising 1½ points on what brokers guessed to be well informed buying. Chrysler moved up almost as much and other issues of the group improved fractionally. A number of motor accessory shares came in for rather brisk trading at intervals. Kelsey Hayes and Timken rose a point or so. Electric Auto Lite was very much in the picture.

Airplane Issues Rise.

In the airplane division, Douglas and United were the most prominent and both were bid up to new price peaks for the year. Wright rose 1½ points. In the absence of any other explanation, the street attributed the sudden return to favor of the aviation shares to the European war cloud.

American Car and Foundry was a bright spot in the rail equipments, the common rising 2 and the preferred more than 5 points. American Locomotive common and preferred were in demand on reports of rail equipment buying.

An individual performer of note was Advance Rumely, an old time trading favorite, which ran up 2 points following announcement that the corporation is to be liquidated. The principal assets of the concern are shares of Allis Chalmers.

Kresge Preferred Climbs.

Another twinkler was Kresge Department Stores preferred, which rose five points on one of its infrequent appearances. In spite of estimates of greatly reduced earnings, Hershsey Chocolate was bid up 2 points to within striking distance of its year's high.

Closing gains of fractions to a point or more included Allied Chemical, U. S. Steel, Western Union, American Telephone, Standard Oil of New Jersey, National Biscuit and Westinghouse Electric.

Oil and tobacco stocks were steady to firm. Metal issues contributed little to the record of the day's doings.

STATE PERMITS GIVEN $234,885,000 NEW SECURITIES

Issues aggregating $234,885,000 were qualified for sale in Illinois by the state securities department during the first six months of 1935, Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes reported yesterday. This total is $29,415,000 more than all commercial and industrial financing approved during the three years of 1932, 1933, and 1934.

Refunding issues were predominant, accounting for approximately 304 millions of the six month aggregate qualified under the Illinois "blue sky" laws. The remaining more than 30 millions was in new financing.

"The report indicates a further rise in business activities," said Secretary Hughes. "Times are looking up in Illinois, and it is very evident that business is on the upturn. The increase in financing, in my opinion, reflects a new confidence of the investing public."

Issues qualified in 1932, he pointed out, aggregated $85,662,000. Qualifications declined to $77,908,000 in 1933 and to $41,900,000 last year.

Gain in Net Assets Shown by Tri-Continental Corp.

Net assets of the Tri-Continental corporation on June 30 amounted to $41,730,586, equivalent to $5,500 for each $1,000 of debentures, $131 a share of preferred stock and $3.31 a share of common stock outstanding. This was an increase of 10.1 per cent over net assets on Dec. 31, 1934, which were $37,905,890, equivalent to $4,996 for each $1,000 of debentures, $116 a share of preferred stock and $1.74 a share of common stock.

Chicago Federal Savings and Loan Begins Dividends

An initial dividend of 1¾ per cent on all classes of shares for the first six months of the year was voted by directors of the Chicago Federal Savings and Loan association yesterday. The association has invested $218,977 in 60 instalment first mortgages on one to four family dwellings in Chicago and nearby suburbs. This amount is 39⅛ per cent of the total appraised value of $553,495. Total assets increased from $9,753 as of June 30, 1934, to $247,791 as of June 30, 1935.

Eastman Asks Roads to Unify Big Terminals

Washington D. C., July 12.—(AP)—Unification of railroad terminal facilities, at an estimated minimum annual saving of $56,093,498, was recommended today to the railroad coördinating committee by Joseph B. Eastman, federal transportation coördinator.

His report declares $10,000,000 could be saved in Chicago alone, and that $7,500,000 to $10,000,000 could be saved in New York. Estimated savings in other cities were Toledo $1,000,000; Detroit, $2,000,000; Indianapolis, $550,000; Denver, $683,256; Phoenix, Ariz., $75,000; Los Angeles, $645,178; Louisville, $500,000; Memphis, $700,000; Chattanooga, $425,000; New Orleans, $750,000; Atlanta, $361,675, and Birmingham, $750,000.

Exceeds Roads' Estimates.

The report, submitted by Eastman to the regional coördinating committees of the carriers, was prepared by V. V. Boatner, chief of the section of regional coördination. He reviewed reports of various committees and engineers representing Chicago, but was not included to accept any in full. Coordination of freight terminal operations would result in an estimated saving of $7,043,000.

A committee now surveying the passenger terminal situation for the coordinating committee recommended closing the Dearborn and Grand Central stations but retaining the La Salle station, dividing the trafic from the first two units but Boatner said he believed this plan was neither "representative of the proper arrangement or of the savings to be affected if coordination is developed to the extent of practical possibilities."

Calls Unit Operation Obsolete.

Based on surveys made by the railroads themselves of more than 5,000 terminals in various cities and areas throughout the country, the report termed the present unit operation "obsolete." It added that unification and coördination of terminals and facilities is practical and would result in improved service.

"Unnecessary duplication of services and facilities exists and continues, requiring large capital expenditures and depleting railroad revenues," the report said.

"Present unit operation of facilities in large terminal areas is a relic of rail monopoly in transportation and a half measure between transferring freight by hand from one line to another, which was done in the eighties and nineties to preserve individuality, and modern methods that should join through routes and movements in an efficient national transportation system."

FRANC SLUMPS ON DOUBTS OF STAYING ON GOLD

New York, July 13.—[Special.]—Pronounced weakness in the franc, inducing an irregular tendency in other exchanges, featured the foreign exchange market today. The French currency dropped to 6.60⅝ cents, compared with parity of 6.6335 cents, and closed at 6.61½ cents, off ⅝ point net.

The immediate cause of the decline was said to be uncertainty over possible developments on Sunday, which is Bastille day. The fundamental cause was continued uncertainty over France's ability to remain on gold in the face of almost universal depreciation of currencies. At the closing price of the franc the dollar was worth $1.0027, compared with $1.0015 yesterday, and based upon the old parity of the franc was valued at 59.23 cents, against 59.15 cents yesterday.

Sterling also declined, ending at $4.95¾, off ¼ cent. The guilder was down 1 point to 68.17 cents and the Swiss franc dropped 4 points to 32.74 cents. The lira was off 2 points to 8.22 cents.

Bar silver moved lower today in both New York and London. The price of foreign mined metal dropped to 68¾ cents an ounce here, off ⅝ cent, and in London the metal was 3-16 penny lower at 31⅛ pence a fine ounce, equivalent to 69.49 cents. Bar gold in London was 3 pence higher at 140 shillings 11 pence a fine ounce, or equivalent to $34.92.

'MOP' FACTIONS, 'MILES APART,' JONES REVEALS

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—Several fundamental differences remain to be ironed out before any agreement can be reached on a plan of reorganization for the Missouri Pacific railroad, Jesse Jones, chairman of the RFC said after a meeting with representatives of bondholders and the management of that road. Jones said that the two groups are still "miles apart."

However, Jones revealed the fact that neither of the plans of reorganization included the furnishing of additional funds by the RFC. The impression in railroad circles now is that because of a better credit market, additional funds, if needed, will be supplied by private interests.

Those meeting with Jones today were O. P. Van Sweringen, chairman of the Missouri Pacific, and John W. Stedman, vice president of the Prudential Insurance Company of America. Stedman and Van Sweringen are continuing their conference.

Underwood-Elliott-Fisher Net Earnings Show Gains

Underwood Elliott Fisher company and consolidated subsidiaries report for the quarter ended June 30, net income of $750,857 after charges, depreciation, and federal taxes, equal, after dividend requirements on the 7 per cent preferred, to $1.05 a share on 666,448 shares of common. This compares with $719,403, or $1.01 a share, in the preceding quarter, and $685,810, or 96 cents a share, in the June quarter of 1934.

June Output of Autos 21% Above 1934

June production by members of the Automobile Manufacturers association —which includes all major concerns, with the exception of Ford—amounted to 276,218 motor vehicles, a gain of 11 per cent over May and 21 per cent over the corresponding period last year, according to a preliminary report issued yesterday by the association.

On this basis output for the first half of the current year totaled 1,537,906, an upturn of 20 per cent over the first six months of 1934 and 48 per cent above the average for the last five years.

Largest Since 1929.

This would indicate production for the industry as a whole of 2,348,606 cars and trucks, the largest for any six month period since 1929, and exceeded in only one other year—1926. Ford previously reported its six month total at 810,700 units.

The aggregate represents a gain of 31 per cent over the 1,796,347 units which rolled from assembly lines in the first half of 1934. In 1929, the record year, the six month total was 6,613,804 units.

Production during all of last year was 2,869,963 units, which was only 521,357 above this year's six month total. In 1933 output was 1,986,208 and in 1932 1,431,467.

Expect Good Half Year.

While experts believe production during the latter half of 1935 will exceed any previous year since 1929 they are reticent about actual figures. A temporary falling off will probably occur in August as some concerns are bringing out new models earlier than usual. However, this reduction will be temporary, it is said. Heavy sales thus far in 1935 have held down inventories.

Retail deliveries of Pontiacs during the first half of 1935 amounted to 83,317 cars, against 44,386 in the 1934 period and 73,620 for all of last year.

Graham-Paige deliveries reached a new high for any ten day period this year when 819 cars were delivered between June 20 and 30.

DAY COACH TRAIN IS PROVIDED FOR LOS ANGELES RUN

The train will have a dining car serving low cost meals. Passengers will be provided with pillows free of charge, and free drinking cups will supplant the penny in the slot cups.

The train will carry a car for the exclusive use of women and children which will contain a special smoking compartment for women. All cars will be air conditioned.

BUILDING CONTRACT TOTAL IN JUNE BEST SINCE MARCH, 1934

New York, July 12.—(AP)—The construction industry in June turned in a higher contract volume than was shown for any other month since March, 1934, when activity under the PWA program was tapering from its peak, the F. W. Dodge corporation announced today.

June contracts for construction in the 37 states east of the Rocky mountains amounted to $148,005,200. This represented a gain of almost 18 per cent over the total for May and almost 17 per cent over the volume for June of last year.

Residential building amounted to $9,832,600. This was more than 10 per cent larger than the total for May and almost twice the volume reported in June, 1934. The residential total was greater than was shown for any single month since October, 1931.

Non-residential building awards amounted to $59,035,800, while contracts for heavy engineering projects —chiefly highways, bridges, and the like—totaled $39,136,800 in June.

FEDERAL TAXES FOR TEN DAYS TOP 103 MILLIONS

Washington, D. C., July 12.—(AP)—Funds pouring into government coffers from regular revenue sources were shown by the treasury department's financial statement today to have crossed the $100,000,000 mark for the first time in the fiscal year, which began July 1.

These receipts, from such things as income and the processing taxes, and customs revenue, reached $103,823,575 as of July 10, the date of today's statement. This amount, however, did not represent total receipts, because $570,153,800 has been received from government borrowings, including $113,052,645 as shown on the July 10 statement.

Regular receipts on that day were $8,557,061 but this, plus the borrowing and receipts from trust accounts and other similar items totaling $507,818, put the total for the day at $122,117,524.

PECORA DENIES HE WILL RESIGN FOR PHONE QUIZ

New York, July 12.—(AP)—Ferdinand Pecora said today he had "no present intention" of resigning as Supreme court justice. He made the statement in commenting on a Washington report that he would be chief counsel for the federal communications commission's investigation of the American Telephone and Telegraph company.

"I will neither deny nor affirm the report that President Roosevelt offered me the position as chief counsel in the investigation," he said. "I have no present intention of resigning from the bench. I like my work and I expect to be permitted to stay here."

Car Loadings Drop Sharply as Result of July 4 Holiday

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—Freight trafic last week dropped 145,615 cars, or 23.4 per cent from the preceding week, the largest drop for any July 4 week on record, according to figures released today by the Association of American Railroads. The total of 472,421 cars was the lowest for any week since the bank moratorium of March, 1933, and the lowest for the July 4 week since 1932.

The total was also 48,320 cars, or 8.7 per cent, below a year ago, and 71,089 cars under the corresponding week of 1933. The poor showing against preceding years was due to light grain shipments because of the late winter wheat harvest in the southwest, a drop in live stock movements due to last year's drouth, and a slump in eastern coal hauling as strike threats faded and prices advanced.

Since the beginning of the year loadings have totaled 15,648,478 cars, compared with 15,957,364 in the corresponding period of last year and 13,887,810 in 1933.

Miscellaneous freight last week totaled 197,855 cars, a decrease of 39,873 below the preceding week, an increase of 106 over 1934, and a decrease of 4,112 below 1933.

Coal amounted to 50,186 cars, a decrease of 68,215 below the preceding week, 31,252 below 1934, and 39,849 below 1933.

Grain and grain products totaled 23,887, a decrease of 4,343 below the preceding week, 13,265 below 1934, and 21,181 below 1933.

Live Stock Shows Decline.

Live stock amounted to 8,615 cars, a decrease of 791 below the preceding week, 6,939 below 1934, and 4,878 below 1933.

Plan for Banks to Underwrite May Be Killed

Washington, D. C., July 12.—(AP)—Senate banking committee members said generally tonight it was immaterial whether the compromise banking bill retains its provisions permitting banks of deposit to return, within limitations, to the securities underwriting business.

They made known their views after President Roosevelt at a press conference had expressed flat opposition to the provision on the ground it might bring a return of evils which led to a ban being placed on such activities in the 1933 banking act.

The President earlier had discussed the subject with Senator Glass [Dem., Va.]. Elimination of the provision either in the senate or in conference was predicted.

Bill Permits Underwriting.

The bill as revised by the Glass subcommittee would permit any bank of deposit to underwrite up to 20 per cent of a single issue of securities, or a total of $100,000, whichever was the greater. This could not exceed ten per cent of capital and surplus, or 200 per cent as applied to all issues. Sales would be limited to the open market.

It has never been announced who recommended the provision to the subcommittee, although it has been rumored that it was proposed by a New York federal reserve bank official.

Despite these limitations and the fact the transactions would be under regulation of the controler of the currency, the President said he was afraid a relaxation of existing divorcement of commercial and investment banking would bring a return of damaging speculation that existed prior to the 1929 crash.

Fears Banks Will Unload.

The President said it might lead banks, as evidence before the senate stock marketing committee showed, to unload securities they were unable to sell on their own trust accounts and that it would be better to eliminate the provision than to try to find more adequate safeguarding clauses.

Chairman Fletcher of the full banking committee said the provision contained many safeguards, but he feared it might open the door for wider participation by banks in the security business later on.

Chairman Glass of the subcommittee would not comment on the President's statement, but associates of the Virginian said he did not care whether the amendment remained in or out of the bill.

VOTE ON RUMELY DISSOLUTION IS SET FOR SEPT. 30

Dissolution of the Advance-Rumely corporation and distribution of its assets will be voted upon Sept. 30 by stockholders in a meeting at La Porte, Ind. Under Indiana law no such action can be taken without a two-thirds vote of shareholders.

Finley P. Mount, president of the company, explained that a cash distribution of $1 a share is contemplated immediately and that each stockholder is expected to receive one-half share of stock in Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company for each present Advance-Rumely share.

The company has not been engaged in manufacturing for several years, as its operations were taken over by Allis-Chalmers. The latter also is collecting certain receivables under a contract by which Rumely obtains payment partly in cash and partly in Allis-Chalmers stock. To date enough has been netted to equal 0.45 of a share of Allis-Chalmers stock of each Rumely share.

Morgan Making Usual Trip to Scotch Hunting Lodge

New York, July 12.—(AP)—J. P. Morgan, the financier, is aboard the Aquitania, which sailed last midnight for England. It was learned at his office today he is making his customary annual visit abroad and expects to spend August at his hunting lodge in Scotland. Before sailing Morgan declined to comment on business or market affairs and offered no information regarding his plans other than to say that he would return in the autumn.

Auburn Auto Has Smaller Net Loss Than Year Ago

The Auburn Automobile company and subsidiaries yesterday announced a consolidated net loss of $410,890 for the quarter ended May 31, compared with a net loss of $788,071 in the corresponding period of last year. The consolidated balance sheet of May 31 shows current assets of $5,227,097, against current liabilities of $821,718.

INFLATION FEAR DELAYS BILL ON GOLD PAYMENTS

Senate Group Sees Credit Threats.

Washington, D. C., July 12.—(AP)—Anxiety over inflation and the nation's credit today deferred a senate committee decision on administration legislation to protect the revamped monetary system from legal sharpshooting.

The house banking committee approved the bill, while the corresponding group in the senate received treasury assurances that a potential $10,000,000,000 inflation bubble was not involved, as asserted by some members. In addition, the senate group issued a call for Secretary Morgenthau to testify Monday on the credit aspects of the measure. Senators Glass [Dem., Va.] and McAdoo [Dem., Cal.] had expressed fears on that point.

Bars Gold Payment Basis.

The legislation would forbid court suits to collect the present equivalent of the old gold value of government bonds containing the once familiar gold clause which was the subject of last winter's historic Supreme court decision.

Senator McAdoo raised the inflation issue at today's session. He contended a provision permitting holders of such bonds to redeem them in cash at any time raised the possibiltiy of redemption in printing press money.

John G. Harlan and J. G. Laylin, treasury counsel, denied that such would be the case. They asserted that instead the cash for redemption would be provided by the issuance of new government securities.

Argue Over "Buyer's Strike."

From Senator Maloney [Dem., Conn.] and others, however, came suggestions that enactment of the bill might bring on a "buyer's strike" in which the government would find itself unable to sell bonds.

Harlan and Laylin insisted it was unlikely that many of the gold clause obligations would be presented for cash because they were selling on the market above par and carried high interest rates.

McAdoo asked what would happen if all the obligations were presented for cash and the government could not obtain the money in the bond market.

"Both assumptions are unreal," Laylin replied.

"It's conceivable that so many would be turned in that the bond market could not absorb the new issues," McAdoo said.

"Then just pass another act repudiating this promise," Senator Adams [Dem., Colo] interjected sarcastically.

Concerned About Credit.

The controversy ended there, but Senator Steiwer [Rep., Ore.] said he was concerned over the effect the resolution might have on government credit and asked that Morgenthau be called to testify Monday.

Attorney General Cummings had told the house committee the United States might suffer a potential loss of $7,000,000,000 on gold clause suits should holders of all the $10,000,000,000 in gold clause securities be able to prove damages. The $7,000,000,000 represents the difference in the gold face value of the certificates and their present value in devalued dollars.

90 PCT. OF STEEL WORKERS JOIN IN OWN WAGE PLANS

New York, July 13.—[Special.]—The American Iron & Steel institute announced today more than 90 per cent of the steel industry's employés are actively participating in employé representation plans as a method of collective bargaining.

This, the institute said, was revealed in an industrywide survey of recent employé elections. A year ago, the employé representation plans were supported by 85 per cent of the employés. Employé representation is the term used in the industry to describe "inside" collective bargaining, as distinguished from the outside, or professional labor union.

The reports of election returns received from 20 steel companies whose employés voted last month showed that out of a total of 213,806 available and eligible to vote on the date of the election, 192,699,, or 90.13 per cent, voted. A year ago, 181,926 cast ballots out of 213,000 qualified to vote.

DEMOCRATS TRY TO BURY FARM MORTGAGE BILL

Washington, D. C., July 12.—(AP)—Administration leaders in the house today set out to subtract names from the list of those insisting that there be a vote this session on the three billion dollar Frazier-Lemke bill to refinance farm mortgages.

A petition had 210 signers who urged that the bill be taken away from the rules committee, where it was pigeonholed, and brought to a vote. Soon after the house met, four members scratched off their names. To force a vote, 216 signers are needed.

In the drive against the bill, administration leaders called a special meeting of the Democratic steering committee to map plans for persuading members to take their signatures off the document. Representative Sabath of Illinois, chairman of the committee, told members it was necessary for the party to get organized against the bill. Followers of Representative Lemke were indignant at the move.

McGraw Electric Company Declares 50 Cent Dividend

McGraw Electri ccompany yesterday declared a dividend of 50 cents a share, payable Aug. 1 to stock of record July 22. On May 1 and Feb. 1 payments of 25 cents a share were made.

Babson Raps New Deal; Has Recovery Plan

Wellesley, Mass., July 12.—[Special.]—Rober Babson, statistician, tonight assailed New Deal policies and offered a six-point program for speeding recovery, in an address before the Summer Institute for Social Progress.

Concerning labor conditions Babson said that labor organization have done much good in urging wage increases as production per man increases, and in improving working conditions, but on some other questions have done more harm than good to the wage workers themselves.

Declares Wagner Act Unfair.

The Wagner act, he said, is unfair in permitting coercion by labor leaders and forbidding it by employers. He expressed the belief that this situation will some day be corrected. Such legislation, he contended, increases unemployment, as statistics show increased sales of labor saving machinery after the enactment of such laws.

Total employment in man-hours actually decreased 4 per cent during the life of the NRA codes, Babson said, and they caused an 18 per cent decrease in the average output per worker.

"Employers have great respect for the good intentions of Secretary of Labor Perkins, but very little respect for her knowledge of common arithmetic," he said. "Her six points for labor increase both retail prices and taxes, which in turn increase prices still more, these increased expenses of production ultimately falling on the backs of the wage workers, who are the largest consumers."

Babson's Recovery Points.

Babson's points for recovery were: First, increase production; second, encourage employment by cutting taxes, suppressing violence and fraud, enforcing contracts, and stabilizing credit by balancing public budgets; third, confine government activities to such fields as cannot easily be entered by private enterprise; fourth, draft men into employment by proportional assignment to employers of members of families now in distress.

The fifth point was to let the readjustment of wealth occur naturally, as "it is only three generations from shirtsleeves to shirtsleeves for families or corporations." Sixth, he said, accompany all relief work with an appeal for birth regulation among those receiving relief.

STOCK EXCHANGE PROBES TRADES IN UTILITY ISSUE

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—Acting presumably at the behest of the Securties and Exchange commission, the New York Stock exchange has called on members and member firms to answer a questionnaire detailing all "round lot" trades in American Water Works common stock from June 3 to July 5.

In view of the house investigation of the activities of the so-called "public utility lobby" in connection with the recent defeat of the "death sentence" in the holding company bill, the move for an investigation of the selling in American Water Works is of more than ordinary interest. It comes also at a time the utilities are fighting bitterly to fend off the determined efforts of Senator Wheeler to have the provision put back in the bill when it goes to conference.

It is recalled that the company's board, on July 2, decided to omit further dividends on the stock despite the fact that earnings for the twelve months ended May 31 showed requirements at the rate then prevailing covered by a narrow margin.

In that interval covered by the questionnaire some 176,200 shares of the common stock of the corporation changed hands. Prices in the period ranged from a high of 13⅝ early in June and a low of 10½ on July 2, the date of the omission of the dividend.

TWO FURNITURE SHOWS REPORT BIG SALES GAINS

Buying yesterday at the American Furniture mart show was the largest since pre-depression days, and business at the Merchandise mart continued far above any previous show, exhibitors and officials of the semi-annual household furnishings markets announced.

At the Merchandise mart all lines were reported as sharing in the rise, with quality merchandise being more largely sought. Lamp exhibitors are "selling light" rather than stressing price or decorative appeal, it was said. E. F. Mansure, president of the Chicago Drapery Manufacturers' association, said his group has benefited materially by showing along with the other household groups. Assurance of a firm market, with possible price advances, was credited with boosting the sales.

Registration of 350 more buyers yesterday brought the week's total to 4,863 at the Furniture mart, passing by 500 the previous record of 4,310 set in the summer of 1929. The Merchandise mart registration total is 4,376 compared with 3,317 at this stage of the market last January and 2,218 a year ago.

General Baking Company's 26 Week Profit Increases

NEW YORK, July 12.—(AP)—General Baking company reports for 26 weeks ended June 29 net profit of $871,040 after charges and federal taxes, equal, after preferred dividend requirements to 33 cents a share on 1,588,697 shares of common stock. This compares with $742,884, or 24 cents a share a year ago. The company declared its regular quarterly dividend of 15 cents on the common, payable Aug. 1 to stock of record July 20.

General Electric Co. Has 5,000 New Stockholders

More than five thousand new common stockholders were added to the General Electric company list during the twelve months ended June 28, Gerard Swope, president, announced yesterday. As of that date the company had a total of 186,098 shareholders.

'SOAK THE RICH' TAX MAY BREAK SECURITY PRICES

Experts Fear Effect of Forced Sales.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

President Roosevelt's "soak the rich" tax scheme, in the opinion of trust officers and tax attorneys, would cause a stream of liquidation which would have a bearish effect on securities markets and real estate.

If the wealth is to be "shared" it must be liquidated. Executors of estates must sell stocks, bonds, mortgages, and real estate to pay the tax collectors, because taxes are paid in cash, not in real wealth.

Even under present estate and inheritance tax rates, and the smaller rates in effect prior to the 1932 and 1934 boosts, there has been tremendous liquidation of large estates. Tax selling in the past, however, has been somewhat limited by the fact that many individuals of large means have been able to prepare for taxes on their estates at death by building up sufficient cash assets to meet the emergency.

Can't Foresee Size of Tax.

In view of the 1932 and 1934 increases in the estate tax rates, however, and the possibility that the New Dealers will impose stiff inheritance taxes atop the mounting burden of estate taxes, these financial preparations to meet the high cost of dying are rapidly becoming inadequate.

Already estate taxes are so high that in many cases, after the cream of the assets has been turned into cash to satisfy the tax collectors, the heirs are left with nothing but the "frozen assets," which may or may not pay out the full amount at which they were appraised by the bureau of internal revenue.

According to trust departments of banks and leading estate tax attorneys most of America's richest individuals have insulated themselves against higher estate and inheritance taxes by gifts or irrevocable trusts established prior to the revenue act of 1932, which restored the tax on gifts.

Fear Effect on Markets.

These same experts add, however, that there are enough individuals not so protected, together with a large army of moderately wealthy persons, to cause liquidation for tax purposes to make the markets for securities and real estate sag in the event that the Roosevelt "share the wealth" program is enacted.

"There is no doubt about the depressing effect on the markets that would be caused by the enactment of the proposed tax increases," Edward H. McDermott, who in 1927 and 1928 was counsel for the joint committee of the house and senate on internal revenue tax, said yesterday. "Furthermore if we get an 85 per cent tax the liquidation of many estates won't produce that. The tax gatherers will take the whole thing, leaving nothing at all for the heirs."

Time Needed to Liquidate.

Mr. McDermott expressed the opinion that liquidation even under present rates frequently helps undermine the market for securities and real estate. He cited the case of a wealthy New Yorker, who died in 1930 leaving an estate with a tax bill of ten million dollars. In order to raise this money, he said, large blocks of stocks had to be sold. The market would not readily absorb such selling and the liquidation had to be carried out over a period of several years.

He cited a second case in which a smaller estate, consisting mostly of Chicago real estate, had to be liquidated to raise tax money. In this case a building conservatively estimated by competent appraisers at $700,000 had to be dumped on the market at $300,000, thus contributing to the demoralization of the market for loop real estate.

Wrigley Estate Is Cited.

Another attorney recalled the case of William Wrigley Jr., who died leaving a large block of shares in his company to be sold to raise cash to meet the estate tax. A severe break in the market for Wrigley stock, he said, was averted only by the prompt organization of a syndicate to steady the market for the stock so that the liquidation could be affected in orderly fashion without great loss to the estate and to other stockholders. Such a protective step would be impossible under the new securities legislation.

Although other powerful factors were driving down the market for Montgomery Ward stock in 1929 and 1930, the death in 1929 of Reuben H. Donnelley, who held 88,000 shares, is believed to have had a bearish effect on the market.

Tax Exceeds Stock's Value.

Securities are evaluated for tax purposes as of the date of death. When Mr. Donnelley died his Montgomery Ward shares were worth $130 a share, or a total of $11,440,000. The tax collectors took $26 per share, despite the fact that the stock fell to a market value of $8 per share. Thus the $11,440,000 left to the heirs actually became a liability to them of $1,300,000.

Richard T. Crane Jr. died in 1931 leaving a large block of Crane company stock selling around $14 per share. By the time the estate tax was payable the stock had dropped to about $3 per share.

ATLAS ACQUIRES CLARKE UTILITY AS INVESTMENT

Buying of RFC Interest Causes Comment.

Control of the Harley Clarke utility empire by the Atlas corporation through acquisition of holdings of the Reconstruction Finance corporation was said yesterday to have been undertaken primarily as an investment. This view was supported by a statement of Floyd B. Odlum, president of Atlas, who described the deal Thursday night as a "temporary investment."

Odlum declared Atlas had no intention of assuming an active interest in managing the Utilities Power and Light corporation, top holding company in the Clarke group. However, in some quarters yesterday it was considered possible that Atlas would use its control to further reorganization of Utilities Power & Light, based on the trend to which operations of Atlas have pointed recently.

Interests Decline To Comment.

Official comment from either the Clarke interests or Atlas was not forthcoming. The street recalled, however, the rôle played by Atlas in reorganizing and underwriting new securities of the Paramount-Publix corporation and remarks made by Odlum in a letter to stockholders in March. He said:

"The greatest future of the company lies in using a substantial but varying portion of the capital in special situations, such as reorganizations and financing new capital issues, rather than keeping all capital invested in a wide list of securities dealt in on leading stock exchanges."

Acquires Goldman-Sachs Unit.

Acquisition of the Goldman-Sachs Trading corporation brought Atlas into first contact with the Clarke group. The Goldman-Sachs portfolio contained 9,000 shares of Public Utilities Securities corporation preferred stock, which in turn controls Utilities Power and Light. Later Atlas bought some Utilities Power 5 per cent debentures along with other public utilities bonds, then regarded by Atlas as selling at low prices.

The RFC came into control of the Clarke organization through notes of the Webster Securities corporation, which had been held by the Central Republic Bank and Trust company. As collateral against these notes the entire common stock of Public Utilities Securities was pledged. When these notes went into default the RFC took over the stock and placed representatives on the directorate.

Deal Causes English Comment.

Excitement was immediately caused, for it seemed to place the RFC definitly into the electric power business. As a result of Clarke's control of the Greater London and Counties trust in England a member of parliament demanded to know if the American RFC was about to squeeze English power users.

Atlas corporation has now acquired the entire RFC interest by trading some of its Utilities Power debentures for Webster Securities notes. The situation remains complicated, however, because of various suits pending.

NEW YORK BANKS ARRANGE SALE OF INSULL PLEDGES

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—The Guaranty Trust company is withdrawing the sale at public auction, scheduled to be held at 10 a. m. on July 17, of the collateral securing its loans to Insull Utility Investments, Inc., subject to upset prices determined in May, 1932, when the sale was first contemplated, and instead is offering the same collateral for sale on the same date through Adrian H. Muller & Son.

The collateral to be sold, for which the bank itself may bid, consists of 22,238 shares of Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, 16,512 shares of the Commonwealth Edison company, 200 shares of $60 par common stock and 7,900 shares of no par common stock of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois.

No disposition has been taken as yet by the bank with respect to the collateral securing its loans to the Corporation Securities company. The National City bank is the only bank which loaned money to that company, indirectly, which has announced the sale of its collateral, to be held next Friday.

Central Hanover Bank and Trust company on Wednesday will sell at auction the collateral securing its loans to Insull Utility investments. None of the banks is offering any of their Middle West Utilities company shares for sale, these having virtually no current value.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 12.—Continued uncertainty in the medium grade rail group tended to unsettle the bond market today, although setbacks in most cases were limited to fractions. High grade bonds, however, held steady and the undertone was strong.

Selling was pronounced in some of the utility issues. Apparently reflecting uneasiness among holders of power and light bonds that the latest turn in the holding company legislative situation contained threatening elements, some of the issues were offered at concessions of 2 points or more before finding buyers.

Some of Largest Losses.

Some of the largest losses were: Utility Power and Light 5s, off 2¼ points at 45; Laclede Gas 5½s, off 1¾ at 72¾; American Water Works 6s, off 1¼ at 86⅝, and New York Gas, Electric Light and Power 4s, off 1 at 113⅜. American Telephone, International Telephone, Western Union, and Postal Telegraph were fairly steady.

A new decline in Southern Railway general 4s gave the railroad list another jolt. A number of carriers dropped fractions to a point.

Federal List Is Quiet.

The volume of trading in United States government contracts fell off sharply, total transactions amounting to only $830,000, as against more than 2 millions on Thursday. Activity in some issues was confined to only a sale or two. Closing quotations were mixed with changes of 1-32 to 8-32 of a point up and down. The treasury 3⅜s and Home Owners Loans 2¾s and federal farm mortgage 2¾s moved higher.

Foreign bonds were strong. Italian loans staged a sharp comeback and most of the South and Central American loans worked higher.

Barnsdall Corp.

Investors' Guide: Will you please advise me about Barnsdall corporation stock?—F. E. J.

Answer: Barnsdall corporation is now solely a petroleum producer. It formerly was an integrated unit in the industry, operating 3,500 retail outlets, several refineries and a pipe line system. The producing division has had a good record of earnings for the last few years, but the other activities converted the production profits into losses.

The company, therefore, segregated all assets except those used in crude oil production and placed them in possession of a newly formed company, Barnsdall Refining company. Stock of the latter was distributed to stockholders in the ratio of one-half share for each Barnsdall company share on July 1, 1935.

Barnsdall corporation, said President Reeser in commenting on the divorcement, "should be in a position to pay early dividends to stockholders." The new corporation will stand on its own feet and any losses it might sustain will leave Barnsdall corporation unaffected.

Mr. Reeser said that allowable production for 1935 has been increased over 1934, and, provided crude oil prices remain unchanged, the company should show a material increase in profits over the profit allocated to the production division in 1934.

The company, including marketing and refining divisions, lost $338,000 in the first quarter of 1935, against net income of $119,000, including nonrecurring income of $200,000, in the corresponding 1934 period.

Loss in 1934 was $1,029,000, against losses of $1,942,635 in 1933, $847,000 in 1932, and $3,269,000 in 1931. Profit in 1930 was $5,131,000.

Current assets at the close of 1934, including cash of only $638,000, were $6,325,000, and current liabilities were $2,605,000. Profit and loss deficit was $3,819,000. Capitalization was represented by 2,195,397 shares of $5 par capital stock.

Except for the July 1, 1935, semi-liquidating dividend, nothing has been paid on the stock since 1931. The stock is a speculation at present.

Permanent Bonds Available.

Investors' Guide: I hold a temporary bond without coupons of American Water Works and Electric company, due 1944. Chemical Bank and Trust company of New York arranged the exchange of my old bonds for the new, but I have received no notice to send in my temporary bonds. Are they ready to exchange for permanent bonds yet?—G. C. J.

Answer: Yes, the permanent bond certificates of American Water Works and Electric company 5s, due 1944, were available on Aug. 10, 1934. Chemical Bank and Trust company, New York, is the place of delivery.

TWO BANKS MAY MAKE FURTHER SMALL RETURNS

Albany Park, Woodlawn Institutions Report.

Only small further returns to depositors of the Albany Park National bank and the National Bank of Woodlawn are indicated by statements of condition as of June 30 which were issued yesterday. Appraisals of remaining assets point to only 5 to 10 per cent more in repayments before final liquidation. No payments are expected for some months, however, because both banks owe substantial balances on loans obtained from the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

The Woodlawn bank paid back another $61,306, or 5 per cent, during the last quarter to bring total returns to $519,661, or 42½ per cent. A further loan of $53,000 from the RFC made this possible, since collections were only $21,136 from assets and stock liability. The bank has repaid $270,000 of $322,000 borrowed from the RFC since it closed June 23, 1932.

More Paid on Claims.

In addition to the $52,000 balance due the RFC the bank has $15,403 in unproved and unpaid claims. Remaining assets of $940,875 book value are estimated to yield $143,347. Collections are running slightly ahead of estimates. Payment of another 10 per cent requires $122,300 net after bills.

Of the $1,311,833 total receipts, $426,295 has paid off prior claims, $20,307 to protect assets [$2,886 last quarter], $62,586 expenses [$5,924 last quarter], $12,984 to cash on hand, and the remainder to depositors and the RFC as noted above. Eugene E. Highman is receiver.

The Albany Park National receipts last quarter were $21,718. This, together with cash on hand, was used to pay $88,000 to the RFC, reducing the balance to $54,500 on various loans amounting to $389,500. There also are $53,316 in unproved and unpaid claims.

Scale Down Remaining Assets.

Remaining assets of $997,791 book value are estimated to be worth $164,000, plus whatever is realized from sale of the bank building. No value has been placed on this, said Receiver Gordon A. Ramsay, because of real estate market conditions. Depending on sale of this property and settlement of unproved claims, indications are for another 5 to 10 per cent. For the latter, $146,400 is needed.

Depositors have received $922,856, or 63 per cent, and prior claims of $633,681 have been wiped out. Advances to protect assets cost $120,240 [$3,781 last quarter] and expenses are $106,726 [$4,110 last quarter]. Repayments to the RFC aggregate $335,000. Cash on hand is $16,818. Total receipts have been $2,135,322.

Stockholders' liability assessments of $300,000 have been levied in each receivership. Albany Park collections are $124,076 and $4,000 more is expected. Definitly charged off as a loss so far is $29,246. The Woodlawn collections are $118,702, and another $11,449 is anticipated. Charged off definitly as a loss is $23,223.

PRICES OF HOGS MOVE LOWER AS DEMAND SHRINKS

A few small lots of top hogs at the opening of yesterday's market advanced to $12.50, equaling the highest July mark in nine years, but soon afterward the whole market weakened. Some butcher weights closed as much as 15 to 25 cents under the best prices of the preceding session.

Sharpest losses were recorded in the stock weighing more than over 250 pounds, and some of these were carried over unsold despite the meagerness of the receipts. The average price for the day at $11.55, processing tax included, was 50 cents above 10 days ago.

The cattle market broke again. Packers carried light buying orders for all medium to good grades and were bidding so much lower than at any time this week that a number of loads were taken off the market.

Sales of steers yesterday were 50 to 75 cents under a week ago, and in places bids by some buyers were off $1 in the good grades of cattle. No steers were sold over $10, although the trade believes a load similar to the kinds that sold last week at $12.60 would bring $11.75 now. Calves slumped about 50 cents.

The decline in native lambs was halted, but westerns sold off 10 cents more considering the heavier sorting. All interests paid the $8.60 peak for natives, getting the culls at $6.50 to $7 and the buck lambs at $7.60 and under.

COTTONSEED OIL AND CORN INFLUENCE DROP IN LARD

Lard futures held within narrow limits yesterday, averaging slightly lower in sympathy with corn and cottonseed oil. The latter is quoted as selling around 4¼ cents per pound discount as compared with loose lard, the widest difference in years.

Consumption of cottonseed oil during June is estimated to have been 158,000 barrels or around 63,000,000 pounds, compared with 202,000 barrels in May, and with 303,000 barrels, or about 121,000,000 pounds in June, 1934. Stocks of cottonseed oil, which is the largest competitor of lard, on June 30 aggregated 1,453,000 barrels, against 2,150,000 barrels last year.

Trade in lard futures was only fair with a little buying by cash interests in the nearby deliveries to remove hedges against shipping sales. Recent export business is said to have been confined largely to Canada. Closing trades on lard were unchanged to 12½ cents lower with May leading while bellies were unchanged to 2½ cents lower. Cash lard closed at $13.97; loose, $13.92; leaf, $14.12, and bellies at $17.50 per 100 pounds. Prices in dollars per 100 pounds follow:

LIMITED TRADE IN COTTON; PRICES GAIN 2 TO 8 POINTS

Trade in cotton yesterday was limited with the market holding within a range of less than 10 points. The close in Chicago was at net gains of 3 to 8 points while other markets were 2 to 8 points higher. Crop comments from Texas and Oklahoma were more favorable, but were offset by scattered commission house and trade buying.

Spot cotton closed unchanged to 10 points higher, with New Orleans 12.35 cents, New York 12.45 cents, Houston 12.15 cents, and Galveston 12.20 cents per pound. Prices in cents per pound follow:

SUBMIT REALTY TRUST PROPOSAL TO BONDHOLDERS

Dorchester Bldg. Groups Ask Vote on Plan.

BY AL CHASE.

Owners of bonds against the Dorchester Court and the Dorchester apartments who have deposited their securities with the bondholders' protective committee for American Bond and Mortgage company issues yesterday were asked to vote on whether or not these properties after reorganization are to be operated through stock trusts.

The two properties, securing outstanding bonds totaling $456,000, were acquired for the depositing bondholders at foreclosure sales early in the year. New corporations have been organized to hold title to the properties.

Submit Stock Trust Principle.

In accordance with a policy recently adopted the committee is submitting to the holders of the certificates of deposit a referendum on the stock trust principle of operation after reorganization. The Dorchester apartments are a seven story hotel at the southeast corner of Dorchester and Hyde Park boulevard. The Dorchester Court building is at the southwest corner of Dorchester and 47th place.

Dayton Keith, chairman of the committee, yesterday stated that in the referendum on the Graemere hotel $1,800,000 bond issues the results on the basis of the 25 per cent vote thus far recorded show 92.4 per cent of the votes in favor of stock trust administration.

Committees Pay Own Expenses.

Bondholders' committees must pay their own legal and similar expenses, instead of making them a general charge against debtor's assets, according to a ruling by Federal Judge Woodward in the case of Frank L. Rogerson yesterday. The decision resulted from a protest made in the reorganization of the Rogerson apartments, 1622 Morse avenue. Fees attacked included $500 for "services rendered" by a bondholders' committee.

The first loan in the northern Illinois district to be made under the recently revised national housing act, which now permits modernization and repair loans up to $50,000, was negotiated yesterday by the Steger Manufacturing company of Steger. A $10,000 FHA loan was made through the Citizens National bank of Chicago Heights for improvements to the borrower's factory and for new equipment.

COURT SLASHES FEES IN BUILDING REORGANIZATION

Federal Judge John P. Barnes yesterday approved fees of $35,000 in connection with the reorganization of the State-Lake Building corporation under section 77B of the bankruptcy law. In so doing he cut off more than half of the $73,000 requested by the various attorneys, bondholders' committees, and other parties interested in the reorganization.

The largest fees were $6,000 each to O'Brien, Condon & Livingston, counsel for the first mortgage bondholders' committee, and D'Ancona, Pflaum & Kohlsaat, representing the corporation. Sonnenschein, Berkson, Lautman, Levinson & Morse, counsel for the First National bank, trustees and depositary under the mortgage, received $5,000 and the bank $3,000. The bondholders' committee was granted $3,750. Other fees totaled $11,250. The reorganization was approved June 11 by Judge Barnes.

BUTTER AND EGG 'RIGHTS' TRADING SHOWS INCREASE

Trading in "rights" on the Chicago Mercantile exchange has shown steady expansion in the last few weeks, according to officials. Volume has exceeded 200 cars of butter or eggs for several weeks.

Rights correspond to bids and offers or indemnities in the grain market and puts and calls in the stock market. They are used against open orders to limit losses in futures trading.

The range of prices traded this week on rights, good all next week, follows:

BUYING RIGHTS EXPIRE NEXT WEEK.

	High.	Low.	Close.
November butter	25¼	24¾	25¼
October eggs	26½	25½	26½

Sales—Butter, 16 cars: eggs, 139 cars.

SELLING RIGHTS EXPIRE NEXT WEEK.

	High.	Low.	Close.
November butter	24¾	23¾	24¾
October eggs	25¾	25¾	25¾

Sales—Butter, 7 cars; eggs, 63 cars.

Board of Trade Seat Sells for $5,700, Rise of $200

A Chicago Board of Trade membership sold yesterday for $5,700, an increase of $200 over the preceding price.

BUTTER TRADERS AWAIT BIDS ACCEPTED BY AAA

Butter traders are awaiting with considerable interest announcement of how much butter will be accepted by the AAA on its request for tenders of 5,000,000 pounds, which will be opened on July 22. Recently offers of a similar amount were asked and it was officially reported 3,800,000 pounds had been accepted. Trade reports, however, indicated that part of the contracts were canceled later and it is claimed that the actual net amount taken was about 1,000,000 pounds.

Continued hot weather in the southwest failed to have much effect on butter and egg futures yesterday, being offset by less favorable reports as to the statistical position. Butter futures on the Chicago Mercantile exchange closed unchanged to ¼c per pound higher yesterday and eggs ⅛ cent per dozen lower. Cheese was ¼ cent per pound higher and potatoes unchanged. Sales of butter were 71 cars; eggs, 59 cars; cheese, 1 car, and potatoes, 9 cars. Prices follow:
